Condition of NH-37 irks Sonowal

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, June 6: Following numerous complaints regarding the deplorable condition of National Highway 37, Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal travelled from Dibrugarh to Kaziranga by road yesterday. Expressing his displeasure over the appalling condition of NH-37, Sonowal called on a high level meeting at the Assam Police Guest House at Kohora Range of Kaziranga National Park on Tuesday. Chief Minister Sonowal also reviewed the progress of the highlands and asked the park authority to complete creating the highlands on war footing for the animals to take shelter during the monsoon.

Sonowal also reviewed the anti-poaching measures that the park authority has taken so far. He also took stock of the facilities provided to the forest guards and other employees of the Kaziranga National Park.

Trump action shock for India, world: Rajnath

NEW DELHI, June 6: US President Donald Trump's statement withdrawing from the Paris climate deal sent the message that America's own concerns were paramount and was a "shock" for India and the world community. Home Minister Rajnath Singh said here today.

Singh, who was inaugurating the two-day national conference on Capacity Building of State Disaster Response Force (SDRF)-2017, added that the US would "definitely" have a rethink on the issue. "The international community should get onboard so that the environmental balance is not destroyed," he said.

Paris climate deal

The US President's recent statement about the Paris deal sent the message that the world community was not one and that a country was only concerned about its own environment, the minister said.

It was to be seen in what circumstances the US made such a statement, he added. For "people like us (India) and the international community, this has come as a shock... I am sure that the US will definitely rethink on this," he stated.

Announcing the US withdrawal from the Paris deal on June 1, Trump had claimed that India had made its participation in the agreement "contingent on receiving billions and billions of dollars in foreign aid".

External Affairs Minister Sushma Swaraj had rejected Trump's comment yesterday and said India signed the Paris climate pact not because of pressure from any country or due to the lure of money. – PTI

North bank tributaries carry high sediment load

AJIT PATEWARI

GUWAHATI, June 6: The Brahmaputra is a snow-fed perennial river. It gets floods between May and September. Over 80 per cent of its sediment and over 95 per cent of its sediment comes during this period.

According to the Master Plan of the Brahmaputra Basin Part-I Main Stem prepared by the Brahmaputra Board and published in 1986, the maximum annual suspended load of the river assessed at Pandu was found to be 36,609 ha m (hectare metre) in 1958 and the minimum suspended load at this gauge-discharge point was found to be 1,487 ha m in 1973, that is the variation in the annual sediment concentration at Pandu was found to be from a maximum of 0.0679 per cent in 1958 to a minimum of 0.00363 per cent in 1974.

The composition of the suspended load at Pandu was 5.27 per cent coarse, 26.05 per cent medium and 68.68 per cent fine grade. Significantly, the Master Plan said the sediment load at Pandu was found to be from the Press Club, Gautam Lahiri said.

The Central Bureau of Investigation had yesterday searched the residence of Roy and three other locations for allegedly causing losses to a private bank, a move ordered by the NDTV.

"While we maintain that all individuals and every institution has to abide by the law of the land, we condemn any attempt to either intimidate the media or put curbs on its freedom," president of the Press Club, Gautam Lahiri said.

On the south bank, the tributaries that use to make major contributions to the silt load of the Brahmaputra are Lohit, Dihing, Subansiri, Raniganj, Dikrong, Jia Bharali, Dhansiri (Nameri), Putumari, Padigaya, Manas, Aie, Chitwan, Pamati and Sankosh on the north bank.

Removal of APSC chairman

President's reference to SC on Rakesh Paul

Police seize 140 more answer scripts

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, June 6: The President of India has made a reference to the Supreme Court of India vis-à-vis removal of the suspended chairman of the Assam Public Service Commission (APSC) Rakesh Paul, the prime accused in the cash-for-job scam, even as Dibrugarh police today seized 140 more answer scripts from the APSC office.

The matter will now be viewed by the apex court and after examining, the same will be referred to the office of the President of India with an opinion via the Central Government.

The letter dated June 3 and addressed to Chirag Bhana, Registrar (Jud 1) by Gayendra Dev Tripathi, Joint Secretary of the Government of India, was sent on behalf of the President of India under Article 317 of the Constitution of India.

Special public prosecutor Bijon Kumar Majahan, when asked, said that making reference to the apex court under Article 317 of the Constitution invoked the reference/advisory jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

"The process begins here. The reference made by the President also means that the constitutional head of the country is satisfied that a prima facie case has been made out in the instant case against the suspended chairman of the APSC. The power to remove the chairman or the members of the public service commission has been vested exclusively with the President of India," Majahan said.

Meanwhile, Assam Police sources said the answer scripts seized from the APSC office today would be verified and sent for forensic examination. The answer scripts mostly belong to the candidates who appeared in the 2015 APSC examination.

Sonia may step down as Cong chief by Oct

NEW DELHI, June 6: Sonia Gandhi may step down from the Congress presidency, paving the way for Rahul Gandhi's possible elevation when the party holds its internal elections by October 15.

The Congress Working Committee (CWC), the party's highest decision-making body, today approved the schedule for internal elections under which the party has to complete the exercise by October 15.

In her speech at the CWC meeting, Sonia Gandhi exhorted partymen to strengthen the organisation and complete the organisational polls with "speed and sincerity".

"We must strengthen our organisation. The ongoing organisational elections must be completed with the utmost speed and sincerity," she said at the meeting, ahead of the CWC approving the poll schedule.

The status of the economy was discussed at the meeting of the Congress Working Committee (CWC), the highest decision-making body of the main opposition party here. Gandhi, who chaired the meeting, talked about the failure of demonetisation, saying it has affected the country's growth.

She highlighted that Mamnoon Singh had predicted a fall in growth due to the note ban announced by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on November 8 last year.

She said the GDP figures proved that the former prime minister's forecast that demonetization would slow down economic growth was correct.

Singh, in his intervention at the meeting, talked about the decline in the economic growth as depicted in the last

Gogoi decries CBI raid on residence of NDTV founders

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, June 6: Former Chief Minister Tarun Gogoi has condemned yesterday's CBI raid on the residence of NDTV founders Prannoy Roy and Radhika Roy and described it as an attempt at silencing the voices of independent and anti-establishment media. This act is an attack on the fourth estate, he said.

In a statement here, Gogoi said the act of using CBI as a tool to stifle those voices which have been critical of the failures and misdeeds of the Modi government, has been rejected by all the right-thinking people.

"In the days to come, we will fight against the divisive policies and tendencies of the Modi government to stifle the voices that express different thoughts and ideas or speak out for alternative policies and philosophies." MESSAGE FOR TODAY

When one man has the opportunity to lead an extraordinary life, he has no right to keep it to himself.

— JACQUES COUSTEAU

The Assam Tribune

Another feather

With the launch of the so-called 'Jumbo Rocket', the 43.43-metre-tall, 600-tonne Geosynchronous Satellite Launch Vehicle Mark III, carrying a 3,163 kg GSAT-19 satellite which has been placed into planned orbit, Indian space scientists have added another feather in their cap. The Mark III represents India's latest addition to indigenously built rockets, like the Polar Satellite Launch Vehicle and the GSLV Mark II, and empowers our satellite launch programmes to send into space the heaviest of satellites. Now India can loft payloads up to 4,000 kg into geosynchronous transfer orbit and those of 10,000 kg into low Earth orbit, thereby boosting her commercial satellite launch potential and making Indian space research even more self-sustaining. In 2013, when India launched the Mars orbiter spacecraft Mangalyaan, there had been some criticism regarding the Rs 450-crore price tag, considered unaffordable for a developing nation. ISRO scientists have proved critics wrong by developing satellite launch vehicles using indigenously built cryogenic rockets at a small fraction of the price spent by the organizations like the NASA and European Space Agency. Because Indian space launches are the cheapest in the world, thus have become attractive for players in the multi-billion dollar satellite launching market. For the last few years, ISRO has been launching multiple satellites and earning thousands of crores of rupees, thereby enabling itself to embark on data collection exercises without a burden on the national exchequer.

At the same time, the success of the 'jumbo rocket', the heaviest so far, has another interesting facet since it signifies that our nation is now capable of sending manned missions into space. This has been a hiatus in our space exploration achievements, underlined by the fact that it has been something even China has been able to do. ISRO has been quietly working towards this objective and developing indigenous technology so as to be able to undertake manned missions in the near future. Such an objective also entails expenditure for merely research purposes, but now ISRO is on more firm grounds given the earnings from its satellite launch programmes. It is, of course, true that the Indian Government has not yet decided on manned space explorations. That Indian scientists are currently not working on developing a life-support system which is sine qua non for a manned capsule is a clue to the fact that such a goal is not a priority to them. There is something 'dramatic' about manned flights which captures one's imagination and the Indian people do look forward to the day when we send a man into space on our own. Though for the once Indian space scientists' performance must stick to routine assignments such as commercial launch of satellites, it is heartening to know that they have developed the capacity for manned expeditions and will one day fulfil every Indian's dream.

Below-par CSR

It is regrettable that despite there being a clear mandate for compulsory corporate social responsibility (CSR) activities, Assam and other States of the North-east continue to figure at the bottom of the list of the top corporate houses investing in CSR. As per different government and non-government data, since 2015 till today, the share of the north-eastern States has been rather negligible vis-a-vis involvement of top corporate houses. In fact, the stake of the North-east in social sector CSR has been an abysmal 0.001% as revealed by a survey of the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, Government of India. This reflects poorly on the social commitment of the corporate sector, whereas CSR activities are increasingly being recognized as a potent tool to address issues concerning education, health care, child welfare, resource management and livelihood, and poverty alleviation in developing countries. It is precisely these concerns that have induced global corporate giants like Microsoft to dominate liberally on projects aimed at improving the socio-economic conditions of thousands of underprivileged families in countries like India. Environment is another area that is attracting large-scale funding from global corporate houses. Against this backdrop, the reluctance of the Indian corporate sector to invest in meaningful ventures in a backward region like the North-east in their own country is disturbing. In Assam, apart from the presence of top public sector entities like OIL, ONGC, GAIL, NHPC, etc., the tea industry is also having a huge presence. But the tea industry – despite enjoying many benefits under the existing arrangements – has not invested in the social sector in the manner one would have expected. As CSR is something mandated by the law, the Government needs to be proactive in ensuring that the corporate sector discharges its obligation in the desired manner. Apparently, there is also the issue of lack of sensitization that comes in the way of effective discharge of CSR. This needs to be addressed by agencies like the national commissions for child and women welfare by engaging with the corporate world.

The rationales behind CSR are many, the foremost being that business cannot succeed in isolation and a healthy and progressive social environment is critical to sustainable growth. An ideal CSR practice, therefore, comes with its intrinsic ethical and philosophical dimensions, especially in the context of a region like the North-east where there is a noticeable disparity in the socio-economic status of the people. These sectors like power and oil, owing to their large-scale operation and coverage, contribute a lot to pollution, besides causing displacement of homes and livelihoods of many. Hence, they are naturally indebted to the communities and the environment, and CSR provides them with an excellent opportunity to pay back to society and the environment. Indeed, innovative, inclusive and sustainable CSR practices with increased participation of communities can go a long way in creating a just and equitable society.

Demographic dilemma

■ Sangeeta Sharma

A few years ago, India boasted of having a huge young generation of people who had the potential of contributing hugely to the country's development. This was demographic dividend for India. However in recent years, another concern has been doing the rounds. This very demographic dividend has put the country amidst another dilemma – the possibility of population explosion and the need for population control. Every 10 years around, the decadal census adds to this dilemma. However, when the data of population growth released is released, debates often settle around the uncontrolled growth rate of particular communities.

Misreporting by media outlets often adds to the concern. The religion-based population growth data collected for the 2011 Census was released as late as August, 2015 and a similar debate started doing the rounds. The rhetorical slogan of 1990s – 'How do humans die, do you punch our wife's pachas' – did factors ever now. The Muslim demographic is often explained through these polemical takes which assume that a higher birth rate in Muslims is solely related to their religion.

However, the 2011 data did bring out some positive trends in population growth. The growth rate is falling all across communities, but interestingly the fall is most steep in Muslims. The growth rate of Muslims has slowed down from earlier decades and it was only 0.8%. The gap between the growth rates of Hindus and Muslims is progressively declining. And there is a hope that with an improvement of the socio-economic conditions of Muslims, this rate will further come down.

Misplaced assumptions however have often pitted one community against the other and worked as fuel in formulating policies targeting a particular community. Patricia and Roger Jeffrey in the article 'Saffron Demography, Common Wisdom, Aspirations and Uneven Governmentalities' published in Economic and Political Weekly elaborates that some right-wing politicians spread pernicious myths about the differences between the population growth of Hindus and Muslims. Such lies have been repeated so many times that it has become a part of common wisdom and even in case of policymakers, any population policy has an underlying tone of curtailing the number of the 'demised' other.

This presentation of demographic statistics through a prism of communalism is regarded as saffron demography. Saffron demography however has no factual backing.

It is often the product of prejudice against religious minorities. Saffron demography suffers from serious methodological, philosophical and empirical problems. It is in fact a set of misconceptions based on assumptions. It overlooks the heterogeneity of both the Muslim and the Hindu communities and clubs them as monoliths. It is practically ahistorical and does not look at trends of population growth over periods of time and other socio-economic factors which are also responsible for population growth. It also conveniently overlooks the fact that population growth among Muslims in Southern India is lower than Hindus in some of the north Indian States.

In this context, there is a need to mention that the Assam Government also acknowledged the problem of population explosion and decided to take steps. The Government is aiming to formulate a specific population policy for the State. To start with, it will give certain incentives to the government employees with two children including reserving low population policy were also announced. In a State which loses precious and limited natural resources every year to natural disasters, scarcity of resources is a fact and it is often the cause of ethnic clashes. In such a scenario, a population policy does make sense. But let us stop and take account of the effectiveness of this policy.

To start with, we need to state that population policy and family planning has been a part of India's five-year plans and sterilization was one of the most popular methods employed. However, a look at the population control policy initiated during the Emergency years with targets imposed from above would remind one of the horrifying experiences that people faced. Young, unmarried boys were sterilized just to fulfil the targets. The safety precautions were bypassed. Even decades after that, a large number of women died due to failed sterilization cases. It was only recently that the Supreme Court ruled that all such sterilization camps should be closed.

Many other countries also follow population policy. The US introduced the Title X Family Program in 1970 which works for spreading awareness about family planning and makes family planning services easily accessible. The policy focused more on people in the lower income group. Indonesia through the Banjar system used communities to spread awareness. This programme saw a lot of success as many conservative community leaders changed their views and supported family planning. Bangladesh achieved the lowest fertility rate in South Asia through welfare assistants who do door-to-door campaign about contraceptives and provide free contraceptives every two weeks.

The Assam Government's population policy comes with a desirable goal of curbing population growth but bypasses the real target group by focusing on government employees. The target group should have been the lower income groups in rural areas, the marginalized people living in river islands and the method should have been disseminating information and making health care available to these people.

This policy has also attracted criticism for being aimed at curtailing the population of the immigrant Muslims for the safeguard of the indigenous people. A policy seems to be targeting a particular group will fall short of achieving its goals by alienating these people. Instead of targeting a particular community, the policy should focus on the higher fertility rate of Muslims which is also accompanied by lower literacy, poverty, lack of access to health facilities, higher infant mortality, etc.

Back to the study table

■ Monika Rauti

His is the thought that comes to mind at seeing the dismal performance of students in the HSLC examination this year. Awarding grace marks is not a commendable practice and the decision to give a second chance through a compartmental examination is a welcome move. When young school students achieve better through grace marks, it is detrimental to their understanding because at that age they lack the maturity to really understand that they have actually underperformed and a few extra undererved marks have helped them to get the desired result. They also fail to comprehend the implications of this in the long run. On the other hand, when they do not perform well and are given a second chance through a compartmental, they may just desire that they should make the most of it and actually study hard to achieve the desired result.

There can be several reasons for underperformance in a certain examination like unfavourable circumstances on that particular day, indisposition and most often the students not being serious enough about the exam, and giving a second chance is a relief to both the students and parents.

Another point to ponder over is the fact that the CBSE has reverted back to giving more weightage to the board exam system. A few years ago when the CBSE introduced the Continuous Comprehensive Evaluation or CCE, it seemed very pragmatic. The advocates of this system were well-meaning in their approach. The objective was to lessen the burden of loads of school work and make learning a pleasure. They believed that too much emphasis was being given on marks and often students who did not score well suffered from depression and lack of confidence. They also were of the view that rote learning and bookish learning was not the best option and children needed to learn by doing, so they actually do learn, and in this way the concepts were clear and there is not much of memorizing. The aim was to develop creativity and thinking skills. So there was activity-based learning with project works, assignments and other such individual or group based activity.

All this was wonderful but the problem lay in the implementation and evaluation. A bigger percentage of marks were given to internal and activity-based evaluation and a smaller percentage of marks to the examinations conducted at the end of the terms, either by the Board or by the school. While some schools in the private sector were able to provide most of the activity-based learning, it could not be done to perfection. In most schools it was almost impossible to do justice to these methods. There was just not enough time to manage large classrooms and teachers were fewer in proportion to the number of students. In countries where the number of students is low and there is a team of teachers handling a group, this system of activity-based learning and evaluation is ideal. In a country like ours with such a large population, it is difficult to maintain a suitable student-teacher ratio and a single teacher cannot guide and evaluate each and every student in a way that is desirable. It also resulted in a hundrem of activities like projects and assignments which left the kids very little time to sit at the study table for serious study.

The teachers were also kept on their toes allotting projects and assignments and evaluating them, and the actual teaching-learning took a back seat. As there was a time frame to complete all this, both teachers and students were busy with them throughout the year.

Good sense or whatever has prevailed both in the CBSE and SEBA and it seems like it is back to serious study. Children have to study the entire course for the final exams. Others have to gear up for the compartmentals.

We are a society where study is the norm. In most middle-class homes, as dushk gathars and with the lighting of the lamps by the mother, children sit down at the study table.

With the CBSE making 20%

marks as internal scores and 80%

as the examination score and with the SEBA doing away with the grace marks, the study table will get its rightful importance in a child's life.

Very often teachers in their over enthusiasm give projects that were complicated and the burden was shifted to the parents who spent time gathering materials and information. Thus the whole objective of a child learning by discovery was lost.

This year the results of Class X of the CBSE in our State have not been as good as in the previous years despite the internal assessment marks. One wonders what could be the cause. Perhaps our kids are getting out of the habit of study, especially self study. This again is a matter of concern for parents and teachers.

Innovative methods like learning through activity have their merits and cannot be overlooked. The key is to keep the right balance. Projects and assignments can be given as homework and a substantial amount of it during vacations. Our children must be kept in tune with the global changes but at the same time, their feet must be on solid home ground.

Letters to the EDITOR

Sir, — Women represent more than a quarter of the total world population. Most of the farmers across the world are women and women contribute most of the agricultural work in the developing countries both within and outside the household. In India, economic imbalances do not allow women to realize their full potential. Women are denied basic education and legal rights too.

Across the globe, educating women and giving them the ability to stand on their own feet has been a priority. In a household, women share all the responsibilities equally with man, whether it is farm or non-farm activity. Therefore, socio-economic improvement directly or indirectly affects the empowerment of women. When a woman share economic responsibilities, they can make a sound decision not only in the household but also in the society.

Rural women and micro-enterprises

Micro-enterprises like vermicompost, poultry, animal husbandry, duckery, piggy, goat farming, kitchen gardening, mushroom cultivation, nursery farming, pickle making, weaving and handicraft production are some of the ways for economic improvement of women as they are cost-effective approaches. Similarly, micro-enterprises generate employment and income for poor families which lead to sustainable development of a family. Yours etc., GITASREE GOSWAMI, Assam Agricultural University, Jorhat.

Brahmaputra dredging

Sir, — We refer to the views expressed by Dr UC Tabbildar as reported by Ajit Patowary (AT, June 3) and fully agree that mere dredging of a channel of about 35 m width in the Brahmaputra alone will not be able to solve the problem of flood. However, we are unable to agree to his contention that the detention of flood water in storage reservoirs on the tributaries by treating 26,000 villages as retention basin and also at strategic locations of the Brahmaputra and pumping the excess water from the basin through a network of pipes is the only solution of controlling flood.

We all know that along with the flood, erosion of banks is also a problem. If the erosion is not taken care of along with the flood control measures, it will be not worthwhile to take up only dredging along with the reservoir and pumping system as postulated. In fact Dr Tabbildar himself pointed out that the effect of dredging will be negated by deposition of silt elsewhere. It is in this context, we feel that the concept of providing hydraulically-balanced cross-sections along the river from Sadiya to Chittagong to obtain self-cleansing velocity by constructing reflector bunds at the meeting points of resultant currents of all the tributaries with that of the Brahmaputra and maintaining the cross-sections by dredging when and where required may be the only innovative solution to control flood and erosion on the Brahmaputra. The flood discharge near Sadiya is about 30,000 cumec and the same near Dhubri is about 1,00,000 cumec. Moreover, an average width of about 4,000 m is likely to be available along its length except near Guwahati. As such, hydraulic mean depth to obtain the self-cleansing velocity is likely to be available by judicious selection of cross-section parameters which can be maintained by dredging to obtain no silting and no scouring condition. This is likely to result in saving of the existing width at different sections sufficient enough to accommodate the proposed expressways on both the banks which can be constructed by using the excavated materials. This will result in preventing dislocation of settlements along the banks thereby saving enormous cost in acquisition and compensation of properties.

Yours etc., GE BORDOLOI, H TALUKDAR, Guwahati.

Indian badminton

Sir, — At a time when most of us stay glued to cricket only, Sri Praneeth had done us proud by annexing the just-concluded Thailand Open badminton title outclassing some international stalwarts. Sri Praneeth is another brilliant star on the horizon. This is not a case of flash in the pan. India is slowly but surely making its presence felt in the international badminton circuit through brilliant performances from Saina Nehwal, PB Sindhu and now Sri Praneeth. But sadly in our cricket crazy country, badminton is not given its due share of limelight and the country's stellar performance in sports other than cricket goes mostly unnoticed and unsung. Except a few diehard fans, very few take note of our achievements in badminton. Media too, both print and electronic, give little or zero coverage of our rapid rise in this sport. However, now after Dr Himanta Biswa Sarma took over as the president of the Badminton Association of India, a series of actions including setting up of badminton academies across the country has been announced. We sincerely hope that India will soon become a powerhouse in world badminton. Yours etc., KAMAKHYA PRASAD CHALIHA, New Guwahati.

Committed to doubling the income of farmers, the Central Government is continuously engaged in setting up Krishi Vigyan Kendra (KVK) more rapidly and effectively. Not only increase production but will also improve the quality of the product. In these centres, farmers are being given training to use modern technology. To expand the scope of Agriculture, the Central Government has made efforts to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of 671 Agricultural Science Centers.

During this, the latest technologies of pulses and oilseed crops were demonstrated by 531 and 434 KVK's respectively. In the last three years, 1.10 lakh and 1.11 lakh demonstrations were organized in farms to increase the yield of pulses & oil seeds respectively. This awareness drive led to the production of 22.44 million tonnes of pulses in the year 2016-17.

930 soil testing kits were provided to science centers and 8.9 lakh soil health cards were made for farmers.

MERA GAON MERA GAURAV

The government of India wants to equip farmers with agriculture with scientific knowledge through its operation of Mera Gaon Mera Gaurav, started in 2015-16.

Under this program, scientists are engaged in introducing new techniques of modern farming to enhance productivity and skills of farmers. In 2015-16, 10,712 villages were covered under this program and the number increased to 13,500 in 2016-17.

In order to make agricultural land fertile, Prime Minister Narendra Modi gave a slogan in 2015, "Swasth Dharaa Khet Haraa," which means - Healthy Earth Green Farm. Under this, the fertility of agricultural land has been increased by adopting soil-cultivation technologies. 62 new technologies have been developed in the last three years. Among the major technologies developed in the last three years soil testing and Organic Farming Packages, twelve mini labs have been made accessible to farmers for testing soil parameters. Through advanced technology, such varieties of paddy, wheat and mustard were prepared which can also be irrigated with saline water. In addition, all on-station IFS models and existing 63 IFS models were also updated in 14 agro-climatic areas.

Vulnerability Atlas of India was made available to all 572 rural districts and 75 ideal watersheds were developed in different agro-ecological regions of the country.

The emphasis is not only on increasing the number of animals but increasing the productivity of milch animals. In order to encourage farmers to produce more milk, the mechanism of milk procurement is being made effective for the farmers to sell their produce at a profitable cost.

In the last three years, the Government has successfully implemented schemes for livestock upgradation.

Women as jawans: It has to be a gradual process, say former Army officers

NEW DELHI, June 6: With the Army planning to induct women as jawans, the move has drawn support from several quarters, including a number of former military officers, even as a few have opined that the process has to be "gradual".

Lt Gen (retd) BK Chopra, former Director General of Armed Forces Medical Services, termed the move as a "humble beginning".

Army Chief Gen Bipin Rawat

had recently told PTI that the Army is considering to induct women as jawans and initially they will be recruited for positions in military police.

"In modern army, strength is not the only factor that counts. The Army has changed over the last 70 years and womenfolk are also not the same now. They could be physiologically different from their male counterparts, but that is a non-issue which can be taken care of with training," he said.

"There is no reason why the women cannot be recruited as jawans, when they have proved their mettle in other domains."

Chopra said the Army will require a "change of psyche" before the step is taken, as it is not used to seeing women as jawans.

Currently women are allowed in select areas, including in medical, legal, educational, signals and engineering wings of the Army but combat roles are kept off limit for them due to operational concerns and logistical issues. The Army is also planning to recruit women jawans for a range of activities like computer operators and as clerical staff.

Lt Gen (retd) VK Chaturvedi also welcomed the move, saying the Army treats all as equal, but asserted the 'organisation (Army) is supreme' and "constraints" of any nature have to be acknowledged," Chaturvedi said.

"It is going to be difficult initially, and the process of induction has to be very gradual to ensure there is no turbulence in the ranks.

"The Army doesn't discriminate, but the organisational need has to be at the top. And, there are physiological and biological constraints, which have to be acknowledged," Chaturvedi said.

He said the process must be spread over "15-20 years" so that there is no "shock value" attached to it.

Chaturvedi emphasised that women have already done well in various other fields of military like engineering, logistics defence and ordnance, and "I definitely see them marching shoulder-to-shoulder with men" in bigger roles too.

"But, the process must be gradual as there are certain regimentation, certain procedures that cannot be tampered with. And, this move, as I gather would be to take it on a pilot basis in military police," Chaturvedi said.

Women rights activists have also praised the move but some have asserted that this consideration should not come as a "charity". Role of Army has grown big in ensuring peace. Having woman as jawans is obviously a welcome step towards equating their role with men if the purpose won't be served if they don't get equal positions as men in the Army, they said. - PTI

Maoist hideout busted in Sukma after gun-battle

RAIPUR, June 6: Security forces have busted a Maoist hideout after an exchange-of-fire with Naxals in Sukma district of Chhattisgarh, police said.

A huge cache of Maoist material, including their uniforms, bags and explosive-making materials were recovered from the hideout busted last evening.

"Based on specific inputs, a team of Special Task Force and district force had launched an operation late night on Sunday in the interiors of Kukank Police Station area," Deputy Inspector General of Police (Dantewada range) Sundarraj P told PTI.

"Last evening, while cordoning off a forested hill near Jengoras village, around 400 kms away from here, an encounter broke out between the patrolling team and the ultras," he said. However, the rebels fled from the spot after a brief exchange of fire, he added.

During the subsequent search, seven bags, containing things of daily use four Maoist uniforms, some IED making-materials, three detonators, Naxal literature and essential medicines were recovered from the spot, the DIG said.

Blood stains found at the spot indicate that some Naxals were either injured or killed in the gun-battle, but their colleagues managed to take them away from the spot, he said adding that a search operation was on in the region.

The outlawed Communist Party of India (M) is also observing 'Jan Pitru' week between June 5 and 11 in memory of their slain leaders. They also focus on new recruitment in the movement during this period.

Patrolling by security forces has been intensified in Naxal-infested areas of Bastar in anticipation of enhanced Maoist activity. - PTI

Partition Museum in Amritsar to be opened on Aug 17

CHANDIGARH, June 6: The replica of a well, reminiscent of the killings committed to protect honour, a lock used to keep values safe during journey, a wedding saree — among exhibits that will narrate the story of the largest human migration ever, at the 'Partition Museum' in Amritsar.

According to an official, Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh will inaugurate the 'Partition Museum' on August 17, two days after the country would have celebrated its 71st Independence Day.

Soon after the country attained Independence on August 15, the migration of the lakhs, who found themselves caught on the wrong side of the border in Punjab and Bengal, had begun. And the museum would present and record their stories.

It is the world's first museum on partition. There is no such museum anywhere," said Mallika Ahalwala, CEO, Partition Museum. The partition did not see just the division of Punjab and Bengal, but also a colossal loss of homes and lives during the largest mass migration in history, she said.

The museum would display 5,000 plus items, including oil histories, documents, artifacts, she said, adding that a well has been created to resemble a typical well that one would find in a village in Punjab.

"It has been constructed in the memory of all the women

NGT notice to States over appointments in pollution control boards

NEW DELHI, June 6: The National Green Tribunal has issued notices to various States and Chairpersons of their pollution control boards who have not been appointed as per the norms laid down by it.

The direction came after the States failed to file a status report, even six months after the deadline, on complying with the guidelines laid down by the tribunal for appointments to their pollution control boards.

The green panel asked them why they should not accept the concept of ad hocism in appoint-directed to cease functioning as Chairman of the respective boards for not being appointed in consonance with the judgement of the tribunal.

A bench headed by NGT Chairperson Justice Swatanter Kumar said that three months time was granted to various pollution control boards to make appointments. However, none of the boards have taken effective steps in this regard till date.

The tribunal reiterated that the States not to take action on the orders of the tribunal and to flout the directions issued by it, particularly in relation to posts of such sensitivity and responsibility, as entire environmental status of the state would depend on the functioning of the state pollution control board," the bench said.

The NGT in August last year had questioned State governments and Union Territories on top appointments in State pollution control boards and directed them to fill the vacancies by appointing persons with requisite qualification within three months.

The panel, which also issued a set of guidelines for appointments to the posts of Chairman and Member Secretary, had said the nominations should be of persons who have special knowledge, practical experience or qualification in environmental protection studies and not on the ground of their association with State government.

The tribunal said the Chairman or Member Secretary should have a fixed term, which should not be extended.

The judgement had come on a plea by Uttarakhand resident Rajendra Singh Bhardwari, who had challenged the constitutionality of State pollution control boards on the ground that people who did not qualify were appointed as Chairman, Member Secretary and Members of these boards.

According to the plea, these appointments are bound to affect environmental issues seriously, as much as the grant of contracts under Prevention and Control of Pollution Act and the entire regulatory regime depended on the effective working of these boards. - PTI

Bengal CPI(M) against beef festival

KOLKATA, June 6: Bengal CPI(M), which is fast losing its ground in the State, unlike their comrades in Kerala are aware to organising any beef festival to protest against the ban on sale of beef as it might hurt the sentiments of the 'majority community'.

"What the Central government and BJP is doing is not right. But by organising beef festival or pork festival you are also in turn forcing someone to eat beef or pork to prove his secularism. We feel to prove secularism you don't need to consume beef or pork," a senior CPI(M) leader told PTI.

Besides, organising a beef festival might send out a wrong message to the majority community and BJP might cash in on it, he said. West Bengal has nearly 70 percent Hindu population and nearly 28 percent Muslim population.

"BJP is fast gaining momentum organising demonstrations even against US aggression on foreign soil, shied away from organising any protests against the ban in the country.

In Kerala protests were held in several parts of Kerala wrong message against the Left forces in the State.

After the Dadri incident, senior CPI(M) leader Bikas Ranjan Bhattacharya along with the pro-TMC intellectual Subhodeep Sarkar had publicly consumed beef. The incident had, however, not gone down well with a large section of CPI(M) leadership and Left Front partners.

The SFI and DYFI admitted that what they did in Kerala cannot be done here. "The political situation in Kerala and Bengal are different. So cannot be done here. We will soon take up some programmes to protest against the ban," a senior DYFI leader said. - PTI

NEW DELHI, June 6: The Income Tax Department today slapped a penalty of Rs 10,000 on RJD chief Lalu Prasad's MP daughter Misa Bharti for non-compliance of summons and issued her fresh summons in connection with its probe in the Rs 1,000 crore alleged benami land deals and tax evasion case.

Bharti was supposed to appear before the investigating officer (IO) of the case today, but officials said she failed to keep the date.

The IO has levied a penalty of Rs 10,000 against her for non-compliance of summons under Section 131 of the Income Tax Act with a show cause notice to her in this regard, officials said. She has now been asked to appear on June 12, they said, adding the department's queries in this case were to be answered by Bharti and not by any of her authorized representatives.

They said the summons required Bharti to appear in person today and join the investigation along with some personal financial documents.

probe further in this case, where the taxman had conducted multiple searches last month.

A chartered accountant, Rajesh Kumar Agrawal, allegedly linked to Bharti and others, was also arrested by the Enforcement Directorate on May 22. Agrawal is alleged to have aided in illegal transactions involving Lalu's kin.

Officials have earlier said that the summons to Bharti and Kumar were part of the probe in the case and their statements will be recorded.

The couple allegedly have links with a firm - Ms Mishal Packers and Printers Private Limited - which is suspected to have entered into benami deals for purchase of a farm house in Delhi's Bijaipur area. Certain other property deals were also under the scanner of the taxman, they had said.

The department is expected to slap provisions of the newly-enacted Benami Transactions Act, 1988, which became operational from November 1 last year, in this case. The law provides for a maximum punishment of seven years in jail and a fine.

The action under the new law will be over and above the legal proceedings under the Income Tax Act, 1961, which relates to charges of domestic tax evasion.

Bharti's husband, Shashank Kumar, has also been summoned in the same case by the department for tomorrow.

GST to help India achieve 9% growth rate: NITI Aayog CEO

NEW DELHI,

June 6: The goods and services tax (GST), to be rolled out next month as the biggest tax reform since independence, will help India achieve 9 per cent growth rate, NITI Aayog CEO Amitabh Kant said today.

He said GST will simplify India's taxation system and help deal with tax evasion.

"GST is India's biggest tax reform since 1947....GST will help India in achieving 9 per cent growth rate," Kant said at an event here.

Noting that the implementation of GST is a dream of Prime Minister Narendra Modi yesterday reviewed the preparedness for the new indirect tax regime, slated to be rolled out from July 1.

The meeting was attended by Finance Minister Arun Jaitley, Revenue Secretary Hasmukh Adhia and senior officers from the Central Board of Excise and Customs (CBEC).

This was the first review by the PM after the GST Council finalised the rates, and the second since May 2.

The GST Council, chaired by Jaitley and comprising his State counterparts, has already finalised tax rates on almost all goods and services. It will meet again on June 11 to review some of the rates and discuss other pending issues.

All goods and services have been put in slabs of 5, 12, 18 and 28 per cent, with the exception of gold and precious metals, which will attract 3 per cent GST, and rough diamond, which will have 0.25 per cent GST. - PTI

Resolving sectoral concerns of industryMinistries told to form GST facilitation cells

NEW DELHI, June 6: Cabinet Secretary PK Sinha has asked all the ministries and departments to set up a GST facilitation cells to help resolve sectoral concerns of the industry for a smooth rollout of the new tax regime from July 1.

In a letter to the secretaries of various ministries and departments, Sinha said that the GST facilitation cell should be managed by a small core team headed by the economic adviser or any other officer of the ministry.

"The cell shall be in constant touch with major industry and business associations relating to the respective ministry/departments and provide all possible support for the smooth rollout of GST with effect from July 1, 2017," a Finance Ministry statement said.

Sinha has also asked the ministries to ensure that all public sector units (PSUs) under the administrative control of the respective ministries and PSUs to be made aware of the basic features of the GST law and procedures, including implication in their respective areas of work.

The GST facilitation cell, Sinha said, could serve as the first point of contact for addressing any issue being faced by any business or industrial sector related to the respective ministry.

Ministries to decide on FDI proposals within 60 days: Finmin

NEW DELHI, June 6: The government today said it will have to grant approval for foreign investment by the end of the month.

The Industry Ministry, in consultation with the administration, will come out with a detailed guideline for processing of the FDI proposals and any rejection will concern the DIPP.

India had last month scrapped the 25-year-old foreign investment advisory body FIPB as it looks to attract more FDI by providing quick approvals under a single-window clearance system.

In an office memorandum, the Finance Ministry said subsequent to the abolition of the Foreign Investment Promotion Board (FIPB), concerned administrative ministries have been allotted the work of granting approval for foreign investment to the specific sector.

The Industry Ministry, in consultation with the administration, will come out with a detailed guideline for processing of the FDI proposals and any rejection will concern the DIPP.

The Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) shall involve the process of inter-ministerial consultation for the examination of FDI proposals, whenever necessary, it said.

The SOP will also recognize that ordinarily FDI applications, including those related to non-resident Indian (NR) FDI shall be transferred to the DIPP from the Department of Economic Affairs (DEA) within four weeks.

While FDI approval decisions in majority of the sectors have been relegated to concerned ministry, those relating to private security agencies would be decided by the Home Ministry. - PTI

Summer glamour

Experts offer tips on how to look fresh yet glamorous during summer

With the mercury refusing to climb down, toss away your dark and dramatic make-up palette. Less is more, opt for a subtle yet bold look, say experts.

Rashi Menda, CEO and founder, Zapyle, an online marketplace for premium fashion, and Farheen Isham, fashion curator at Roposo – the fashion social network, have shared tips:

Casual day out with friends: You would need to keep your make-up natural and light. The idea is to look effortless yet glamorous. So the best way to embrace the summer vibe will be to refrain from using too much liquid make-up. Instead, just dab on a semi-matte stick concealer and you are good to go.

For bright, sunny brunches: You want to look glowing, fresh and contoured in the photographs. So here is how you can take your pictures to the next level. Simply apply a light shimmering blush in peach or pink undertones over the apples of your cheeks, across the bridge of your nose, and on your temple.

For the summer dance parties: There can be a lot of rules for party make-up but the best way is to keep it minimal. Blend a touch of highlighter and apply it on top of the cheekbones and brow bones and down the bridge of the nose. The cream-based shimmer can also be used to illuminate the face and the shoulders.

Make your lips summer-ready: Summer is the time when you drink lots of fluids. You would neither want to leave lipstick on every glass at restaurants and pubs or let the heat make your lipstick bleed. It will be only wise to use a lip liner before applying any lipstick as it controls the chances of bleeding. So, pick a lip liner of the same colour of the lipstick you are going to use.

Try the lip pencils that are smooth enough to define, enhance and complement any colour of the lipstick or gloss.

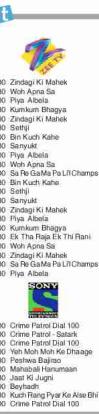

Use SPF-based make-up: It is important to protect your skin from dryness, tanning and premature ageing, especially during summer. Make-up with SPF content in it will shield your skin from heat, oiliness and will make you look good in sun without compromising with the health of your skin.

Waterproof make-up: The most annoying thing about summer is the constant sweating which ruins your make-up. Either the make-up starts coming off or starts cracking altogether. Waterproof make-up stands out as the ultimate saviour. Not only is it light on your skin, but is long-lasting as well.

Ditch the shimmer, go for dewy and natural look: Natural and dewy look is the most convenient and apt look for summer. It saves people from applying heavy foundation on the face and helps to get sun-kissed look with just a concealer, blush and highlighter.

Blotting papers for your rescue: To get rid of sticky summer skin, people usually go for thick absorbent powder or extreme mattifying make-up but there is a delicate fix to it. Use blotting papers to soak up moisture and get the fresh look. – IANS

Rocket lands inside Indian Embassy in Kabul, no casualties

KABUL/NEW DELHI, June 6: A rocket landed today inside the India House, the country's Embassy in Kabul where the Indian Ambassador and many other mission staffs were staying but there were no reports of any injury.

According to Indian Ambassador to Afghanistan Manpreet Vohra, the rocket landed in the compound of the Embassy building in the morning, but there were no injuries as it fell away from the people there.

The envoy asserted that the attack would not deter India from continuing to help the Afghan people, who are friends of India, and support the war-torn country's economic reconstruction.

Vohra said they had reports that certain attempts would be made by some terrorist groups, and today's incident "may be it is a part of that." He added that terror incidents have increased in the recent weeks and months, and coincides with the launch of the Kabul Process meeting this morning.

Man attacks police officer in France, hurt in shooting

PARIS, June 6: A French police officer shot and injured a man who attacked him with a hammer outside Paris's Notre-Dame cathedral today, authorities said.

Police sealed off the area in front of the cathedral, where the attacker lay injured on the ground. The attack comes with France on high alert for more jihadist strikes after a weekend attack in London, which extremists used a van and knives to crush to death and kill seven people, one of them French.

Authorities in Paris asked the public to stay away from Notre-Dame, one of France's biggest tourist attractions situated on the banks of the Seine river in the heart of the capital.

French TV reported scenes of panic during the shooting, with tourists scrambling for cover. France is under a state of emergency and on its highest possible level of alert following a string of terror attacks that began in 2015, which have killed over 230 people.

In the last fatal attack, a policeman was shot and killed. Paris' prestigious Champs-Elysees avenue on April 20, three days before the first round

Study finds C-section births less traumatic

TORONTO, June 6: Deliveries with forceps and vacuum may cause greater trauma to mothers and babies as compared to Caesarean section births, a new study has found.

Researchers from the University of British Columbia (UBC) in Canada found that in deliveries that did not involve foetal distress, severe complications for the baby were 80 per cent higher following mid pelvic forceps and mid pelvic vacuum compared with Caesarean delivery.

The rate of severe birth trauma was five to ten fold higher

in deliveries by mid pelvic forceps and mid pelvic vacuum

compared with Caesarean delivery.

The rate of severe birth trauma was five to ten fold higher

in deliveries by mid pelvic forceps and mid pelvic vacuum

compared with Caesarean delivery.

"Our study suggests that unless we improve our ability to select candidates for mid pelvic forceps and vacuum deliveries, or improve training in such deliveries, encouraging such delivery to reduce the Caesarean delivery rate could increase rates of neonatal complications," said Giulia Muraca from UBC.

These complications include birth trauma as well as maternal complications such as severe postpartum haemorrhage and obstetric trauma such as tearing, Muraca said. The study was published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. - PTI

Memory fails Nishikori ahead of Murray reunion

Kei Nishikori serves during the fourth round match of the French Open against Fernando Verdasco at the Roland Garros stadium in Paris, on Monday.

PARIS, June 6: Kei Nishikori admitted he couldn't remember last year's US Open upset of Andy Murray after booking a quarterfinal rematch with the world number one at Roland Garros on Monday.

The Japanese star recovered from a dreadful start to beat veteran Spaniard Fernando Verdasco 0-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0 in the French Open fourth round to reach a seventh Grand Slam quarterfinal.

Nishikori surprised Jiro Satoh for the most unexpected appearance by a Japanese man, as he made the last eight for the second time in three years in Paris.

He will take on Murray for a place in the semifinals, with the Briton prevailing in eight of their 10 previous meetings.

But Nishikori famously dumped the 2012 US Open champion out in New York last year after rallying from sets to one down.

"Sorry that I don't remember much," Nishikori responded when asked of the confidence he could draw from that five-set victory.

"You know when we play it's always a battle," he added. "Yeah, for sure, it's gonna be a tough one."

"We have been playing so many times. He's great player. Very smart tennis player. It's never easy, and I think this week he's been playing well."

Murray knocked out German seed Alexander Zverev in the first round and looked like claiming another top-10 scalp when he raced through the opening set.

"I lost my mind, after 6-0 down I knew I had to change something," said Nishikori.

"I couldn't do anything in first set but I tried to play deeper and more aggressive, and little by little I got better today."

"But still it was really, really tough battle. There was so many long rallies, second and third sets. I don't know how I got the second and third."

"The fourth, I think it was perfect tennis I played. So, yeah, very tough battle but very happy to win today."

Nishikori was playing for the third day running after his last-32 clash with South Korea's Hyeon Chung was held up by rain.

"I'm a little bit sore. Three days in a row. Not easy. Long matches. But I'm sure it's going to be okay. I have one day rest tomorrow (Tuesday)."

Murray, who coasted into the last eight with a straight-set win over Russia's Karen Khachanov, knows Nishikori will represent his biggest test so far.

"Kei, you know, obviously lost against him in the US Open. He plays well on the clay. You know, very solid off both wings. Moves well, quick," said Murray. - AFP

Pakistan face SA in must-win match

BIRMINGHAM, June 6: Embarrassed by India in their opening match, Pakistan will strive to stay alive in the competition as they take on a confident South Africa in a must-win Group A ICC Champions Trophy match here tomorrow.

The two teams are approaching the encounter with contrasting results in their tournament openers. Pakistan received a 124-run hammering from India while South Africa outclassed Sri Lanka by 96 runs.

Another defeat will virtually knock Pakistan out of the tournament but it will a humongous task for them to stop the Proteas, who are ranked number one in the ODI rankings.

Following the abject surrender by their batsmen against India, Pakistan batting line-up is under immense pressure to deliver. They found Indian pacers too hot to handle and South Africa have a potent pace battery.

Led by young Kagiso Rabada and well complemented by seniors Morne Morkel and Wayne Parnell, South Africa have a strong attack.

Pakistani batsmen drew flak from their past legends for their poor show against India.

and now have a point to prove. South Africa have a fearsome top-order, led by ever-dependable Hashim Amla, who has scored runs in all formats of the game.

Captain AB de Villiers and Faf du Plessis man the top and middle order and Pakistan bowlers have a task at hand to stop them.

After failure against Sri Lanka, the skipper would look to get into the groove before the knockout stage begins.

The way Chris Morris bat and bowled in the IPL, he showed he can destroy the opposition on his day and Pakistan have to be wary of the allrounder.

Fast bowling has been their strength but losing Wahab Riaz is not something Pakistan would be amused with.

They may lack players in the current set up who can instill fear in the minds of the opponents but Pakistan have the reputation of being an unpredictable side.

They may spring a surprise and disturb the calculations, which so far suggest that India and South Africa will move to the next stage of the tournament – PTI

Solution of last problem

Originating from Japan, 'su do ku' is a mind game and a puzzle that can be solved with proper reasoning and logic. It consists of digits in such a manner that no digit, every column and every 3 x 3 box accommodates the digits 1 to 9 without repeating any.

Lanka's best bet is to match Indian batters like all sole bread-bearers of any family, Sri Lankan batsmen must return with grotty every Thursday to live another day.

It would be too much to expect its bowlers to escape some goodness from the tired-looking Oval pitches against a muscular India who aren't moved by much compunction these days.

Rohit Sharma and Yuvraj Singh against Pakistan didn't look a bit like they were under the weather a few days ago. One laid the base and the other waltzed as India refused to be put off by hourly rain interventions. Dhawan and Kohli had the outing they wanted.

The remaining two could dedented though even before a ball has been hit in anger. Upul Tharanga, that shining light against South Africa in the opener, must sit out the next two games because of an appalling over rate.

The honour of leading your country is a crown of thorns in the best of times.

Hopefully Angelo Mathews will return. The allrounder is good at plugging most of the leaks. He has been a quintessential right-hander of Lankan cricket without quite being the maverick. There is enough chutzpah in the deep Lankan line-up to deserve intensity from the Indian bowlers.

On the best of times.

Smith insists Australia's batsmen will be ready for their do deus ex machina despite the lack of action in the tournament.

Smith's side endured the frustration of having Monday's clash with Bangladesh abandoned due to rain, just days after their opening fixture against New Zealand was also washed out.

On both occasions, it has been

Australia who were batting in the early stages of their innings when bad weather ended play.

Against Bangladesh, they had reached 83-1 in pursuit of 183 to win and required only four more overs to be bowled to ensure they would take maximum points via the Duckworth-Lewis rule used in rain-affected matches.

With two points from their two matches, Australia will have to play their part with sustained form.

Sangakkara laid the blame on seniors for Tharanga's ill-timed suspension.

"With only one experienced and senior bowler left by

Upul Malina, a team constituted of two spinners, it is unacceptable that Sri Lanka was over by 39 minutes.

"Even though the captain is penalised more for such offence s, it should be the responsibility of senior bowlers to push themselves to properly address and rectify the situation. The wicket-keeper and fielders also have to play their part with sustained form.

Sangakkara also felt that taking wickets in the first 10 overs will be crucial for Sri Lanka against. Sangakkara is also pleased with the Indian bowling, especially with the pacers.

"India's bowling has been a revelation in recent years in the sense that, while earlier its strength lied in the spinners it had in its ranks, right now it also has a varied and highly effective pace attack."

The former opener said despite defeat, Sri Lanka had a lot to take from the defeat against

Rohan-Dabrowski duo in semis

PARIS, June 6: Rohan Bopanna and his Canadian partner Gabriela Dabrowski stormed into the semifinals of the mixed doubles event of the French Open with a straight-set upset win over the duo of Sania Mirza and Ivan Dodig of Croatia here on Monday.

The Bopanna-Dabrowski pair, seeded seventh, defeated the second-seeded Sania-Dodig pair 6-3, 6-4 in the 52-minute quarterfinal contest that involved two Indians.

Bopanna is the only Indian left in fray at the Grand Slam tournament. He is though already out of the men's doubles event.

With today's loss, Sama's campaign ended in the tournament.

She and her Kazakh partner Yaroslava Shvedova had crashed out of the women's doubles event in the opening round. - PTI

Gulf row hits AFC CL quarters

KUALA LUMPUR, June 6:

Iran's Persepolis and Saudi Arabia's Al Ahli will no longer play their second leg Asian Champions League quarterfinals in Qatar, the football body said today, as a diplomatic crisis sweeps the region.

Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Egypt and Yemen were among those to cut ties with Qatar on the grounds that Doha supported extremist groups "that aim to destabilise the region".

The rift has triggered the closure of air space and the expulsion of diplomats. It also means a new venue will have to be found for the matches between the two teams, scheduled for August and September. - AFP

Sangakkara wants Sri Lanka to play with arrogance

"If they are able to do this, then they have a chance of pulling off an upset, but it will not be easy against an India team that so confidently overwhelmed Pakistan on Sunday."

After being thrashed by South Africa, Sri Lanka find themselves in a do-or-die situation ahead of the match on Thursday.

"I would personally like this year Sri Lanka side to walk out at The Oval and play with the arrogance and abundance of youth. They should express their talent and play a really positive brand of cricket," Sangakkara wrote in his column for the ICC.

Sangakkara said it's not an ideal situation for Sri Lanka,

"If Angelo Mathews is deemed unavailing for this vital clash, it could severely hamper the team's chances of winning against India. Even if Angelo is considered fit, the threat of slow over-rate will be a major concern.

Having Tharanga suspended

is a huge waste," the former captain wrote.

Sangakkara laid the blame on
