Rajnath calls for financial choking of Maoists

NEW DELHI, May 8: Union Home Minister Rajnath Singh on Monday called for the choking of financial resources of left-wing extremist groups and said it was the fundamental instrument to counter Maoist violence.

The Home Minister's remarks came during his inaugural address at the day-long security review meeting here with the Chief Ministers of Maoist-affected states, days after leftist rebels killed at least 25 paramilitary troopers in Chhattisgarh.

The Home Minister also asked for implementation of the new doctrine "SAMADHAN" for use in security operations: S - Smart Leadership, A - Aggressive Strategy, M - Motivation and Training, A - Actionable Intelligence, D - Dashboard-based KPIs (Key Performance Indicators) and KRAs (Key Result Areas), H - Harnessing Technology, A - Action Plan for each threat and N - No access to financing.

He called for a more proactive approach to deal with left-wing extremism.

"Today we need to consider whether to react only after the occurrence of any incident or we should be more proactive," he said.

The Home Minister added that the left-wing extremist groups were trying to weaken democracy in the country but would "never succeed" in doing so.

He also called for increased use of technology in security operations and to counter left-wing extremism.

"We need to have enough unmanned aerial vehicles with each battalion. Since extremists use looted weapons, we need to have trackers in the weapons, enable biometrics in triggers and have unique identification numbers in explosive material," he said.

Highlighting the need for motivation and training, Rajnath Singh said there was a need to improve the training and other facilities at the camps.

"The residential camps of security forces should be well equipped with power and water facility and better connectivity," he said.

He also called for the need to adhere to the Standard Operating Procedures to ensure safety of the security forces.

"There is a need to chalk out a specific action plan for each threat with short-term, medium-term and long-term strategies clearly defined."

Rajnath Singh said the whole country was agitated over the "martydom" of 25 Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) personnel in Sukma.

"I am convinced that their martyrdom will not go in vain. The day is not far when this mindless violence will end."

He stressed on the need to discuss and work out an "integrated strategy" of security by giving impetus to development in 35 worst-affected districts to eliminate the Maoist influence.

He said that "the presence of our forces should instil fear" among the leftist rebels and a sense of confidence among the local people and tribals.

Rajnath Singh asked the states to take the ownership of Maoist operations and that the paramilitary forces should cooperate with them fully. "At the same time, the force on the ground should not lack leadership."

He accepted that the technical intelligence inputs in Bastar zone of Chhattisgarh were very low in comparison to Telangana and Andhra Pradesh and the reason for this was the only 20 per cent effective connectivity. - IANS

Anganwadi workers' stir for pay hike

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, May 8: A massive protest demonstration was staged at Dighalipukhuri today by the association of the Assam State Anganwadi Workers and Helpers demanding a hike in their honourarium. The police had to deploy water cannon to disperse the protesters who blocked a stretch of the GNB Road.

The Anganwadi workers' movement is on since May 2 after the association's meeting with the State Social Welfare Minister Nahar Kumar Doley remained inconclusive. Apart from honourarium, the protesters have been demanding better infrastructure in the Anganwadi centres of the State, a one-time assistance for the Anganwadi workers and helpers after retirement, and other facilities like portable water, repair of the centres, teaching tools and apparatus, first aid medicines, timely promotion and upgrading the mini centres into full-fledged ones.

The

Anganwadi workers

would continue their non-cooperation with the State Government in the days to come, where the centres would be open but no regular reporting or meeting would be done with the State Government officials.

Nearly 10,000 protesters from all districts of the State, except from Barak Valley, assembled near Dighalipukhuri since 10 am today. According to the DCP (Central) Ranjan Bhuyan, the protesters tried to break the police cordon and march towards Dispur, when water canon was used by the police to disperse the crowd. Though the police said that no one was injured during the incident, the association claimed that their member Sahera Khatun from Barpeta was injured by the water canon, whereas Malati Lahkar (Tihu) and Hazera Begum (Goalpara) were injured during the protest.

The citizens, however, had a harrowing time on the road as the protest continued till 2.30 pm. Traffic came to a standstill and vehicles had to take a detour due to the road blockage. Schoolchildren also had a tough time returning home due to the traffic chaos created by the protest demonstration.

"Earlier, we were staging the protest in the campus of the Social Welfare Department Directorate at Uzbarazar. But, after the district administration prohibited us from doing so, we protested

MESSAGE FOR TODAY

Life is really simple, but we insist on making it complicated.

— CONFUCIUS

The Assam TribunePriceless gift

It seems strange now that not many decades ago, there were carpers who had asserted that spending hundreds of crores of rupees in space programmes was squandering money which could have been better spent in sectors such as agriculture and health. Even as late as 2013, when India launched the Mars orbiter spacecraft Mangalyaan, there had been critics who wondered whether spending Rs 450 crore on gathering data on the Red Planet was "affordable". The ISRO scientists have been working quietly to prove these critics, and their contention that a poor nation like India cannot afford costly space programmes, wrong by successfully developing Satellite Launch Vehicles using indigenously built cryogenic rockets. This has enabled them to enter the multi-billion-dollar satellite launching market. Because Indian space launches are the cheapest in the world, using them has become attractive for most nations. For the last few years, ISRO has been launching multiple satellites and earning thousands of crores of rupees, thereby becoming financially self-sustaining and able to embark on data-collection exercises without becoming a burden on the national exchequer. Now it has been instrumental in bestowing to the South Asian nations what Prime Minister Narendra Modi has termed a "priceless gift". Our scientists have successfully placed the 2,230-kg South Asia Communication Satellite into geosynchronous transfer orbit, from where it would be taken to its final geostationary orbit before beaming back signals to the Earth.

Initially the satellite had been billed to be a SAARC satellite, but Pakistan chose to opt out, hence the renaming. By facilitating communication, this satellite will prove invaluable to the user nations Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, the Maldives, Nepal and Sri Lanka. These countries do not have the resources to commence space programmes on their own, thus our scientists have simultaneously assisted India on the diplomatic front. It needs to be noted that of late India's relations with a few of her neighbours have been somewhat strained, with Chinese influence being enhanced in nations such as Nepal and Sri Lanka. The gift of a communication satellite would, hopefully, ease tensions and lead to better relations with them. That the heads of all the SAARC members barring Pakistan watched the launch through video conferencing is an indication of the wholehearted manner in which they have accepted the satellite. Though it cost India a whooping Rs 235 crore, the returns in terms of goodwill and regional cooperation is worth every rupee spent on it. Moreover, with the income being generated by ISRO increasing each year, in every sense the South Asian Communication Satellite would pay for itself. The PM has rightly called the launch of the satellite as a historic moment and stated that it would open up new horizons of engagement. That the heads of the user nations echoed this sentiment indicates how priceless this gift has been.

Restoring paradise

At a time when plummeting tiger numbers across its habitats remain a global concern, it's heartening to see the big cat burning bright in the forests of Assam, inarguably one of its last strongholds. Of particular significance has been the steady rise in the tiger population in the Manas National Park that once sheltered well over a hundred of the big cats before a prolonged period of social unrest in the 1990s pushed its famed wildlife to the brink. Thankfully, sustained and committed efforts by the Forest Department, NGOs and local communities have infused a fresh lease of life into Manas. Testified to by the restoration of the World Heritage Site in 2011, the current tiger population of 30 which marks a significant increase over the last census' figure of 14 is a clear indication that with adequate security for its flora and fauna, it's possible to regain the lost glory of this magnificent wildlife habitat. With the big cat showing sure signs of moving towards a viable population, the need now is to enhance further security for the tiger and its prey base. It's to be noted that poaching of lesser animals such as deer is still common in Manas, and any reduction in its prey base will have adverse and long-term bearing on its tiger population. Indeed, it's regrettable that the Manas – celebrated for its wildlife diversity and stunning landscape – continues to grapple with debilitating concerns even today. A plethora ofills ranging from severe fund crunch to manpower constraints plague Manas, raising serious questions over its long-term well-being. It's also a shame on the Government that the main PWD road linking Manas from Barpeta Road remains in a state of perennial disrepair. While poaching of wildlife may have subsided in the core area, yet the menace is on in its peripheral forests, with the absence of a trained frontline squad adding to the mounting patrolling concerns. With poachers taking recourse to ingenious modes of operation, the need for a dedicated and competent frontline squad hardly needs any emphasis.

While populations of several species in Manas have shown signs of recovery, grave concerns – apart from poaching – remain in the form of encroachment and illegal logging. Encroachment and tree-felling have, in fact, attained disturbing dimensions – to the extent that the UNESCO World Heritage Committee had recently sounded a note of alarm, asking the government authorities to deal effectively with the menace. The government authorities need to be more proactive and come up with the required interventions to curb encroachment and illegal logging. Then notwithstanding the initial success of the rhino translocation programme, quite a few pachyderms have fallen to poachers' bullet in quick succession in the recent past, exposing lacunae in the security arrangement. Given that Manas is home to two flagship species, i.e., tiger and rhino, and both are extremely vulnerable to poaching, foolproof security alone will determine their future survival.

The Nirbhaya judgement

■ Arindam Baruah

The wanton lust, the servility to absolutely unchained carnal desire and slavery to the loathsome beastliness of passion ruled the mindset of the appellants to commit a crime which can summon with immediacy 'tsunami' of shock in the mind of the collective and destroy the civilized marrow of the milieu in entirety...

Thus read the judgement of the Supreme Court in the appeal in the matter of Mukesh and Another vs NCT of Delhi and Others, generally known as the Nirbhaya gang rape case. The full-bench Judge of the Court on May 5, 2017 gave the verdict on the case which was an instance of huge public outcry owing to the nature in which the rape was committed. Seldom has a civilized society come to witness such dastardly act which is not only limited to the sexual and carnal pleasures but also involves the high tendency to hurt the victim in an unnatural and inconceivable way.

This case has even brought the human rights activists who are against the death penalty to consider this rape as an exception and who are of the opinion that the Apex Court has set a yardstick much needed.

Immanuel Kant felt that the retributive form of punishment is the best form of punishment to restore order in the society. He felt that the punishments should be awarded on the basis of the convict's guilt and should be devoid of any other considerations like the possibility of reformation. For him, a failure to punish one according to one's guilt or the gravity of the offence would be a travesty of justice. In his words, "Whoever has committed a murder must die".

The doctrine of Jus Talionis (right of retaliation) is the guiding principle that Kant believes drives the courts who consider that the undeserved evil that anyone commits on another should be regarded as perpetrated by the criminal on himself. He was against the utilitarian system as there was a scope for such criminals to escape conviction on the basis of utilitarian arguments of greater good.

Jeremy Bentham's philosophy of utilitarianism is akin to what Immanuel Kant felt to the extent that both feel that the punishment awarded to the criminal must fit the crime committed or be proportionate and even those rules that provide for a greater punishment are at times justified. But the grounds for the same are where the two philosophies part ways. While Kant believed that the punishment is necessary so that the end of justice is met in the manner of an 'eye for an eye', Bentham felt that the purpose for the punishment should be reformation and nothing else. Bentham advocated a deterrence-based form of punishment. He believed that penal provisions and punishments are justified if they lead to a greater social pleasure.

The problem of utilitarianism and particularly the views of Bentham is that it merely tries to justify punishments on the basis of greatest pleasure of the society without feeling the need to accept other subjective and unproven 'higher truths' such as matters of actual guilt or innocence and logical inconsistencies in its actual application. The interpretation might be that the utilitarian theory might still justify the punishment of an innocent if it appears that such sanctions appointed by the court pointed out the failure of the trial court and the Delhi High Court to consider the mitigating and the aggravating circumstances of the convicts and that the courts have painted them all with the same brush. But a bad case in the trial court is enough to seal the fate of the accused. The skill with which the prosecution has produced the evidence and conducted the trial is truly commendable. But what is more important to see is whether the defence had its fair chances of being represented with the same genius.

These situations are true in almost all the cases. But this case can still be an exception which the Supreme Court in the judgment states as follows: "The diabolical manner in which crime was committed leaves one startled as to the perverted mental state of the inflictor."

The court found that the aggravating circumstances outweigh the mitigating circumstances and therefore refused to commute the death sentence of all the convicts to that of life imprisonment.

rifice of an innocent helps derive utmost pleasure to the society.

It is in this context that some of the advocates of human rights contend the futility of the death sentence. For them, it appears that this form of punishment is nothing but a means for the state to satisfy the pleasure buds of the society which wants nothing but retribution. This is where both the philosophies merge. The death sentence of Yakub Memon can be ably cited as a case where he was hanged to satisfy the retributive lust of the society and was based on maximum pleasure, though his guillot did not fit the 'rarest of the rare' doctrine propounded by the Supreme Court itself.

In this Nirbhaya gang rape case, the argument apart from mitigating circumstances is that the legal aid afforded to the accused was not of a good quality while the special public prosecutor appointed was a reputed senior advocate. The human rights advocates believe this to be an inherent injustice that is perpetuated at the very source. In a criminal case, it is very important that the trial be carried out immaculately as it determines to a large extent the future of the parties in appeals. And, therefore, such uneven placement of lawyers at this stage itself makes the outcome of the case pretty perverse.

The Supreme Court being aware about such unevenness and considering the public importance of the matter generally appoints amicus curiae to assist the court in an unbiased manner. However, it is too late at the final stage to tilt the version of the defence to its advantage. In the present matter also, the ami-

Dilip Kumar Barua: the quintessential teacher

■ Paresh Malakar

It is difficult to believe that Professor Dilip Kumar Barua is no more. How can he be not missed when he was so vibrant and active till the other day? His sudden and untimely death was a great loss for the entire region of North-east India. Professor Barua's death has evoked overwhelming grief in various sections of people, particularly from the younger generation. Social media like the Facebook was inundated with so many obituary notes after people came to know about his death. In recent times, we have not seen such outpouring of grief by the younger generation after the demise of any other eminent personality. The long queue of students in front of the ICU in a city private hospital, where Prof Barua was being treated, also showed how much he was admired by the younger generation.

Professor Barua retired from Cotton College nearly two decades ago. For a period, he was also its principal. But he never left teaching, or it may be said that teaching never left him. After retirement he taught in universities, colleges and occasionally even in schools.

Letters to the EDITOR

Sir – This year has been an incredible year for the North-east football. The little known Aizawl FC scripted history by becoming the first north-eastern club to win the I-League title. It was an unprecedented achievement where success has not always followed the passion for football despite budgetary challenges. The rise of Aizawl FC will mark a milestone in Indian football. Also, Shillong Lajong FC was placed fifth in the I-League standing. Besides, there is North East United FC, a number of NE players played for the cash-rich Indian Super League. Assam footballers Durga Boro and Alen Deori will feature in the upcoming ISL. Two Manipuri players of NEUFC are making waves in Indian football, after impressing football lovers in the ISL. The winners in the Santosh Trophy, a top-level national championship, Manipur (2003-03) and Mizoram (2013-14) had shown remarkable presence from the North-east. In the junior football, the North-east schools from Nagaland (9), Assam (6), Manipur

Going gaga over North-east football

(4), Meghalaya (2), Arunachal Pradesh (1) and Tripura (1) played a number of finals in the Subroto Cup tournament.

Nine-year-old Chandan Boro from Assam has been selected for six-year football training at a Bundesliga club, Bittburg, Germany. Now he is the playing captain of the young club. Come this October, it's time to watch FIFU U-17 World Cup in Guwahati. It is one of the six events ready for the big event, where 24 teams from six confederations will participate. With no big sponsor for NE players, the Government has to create infrastructure in the region. Football is emerging as an eye catcher for this region. Yours etc., KAMAL BARUAH, Rukmingan, Guwahati.

APSC delay

Sir – Propose the letter, captioned 'APSC delay' (AT, May 6), the APSC would like to clarify that the written examination for the CCE, 2015 was concluded on October 28, 2016. However, due to the ongoing investigation by the Dibrugarh police, the evaluation process could not be taken up, especially due to the sealing of the strong room. Soon after the strong room was allowed to be unsealed, necessary formalities relating to the answer scripts were started during the second week of January, 2017. In the meantime, a fresh panel of evaluators had to be prepared which took some time. The Commission, for the first time, initiated the 'in-house' evaluation system of all the answer scripts, from February 13, 2017. The process was completed in the first week of May, 2017. However, other formalities as per procedure are continuing and the Commission is taking necessary steps to declare the results as soon as possible. With the limited infrastructure for the 'in-house' evaluation system, shortage of evaluators and other administrative hurdles, etc., the Commission has tried its level best to complete the evaluation process within the shortest possible time. Yours etc., PRINCIPAL CONTROLLER OF EXAMS, APSC, Khanapara, Guwahati.

Woman of substance

Sir – Propose the letter, 'Woman of substance', (AT, May 6), I would like to say that as per information gathered, the lady in question authored a biography of freedom fighter Gaidinliu in her Liangmei Naga dialect and a book which is a collection of some rare photos from the life of Gaidinliu and her activities, titled Glimpses from the Life of Gaidinliu. She does not have a state or national level sport medal, but is a Master's degree holder in physical education from Nagpur. She teaches in a school. Encouragement and recognition given to women from the periphery areas is an appreciable initiative but, as mentioned in the aforesaid letter, many people in Nagaland are not aware of the woman in question, which speaks volume of the reality. Yours etc., RAJU KUMAR DASS, Jalgukuri, Guwahati.

Irreparable loss

Sir – Death is inevitable, but some cause irreparable loss to the entire society. Such is the death of Prof Dilip Kumar Barua. The father figure of North-east quiz was not only a great teacher but also a great human being. He devoted his life towards the uplift of students. Being the consultant-course director of PETC of Assam Administrative Staff College, he was a teacher till his last days. I consider myself blessed enough for getting an opportunity to attend his funeral service.

His Economics lectures there.

He will stay alive forever in our heart.

Yours etc., RAKESH DAS, Kahlipara, Guwahati.

Cash-for-job scam

Sir – The arrest of the three ACS officers by Dibrugarh police in the cash-for-job scam in the APSC is a welcome step. However, such steps have narrowed down the definition of corruption by leaving out those who got APSC jobs by means of their connections with political leaders, leaders of students' organizations, etc. There are a number of such persons who are currently serving as ACS, APS, etc., officers. Both the print and electronic media have unearthed the nexus of such persons with various political and student leaders who helped them in getting jobs by their links with the beleaguered APSC chairman Rakesh Kumar Paul and his associates. The investigating authority should take necessary steps in identifying such persons in job and initiate investigation in the same manner presently done in case of persons who got jobs in lieu of cash. Leaving out the latter section will leave the entire process incomplete. Yours etc., SHAILEN DATTA, Maligaon, Guwahati.

BJP gears up for autonomous council election in Karbi Anglong

CORRESPONDENT

DIPU, May 8: The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) started its campaign for the autonomous council poll in Karbi Anglong from Sunday.

It may be mentioned here that Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal and Assam Pradesh BJP president Ranjit Dass on Sunday addressed three consecutive public rallies at Baithanglang, West Karbi Anglong, Sarijan, Bokajan and Bakalaghat respectively.

While addressing the public rallies at Baithanglang, Bokajan and Bakalaghat, Chief Minister, Sonowal assured that the date of election of the autonomous council election will be declared shortly by the State Election Commission.

Meantime, replying to a question by mediapersons, Assam Pradesh president, Ranjit Dass revealed that date of autonomous council election will be declared within this week. He said that promises made by the BJP are being fulfilled. "The Government is fully committed to work on the promises made," Dass added.

It may be mentioned that Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal on Sunday formally inaugurated 200 and 100-bed hospitals at Hamren and Bokajan respectively. Besides, he laid the foundation stones of a polytechnic and science college. He also inaugurated a website of MLA, Dr Numal Moni.

and for giving him a chance to serve the people as the Chief Minister in Assam.

He said that BJP-led Government has been able to provide a corruption-free Government within 11 months of its rule. Various pro-poor development schemes have been adopted by the Central as well as the State Government.

Besides, a separate Budget has been prepared for the development of the hill districts, Sonowal said. He sought public support to form a corruption-free, strong KACAC body in the next coming days.

Meanwhile, interacting with mediapersons, Sonowal assured that the date of election of the autonomous council election will be declared shortly by the State Election Commission.

Remembering Dilip Kr Barua

Professor Dilip Kumar Barua, whose one glance at a person through his relatively thick spectacles could inspire awe and send him into a defensive posture and the very next moment disarm the person with his congenial smile, used the powerful weapon called education to overpower not just his ardent students, but also his most scathing critics, if there were any. Prof Barua didn't simply teach and impart knowledge and wisdom – he inspired everyone who came in contact. He led by example in the daily drama of life and changed the world for myriads of his students and admirers – including me.

Penning a eulogy on Prof Dilip Barua would have been much simpler if he were just a teacher par excellence. It is the multitude of facets the man possessed, the confidence he exuded in putting them to use, each one better than the other, which makes it difficult for the protagonist to keep pace with his achievements. Whether it was quiz or debate, film society or cultural forum, college admission or seminar or symposium, Prof Barua had to be there – omnipresent.

It is a universally acclaimed fact that Prof Barua was the Father of Quizzing in the northeastern part of India and remained its Patriarch till the end game. He burned midnight oil for preparing the rounds of quiz questions, took pains to spend a lot of time and emerge out of his busy schedules, but would refuse to accept anything in return. Quite often he would end up spending from his pocket for buying books, preparing audio-visual cassettes, or hiring an auto-rickshaw to go to the venue of the quiz. He would return home on most occasions with the customary gamosa around his neck. But yes – with the hard earned glory of yet another successful event – and the satisfaction of having disseminated plethora of knowledge and virtue to the student community. Those of us who followed his footsteps into the world of quiz, Prof Barua's philosophy of quiz became the unwritten law. Most quiz organisers were wont to believe that to render a quiz successful and competitive, while it was important to give away reasonable amounts as prize money, it was not necessary to offer any fees/honorarium to the Quizmaster! Two Quizmasters, including the author of this piece, who along with Prof Barua conducted most of the quizzes those days, approached him with utmost caution to discuss the issue whether it was correct on the part of the Quizmaster to refuse to accept any fees even when they were offered by corporate houses and commercial organisations, since a lot of effort went into preparing the quiz and as the fees had already been budgeted and accounted for. Prof Barua refused to budge from his stand on the ground that it was an educational activity and it was done only to help students. I gathered all my courage and suggested 1) that fees should not be accepted from educational institutions organising the quiz but 2) it should be accepted from corporates houses and commercial organisations if they offered and the amount could be dedicated to needy organisations. The announcement to this effect could be made in the same event, immediately after the fees are paid. This would provide two-fold benefits:

1) Some needy organisations like schools for blind or deaf and dumb children will be able to improve their lots and 2) it would establish a value for the Quizmaster – contrary to the belief that his effort had no worth. Prof Barua stood his ground and did not relent. Such were his convictions about a cause!

As a lifelong admirer and true follower of Prof Barua, I pray to the Almighty that his soul rests in peace. May his wife, respected Indira Barua and his two sons Arindam and Anshuman, gems in their own fields, be granted adequate strength to bear this irretrievable loss.

We don't have a Brett's Peerage in Assam, but any family who would come to me on refined aristocracy , would be Dilip Barua Sir, and hence the title Sir Dilip. I had an opportunity to be in close acquaintance with him in many avenues.

He was my teacher of monetary economics, of which he was perhaps the worst practitioner in personal life, without ever giving it the any importance, however much he may have taught us of the importance of the subject in a nation's life. A diligent teacher, he would take all pains to see whatever he taught, get into the heads of each one of us, inspire our wavering concentration as young ones just stepping into man hood. So much so, the lessons of secular unemployment equilibrium 'doesn't seem to go out of our heads' something learnt 42 years ago. The lessons came to good use all our life, even after it had found us in jobs, where one did not have to both about the future. The teaching was contextual, supported by empirical data, with reactions of different schools of thought in the matter. Sir taught us from The Economic Times and The Economist; not from dog-eared worn-out notes. We may have been students in hinterland, but we were internationally updated.

I always felt that if anyone personified precision, neatness, understatement, civility it was Dilip Barua Sir. Many may recall his small and shining Standard 20 in its green colour, silently enter the college campus, signalling the green to start the academic day. The smiling face with not a crease out of place nor a hair out of line, brightened up our day and even the most reluctant student had to beat for class. You could not let yourself down before Dilip Barua, whether you studied Economics or not.

That was personality, firm with a smile. Nothing could ruffle Sir. Pushed around between Cotton College and Administrative Staff College, he bore it with a smile. As guest lecturer in the Staff College, it was embarrassing to teach in presence of your revered teacher, but he put us at rest. He would tell my audience, that here is one who was in your place one day and like him I expect you to take his place some day. I felt proud in a measure on those days. Barua Sir made us realise that teaching was all between passion and compassion, to carry every one along.

Sir guided generations and all his students will say that if there was one teacher who touched their lives, it would be Barua Sir. We were lucky to meet him in our lifetime, but his legacy will live many lifetimes. May your life guide Assam in future as we say goodbye for now, with tears in the eyes, but pride in the heart.

Govt to unveil new IIP, WPI series on May 12

NEW DELHI, May 8: The government will release on May 12 the new series of Index of Industrial Production as well as Wholesale Price Index, with 2011-12 as the base year, so as to map economic activities more accurately.

The monthly WPI for April under the new series will be released on May 12 instead of May 15, the Commerce Ministry said in a statement.

The data for both the indices will be released at a joint press conference for the revision of base year from 2004-05 to 2011-12. It will be addressed by top brass of both the ministries – Commerce and Statistics.

A high-level panel had firmed up the methodology for the IIP with new base year of 2011-12.

The change in baseline for the IIP and WPI is expected to bring in more accuracy in mapping the level of economic activity and calculating other numbers like national accounts.

The Central Statistics Office

(CSO) has already changed the base year for the country's national accounts, including the gross domestic product (GDP) and the gross value addition (GVA).

The retail inflation based on the Consumer Price Index (CPI) is also calculated on the base year of 2011-12.

The retail inflation based on the CPI and WPI is expected to bring in more accuracy in mapping the level of economic activity and calculating other numbers like national accounts.

The Central Statistics Office

realistic data.

The base year is revised periodically to capture the changes in the structure and composition of the industry over time due to technological changes, economic reforms and consumption pattern of the people.

The IIP gives a broad outlook on output of various types of goods like basic, consumer and capital ones, which helps in gauging the level of economic progress and investments in the economy. - PTI

RBI to start picking bad loan cases for action soon: Finmin

NEW DELHI, May 8: Armed with additional legislative powers, the RBI will soon start identifying cases for resolution of non-performing assets in consultation with IBA for necessary action, a senior government official said.

The government will not get into individual cases as it has already given authorisation to the banking regulator RBI to resolve NPA cases through the ordinance passed last week, the Finance Ministry official said.

"The cases which have already been examined by the joint lenders' forum (JLF) but have not received logical conclusion after that... Such cases would be taken up by the RBI and the regulator can direct banks for resolution," the official said.

The Indian Banks' Association (IBA) and the corporate debt restructuring cell already have information about the NPA cases that have not come to fruition. The Central bank can seek such cases and pass direction to banks on specific ones, the official said, adding that the ordinance is expected to break logjam in accounts that have gone through the JLF process, but not been resolved.

The Central bank can seek such cases and pass direction to banks on specific ones, the official said, adding that the ordinance is expected to break logjam in accounts that have gone through the JLF process, but not been resolved.

Soon after the passage of the ordinance, the RBI last week made substantial changes in the norms for dealing with stressed loans and warned banks that they will be penalised for missing NPA resolution timeline.

The number of creditors by value for consent for NPA resolution has been brought down to 60 per cent from the earlier 75 per cent.

At any point, the RBI can issue more guidelines to make the process more effective, the official said, adding that haircut is a commercial decision and will be taken by banks.

However, the official said the oversight committee (OC) will be vetting the entire process of resolution so that banks get comfort as far as any future scrutiny is concerned.

The RBI may set up more such committees depending on the requirement and could preclude any sector-specific OC, the official added.

NPA, which have gone beyond the Rs 8 lakh crore mark, make the effectiveness of the resolution imperative, the official said.

Last week, the government empowered the RBI to direct banks to initiate insolvency proceedings to recover bad loans.

Finance Minister Arun Jaitley had said the ordinance gives the Reserve Bank powers to issue "directions to any banking company or banking companies to initiate insolvency resolution process in respect of default under the provisions of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC), 2016". - PTI

Maternity benefit also covers those already on leave: Govt

NEW DELHI, May 8: The Labour Ministry today clarified that the employees already on maternity leave will be eligible for enhanced paid leave under the amended Maternity Benefit Act, which came into force on April 1.

The amended Maternity Benefit Act was enforced on April 1, 2017. There was a confusion that whether the employees already on maternity leave would get the benefit under amended law or not.

"Having received further queries and after redoubts, it is further clarified that it is mandatory on the part of employers to extend the benefit of enhanced maternity leave to those women workers who were already on maternity leave on the date of enforcement of the Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Act, 2017, i.e., as on April 1, 2017," Labour Ministry said in a statement.

The amended Act requires every establishment with 50 or more employees to provide crèche facilities within a pre-specified distance.

According to the statement, the government has notified the Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Act, 2017 on March 28, 2017 and the provisions of the Amendment Act have come into force with effect from April 1, 2017, except those relating to crèche facility [Section 4(1)] which would come into force from July 1, 2017.

Explaining further, the ministry said, "Keeping in view queries received from various quarters, the ministry on April 12, 2017, had issued certain clarifications on various provisions of Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Act, 2017,

One of the clarifications issued by the ministry stated that the enhanced maternity benefit, as modified by the Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Bill, 2016, can be extended to women who are already under maternity leave at the time of enforcement of this Amendment Act. - PTI

"Over the past five years, we've not only become the fastest growing car brand in the country but also the fastest in dealership addition.

We closed 2016 with 270 dealers, adding almost 70 over 2015 and will be opening 50 more to take our brand presence to 320 by end-December," Renault India chief executive Sumit Sawhney told PTI today from his Chennai headquarters.

He said Renault has achieved these gains despite having just three models or serving only under 30 per cent of this market. Its models are the runaway success Kwid, the made-in-and-made-for-India small car, the compact SUV Duster and the MPV Lodgy.

The company has discontinued all its CKD units – the small car Klose and the sedan Scala two years ago.

Of the 1,32,235 units it sold in 2016, a growth of 146 per cent over 2015, the Kwid launched in 2016 is the biggest gainer with 75 per cent of the volume followed by the Duster with around 20 per cent and the Lodgy contributing the rest, he said.

India to grow at 7.5% next year on higher infra spending: UN report

NEW DELHI, May 8: The Indian economy will grow at 7.5 per cent next year by virtue of consumption revival and higher infrastructure spending, says a report by the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP).

For 2017, India's economic growth is projected stable at 7.1 per cent before catapulting to 7.5 per cent going into the next year, the regional development arm of the United Nations said.

This forecast is "underpinned by higher private and public consumption and increased infrastructural spending," the report said.

The International Monetary Fund last month projected the India's growth at 7.2 per cent in the fiscal 2017-18 and at 7.7 per cent for the next financial year.

While the Manila-headquartered Asian Development Bank sees the growth jumping to 7.4 per cent in 2017-18 and 7.6 per cent in the next.

Even at this rate, India will continue to clock a better growth than China, which is expected to grow at around 6.5 per cent in 2017.

"Meanwhile, inflation is projected to reach 5.3-5.5 per cent in 2017-18, which is some what above the official target of 4.5-5 per cent," the ESCAP said.

A heightened financial sector risk emanates from concentration of huge pile of sore assets sitting on the books of public sector banks, it added.

These banks' gross non-performing assets as percentage of a bankruptcy law and opening up of pharmaceuticals, defence and civil aviation sectors will help India in its economic growth, the report said. - PTI

Drive tests to check call drops likely from this month

NEW DELHI, May 8: Telecom regulator TRAI is likely to resume from this month its independent drive tests to check call drops and service quality of operators, after a gap of more than five months.

"Independent drive tests are going to begin. Actually, there was some gap (problem) which has been removed... They should start probably from this month on," TRAI Chairman RS Sharma told PTI.

While the telecom operators submit performance monitoring reports to the Telecom Regulator Authority of India (TRAI) regularly, the regulator also undertakes audit and assessment of service quality through independent agencies.

The agencies conduct sample 'drive tests' across various cities in the country, as part of audit and assessment of the operators' performance.

The independent drive tests are distinct from operator-assisted tests, Sharma said.

"We were doing drive tests in 11-12 cities, we will be doing it in more cities (this time). This will be different from the operator-assisted tests," he added.

The operator-assisted drive test captures real-time data to monitor the level of call drops and voice quality, similar to TRAI's independent drive tests. - PTI

Indians make 50 mn minutes of WhatsApp video calls daily

NEW DELHI, May 8: Indians make 50 million minutes of video calls daily via WhatsApp, the highest compared to users in any other part of the globe.

WhatsApp, a popular messaging app that competes with the likes of Google's Allo and Viber in India, started offering video calling feature in November last year.

The video calling feature also pitched WhatsApp against popular video calling apps like Microsoft's Skype, Apple's FaceTime and Google Duo.

Since then, it has seen a steady growth in usage. One of the driving factors has been falling data prices and free promotional data by newcomer, Reliance Jio.

As per data shared by WhatsApp, India is the top country for video calling minutes with over 50 million video calling minutes per day.

Globally, users make over 55 million video calls per day, spending more than 340 million minutes per day on these calls.

WhatsApp has been working on solutions to enable businesses to use its platform to connect with consumers and India, it says, will play a "crucial role" for the product. - PTI

Cleaning ears with cotton buds may do more harm than good, warn researchers

Beware of cotton buds use!

Using cotton buds to clean ears may seem harmless, but they have the potential to cause minor to severe injury to the ear, researchers have warned.

"The two biggest misconceptions I hear as an otolaryngologist are that the ear canals need to be cleaned in the home setting, and that cotton tip applicators should be used to clean them; both of those are incorrect," said Kris Jatana of the Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio, US.

A study conducted by Nationwide Children's Hospital researchers found that over a 21-year period from 1990 through 2010, an estimated 263,000 children younger than 18 years of age were treated in US hospital emergency departments for cotton tip applicator-related ear injuries—that is about 12,500 annually, or about 34 injuries every day.

"The ear canals are usually self-cleaning. Using cotton tip applicators to clean the ear canal not only pushes wax closer to the ear drum, but there is a significant risk of causing minor to severe injury to the ear," Jatana, who is senior author of the study published in the Journal of Pediatrics, said.

The study found that the majority of injuries occurred as a result of using cotton tip applicators to clean the ears (73 per cent), playing with cotton tip applicators (10 per cent), or children falling when they have cotton tip applicators in their ear (nine per cent).

The most common injuries were foreign body sensation, perforated ear drum and soft tissue injury.

Data for this study were obtained from the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS), which is operated by the US Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The researchers said that in more serious cases, damage to the ear drum, hearing bones, or inner ear, can lead to dizziness, problems with balance, and irreversible hearing loss.

"These products may seem harmless, but this study shows how important it is that they not be used to clean ears," Jatana, who also serves as Associate Professor at the Ohio State University Wexner Medical Centre, said. —IANS

Know your DAY

By JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, May 9, 2017.

This year others challenge you in a positive way. You could be overwhelmed by how different your life seems to be. You won't fight personal growth; instead, you'll embrace it. As a result, you feel more connected to those in your life. If you're single, the challenges you face in relationships could be very different from whom you choose to be with for months from now. You won't make any commitments unless you are absolutely sure this person is right for you. If you are attached, the two of you seem happy doing more together. Be willing to grow as a couple. SCORPIO can only be somewhat withdrawn.

The Start Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-

Average; 2-Content; 2-Relaxed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Your financial resilience helps you move what many people would consider an immovable obstacle out of the way. It might be close to impossible to explain to others what made the difference, but you'll still try. Tonight: Respond to a loved one's request.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)  You'll witness a loved one develop an intensity that is quite unique. Open up to new possibilities by letting go of some your preconceived ideas. Be willing to get into a brainstorming session. You'll identify with others as a result. Tonight: Send thought invitations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Your focus to get done what you must will depend a lot on whether you and a partner can see eye to eye. Open up to new possibilities, and you might find it to be a very dynamic experience. Opt to take a risk and follow a different path. Tonight: Put up your feet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  Defer to others as you might like to see a different situation emerge. Your creativity blossoms when having a conversation with a loved one. Let your mind wander. Free association can be powerful in a sense. It will renew your energy. Tonight: Be a bit more playful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Though you might attempt to follow your route, you are likely to be distracted by thoughts about a domestic matter. You understand that adjustments need to happen, whether they involve your home or your relationship with a loved one. Tonight: Play it low key for now.

LIBRA (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  You'll hear a lot of opinions, and people are likely to be reactive. You can be found shaking your head several times today. Be gracious and let others figure out where they are coming from. Tonight: Meet a friend or two for dinner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You might not be sure whether you are willing to take a risk that could have a big impact on your domestic life. Listen and be more aware of where you are coming from in your decisions. A conversation with a loved one could become quite difficult. Do not overreact. Tonight: Out and about.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  You are fully up and ready to go. Funnel your energy into key conversations. A conversation could make a big difference in how you feel about your life. Stay open and exchange ideas with this person. Do not depend on anyone else. Tonight: Meet up with a loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  You might sense that something is going on behind the scenes. You also might not be sure how to proceed. If you are low and keep your antennae up, you are likely to hear some information that could be helpful. Tonight: Focus on facts, no snap judgments.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Reach out to someone whom you feel the need to speak with. You could find that your opinions about key people in your life are rapidly changing. Understand what is going on with a group of friends who seem to be acting strange all of a sudden. Tonight: Go for what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  You could be faced by a personal master that keeps your head spinning. You might feel that the situation is likely to reflect your professional standing in some way. Try to resolve the issue as quickly yet effectively. Be aware of your natural limits. Tonight: A must appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  To create more of what you want, you will need to detach and take an overview. If you do, you will see a different path to the same results. Be willing to change direction if you see an alternative idea that also might be more workable. Tonight: Hang out with friends.

Thought for the day

The only journey is the one within.

Macron sweeps French presidency

PARIS, May 8: Pro-European centrist Emmanuel Macron promised on Sunday to heal France's divisions after crushing far-right leader Marine Le Pen in a pivotal presidential election that has given him a large but fragile mandate for change.

At 39, the pro-EU former investment banker will become France's youngest-ever leader but will face a huge challenge to enact his programme while trying to unite a fractured and demoralised country.

"I will fight with all my strength against the divisions that are undermining us," Macron said in a solemn address at his campaign headquarters, adding that he had seen the "anger, anxiety and doubts" of many voters.

The vicious election campaign exposed deep economic and social divisions in France, as well as tensions provoked by identity and immigration.

Initial estimates showed Macron winning between 65 per cent and 66.1 per cent of the ballots in the first ever election he has contested, far ahead of Le Pen on 33.9 per cent and 35 per cent.

"He's a symbol of hope," said Jean-Luc Songa, 36. "It's like Obama eight years ago. It's you, it's hope."

Vast crowds of jubilant Macron supporters celebrated outside the Louvre Museum in Paris, waving French flags.

Europe's most powerful leaders, bringing with him a hugely ambitious agenda of political and economic reform for France and the European Union.

The result will resonate worldwide and particularly in Brussels and Berlin where leaders will breathe a sigh of relief that Le Pen's anti-EU, anti-globalisation programme has been defeated.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel's spokesman said it was a "victory for a strong and united Europe", while EU Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker said French voters had chosen a "European future."

The euro rose against the dollar in Asian trade and other financial markets are expected to react positively to the news.

After Britain's vote last year to leave the EU and Donald Trump's victory in the US, the French election had been widely watched as a test of how high a tide of right-wing nationalism would rise. — AFP

Was 'forced to marry' Pakistani man at gunpoint

ISLAMABAD, May 8: A 20-year-old Indian woman, who approached the Indian High Commission here with a request to repatriate her, today alleged that she was forced to marry a Pakistani citizen on gunpoint, marking a new turn in the case.

Uzma filed a plea with an Islamabad court against her husband Tahir Ali alleging that she was being harassed and intimidated by him. She also recorded her statement before a magistrate.

Alleging that she was forced to marry Ali on gunpoint, she said: "My immigration documents were snatched", Geo News reported.

Uzma said she does not want to leave the Indian High Commission premises till she could safely travel back to India.

According to reports, Uzma's husband met her in the High Commission this morning but he was not present in the court.

The Pakistani High Commission in New Delhi said that the immigration documents state that Uzma obtained the visa under the visit category.

Pakistani authorities have said that the Indian citizen did not share her plans to marry in Pakistan when she applied for the visa and expressed her intent to visit her relatives in Pakistan. — PTI

Plot reveals US-sponsored terrorism: N Korea

TOKYO, May 8: After arresting two American university instructors and laying out what it says was an elaborate, CIA-backed plot to assassinate Kim Jong Un, North Korea is claiming to be the victim of state-sponsored terrorism from the White House.

The assertion comes as the US is considering putting the North back on its list of terror sponsors. But the vitriolic outrage over the alleged plan to assassinate Kim last month is also being doled out with an unusually big dollop of retaliation threats, raising a familiar question: What on Earth is going on in Pyongyang?

North Korea's state-run media announced today that an ethnic Korean man with US citizenship was "intercepted" two days ago by authorities for unspecified hostile acts against the country. He was identified as Kim Hak Song, an employee of the Pyongyang

University of Science and Technology.

That came just days after the North announced the detention of an accounting instructor at the same university, Kim Sang Dok, also a US citizen, for "acts of hostility aimed to overturn" the country. PUST is North Korea's only privately funded university and has a large number of foreign teachers, including Americans.

What, if anything, the arrests have to do with the alleged plot is unknown. But they bring to four the number of US citizens now known to be in custody in the North.

ISIS leader in Afghanistan killed

KABUL, May 8: The head of ISIS in Afghanistan - believed to be the mastermind behind several high-profile attacks including an assault on a military hospital that claimed at least 50 lives - has been killed, US and Afghan officials said.

Abdul Hasib, whose group is affiliated with ISIS in Iraq and Syria, was killed last month in a targeted raid by special forces in the eastern province of Nangarhar, the presidential palace in Kabul said in a statement.

"He had ordered the attack on a 400-bed hospital in Kabul that resulted in the death and injuries of a number of our countrymen, women," it said.

"The Afghan government is committed to continuing its operations against Daesh and other terrorist groups until they are annihilated," it added, using another name for IS, which is also referred to as ISIS.

NATO commander in Afghanistan General John Nicholson confirmed the killing of Hasib and warned that "any ISIS member that comes to Afghanistan will meet the same fate."

First emerging in 2015, ISIS' local affiliate in Afghanistan overran large parts of Nangarhar and Kunar provinces, near the Pakistan border, but their part in the Afghan conflict had been largely overshadowed by the operations against the Taliban.

The group has claimed responsibility for a series of bloody attacks, including an audacious assault on Afghanistan's largest military hospital in March, when gunmen dressed as doctors stormed the heavily guarded facility and threw grenades into crowded wards. — AP

UK Queen responds to birthday invite by Indian-origin boy

LONDON, May 8: British Queen Elizabeth II responded to a letter written by an Indian-origin boy inviting her to his fifth birthday party as he felt she was like a "real superhero", according to media reports.

Shaun Duly, four, was planning a party for his birthday on June 25 and asked his mother Baljinder to arrange a meeting with 91-year-old Queen so that she can arrange a trip to his home in Sandwell, West Midlands in England.

When his mother told him the Queen might be busy at the Buckingham Palace, Shaan, suggested: "Maybe she can come instead," the metro.co.uk reported.

"He had been learning about history at school and that the Queen was the longest reigning monarch – things like how she was when she first started. He came Queen in the world. I really like your crown and the red cloak you wear; it's like a superhero."

He then requests her attendance at his party before adding: "I need to talk to you about horses, planes and the poor children". But after writing the invite on March 13 the boy had begun to lose hope when a letter with the Royal seal arrived on May 3.

The letter on behalf of the Queen reads: "Although unable to accept your invitation to come to your house for tea because of her very busy schedule, the Queen greatly appreciated your kind thought for her and Her Majesty was pleased to learn that you too like horses. — PTI

What world leaders say about Macron's victory

PARIS, May 8: Pro-EU centrist Emmanuel Macron stormed to victory in the French presidential election, roundly defeating his far-right rival Marine Le Pen in a run-off vote.

Here is a selection of comments from world leaders and other political heavyweights on Macron's election victory.

"Congratulations," Emmanuel Macron, "Your victory is a victory for a strong and united Europe and for French-German friendship," said German Chancellor Angela Merkel's spokesman.

Russian President Vladimir Putin urged Macron to bridge deep rifts between Moscow and Paris and work together to fight the threat of terror.

"The citizens of France entrusted you to lead the country in a difficult period for Europe and for the entire world community. The growing threat of terrorism and violent extremism is accompanied by an escalation of local conflicts and the destabilisation of entire regions," Putin said in a congratulatory telegram released by the Kremlin.

"In these conditions it is especially important to overcome mutual distrust and join forces to ensure international stability and security."

"The (British) Prime Minister warmly congratulates President-elect Macron on his election success. France is one of our closest allies and we look forward to working with the new President on a wide range of shared priorities," said a Downing Street spokesman in London. — AFP

Arsenal beat Manchester United, Liverpool reclaim third place

LONDON, May 8: Arsenal scored twice in three minutes through a deflected Granit Xhaka strike and Danny Welbeck's header to claim a deserved 2-0 win over Manchester United while Liverpool were held to a goalless draw at home by Southampton on Sunday.

Quick-fire second-half goals by Xhaka and United old boy Welbeck at the Emirates Stadium condemned the visitors to their first defeat in 26 league games, since a 4-0 thrashing at Chelsea on October 23.

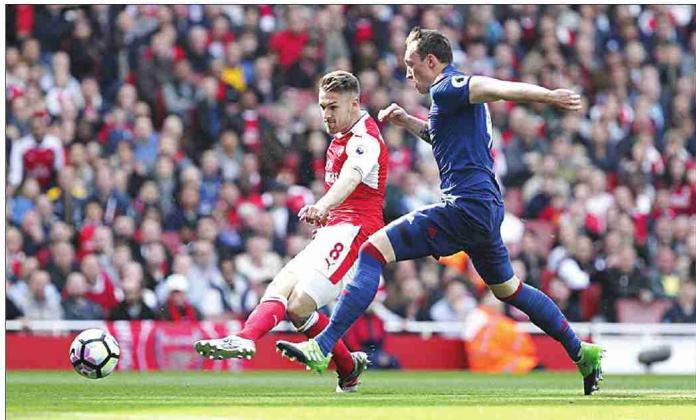

Arsenal remain sixth, six points behind Manchester City, who occupy the fourth and final Champions League berth, but they are now just two points below fifth-place United and retain games in hand on both Manchester teams.

Arsene Wenger overcame Jose Mourinho's Chelsea in the 2015 Community Shield, but this was the first time he had got the better of his old foe with league points at stake.

"Hopefully this result will give us confidence," said man-of-the-match Aaron Ramsey. "I said a couple of weeks ago we had to win every match and unfortunately we didn't do that against Tottenham (in a 2-0 loss last weekend). But we will see."

While the odds remain stacked against Arsenal, they will approach their final four matches with hope that they may yet squeeze into the Champions League for the 20th season running.

For United, the Europa League now looks even more like their best hope of securing Champions

Aaron Ramsey (L) of Arsenal passes the ball during the Premier League match against Manchester United at the Emirates Stadium in London, on Sunday. Arsenal won 2-0.

FIFA finances 'extremely solid', says Infantino been trying to write or to say, 'FIFA's finances are extremely solid,'" Infantino told delegates in a short address.

He added that it was normal for FIFA to make losses for three years and then "make revenue" during the fourth financial year, when a World Cup takes place.

"That's how the business model is conducted," he continued.

"We don't need to tell you other stories, we don't need to make our figures artificial (or) look better by some accounting measures."

"The situation is that the finances of FIFA are extremely solid."

MANAMA, May 8: FIFA president Gianni Infantino claimed today that the finances of football's governing body were "extremely solid", despite a reported $369 million loss earlier this year.

Speaking at the Asian Football Confederation's congress in Bahrain, Infantino said the losses were in line with FIFA's "business model" and there was no need for it to give "artificial" figures.

KKR seek top-2 finish in match against KXIP

MOHALI, May 8: Having sealed a play-offs spot after a resounding victory in their previous match, Kolkata Knight Riders would aim for a top-two finish with a win when they take on an inconsistent Kings XI Punjab in an IPL match here tomorrow.

KKR bounced back from their back-to-back defeats when they registered an easy six-wicket win over Royal Challengers Bangalore in Bengaluru yesterday.

The Gautam Gambhir-led side are now at second spot in the league table with 16 points from 12 matches with a win of eight wins and they would look to consolidate their position with a win over Kings XI, who suffered a six-wicket defeat to Guwahati Lions last night.

KKR showed that they are one of the strongest teams in this IPL, when they inflicted a humiliating defeat on bottom placed RCB.

Chasing a modest 159 for victory yesterday, KKR made it easy, racing to 105 for no loss in just six overs, for a record IPL powerplay total.

They achieved the target with 29 balls to spare on the back of Sunil Narine's (54 off 17 balls) record joint-fastest IPL fifty and an equally aggressive knock from Chris Lynn (60 off 22 balls).

After the match, Gambhir said that 105 in six overs was unbelievable and it was the best performance he had seen in his entire career.

Gambhir, however, need to watch out as they have been cashing in on the hit-and-miss experiment of using Narine at the top. When Narine gets going, there are no stopping him as more often than not Gambhir and Robin Uthappa have capitalised on the solid starts given by the West Indian.

Narine has come out as an opener in nine matches out of KKR's 12 so far and he has scored 194 runs. His other batsmen, including Colin de Grandhomme, Manish Pandey and Yusuf Pathan will also have to come good tomorrow.

Unmesh Yadav, Chris Woakes and Narine will be the main bowlers on whom KKR will mainly bank upon with Ankit Rooprai and Piyush Chawla also having the ability to support them.

Glenn Maxwell-led KXIP on the other hand, have a slender chance to make it to the play-offs as they have only five wins from 11 matches and are placed at the fifth spot with 10 points.

They now need to find a way to make it to the knockout stage. — PTI

MATCH STARTS AT 8PM

Bairstow 'tough to leave out': England boss Bayliss

LONDON, May 8: England coach Trevor Bayliss admitted he faced some difficult selection decisions ahead of next month's Champions Trophy after the tournament hosts launched their preparations with a 2-0 series win at home to Ireland.

Test wicket-keeper Jonny Bairstow, deployed as a specialist batsman, made a blistering 72 not out as England beat Ireland by 85 runs in the second one-day international at Lord's on Sunday.

England were in danger of falling short of 300 until Bairstow, ably assisted by Yorkshire colleague Adil Rashid (39) led a charge that saw 61 runs scored in the final 10 overs of a three-hour battle of 328 for 328.

Sam Billings took the gloves in both Sunday's match and England's seven-wicket win over Ireland in Bristol on Friday in place of Jos Buttler, one of several England white-ball "regulars" who missed the series because of their Indian Premier League commitments.

But Buttler, along with all-rounders Ben Stokes and Chris Woakes will be back from the IPL when England continue their Champions Trophy build-up with a three-match campaign at home to South Africa later this month.

"We know there are stern tests coming up, with South Africa in a couple of weeks' time and then the Champions Trophy coming up after that, but we have won well and can't do anything more than that. I think there's probably not a lot between these keepers but the amount of runs Jonny scored, it'd be hard to leave him out," said Australian coach Bayliss. — AFP

Sharapova sets up Bouchard grudge match

MADRID, May 8: Maria Sharapova set up a mouth-watering second-round clash with Eugenie Bouchard at the Madrid Open after battling back from a set down to defeat Mirjana Lucic-Baroni 4-6, 6-4, 6-0 on Sunday.

Canadian Bouchard called Sharapova "a cheater" prior to the Russian's return to competitive action in April after a 15-month doping ban.

In October 2016, the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS) Sharapova was not an "intentional doper".

Bouchard had said she would have "a bit more motivation" against her former idol Sharapova after registering a first win on the WTA Tour since January against Alize Cornet on Saturday to set up the match.

"My tennis speaks for itself, and that's what I focus on," said Sharapova, 30, whose 10-month ban return after her ban has gone down hard with some of her fellow players.

"I love being quiet about it and letting everyone around speak or have the noise noise."

Despite the controversy surrounding the decision to hand her a wildcard, Sharapova was given a warm reception by the sparse crowd on the main Manolo Santana court in the Spanish capital.

"There's kind of an eeriness about the tournament," added Sharapova. "You know the VIP tents are full, but then the courts don't always get the spectators in from the beginning of the match."

After reaching the semifinals on her return from her doping ban last week in Stuttgart, Sharapova showed impressive levels of fitness to dig deep after a tough couple of opening sets against World No. 20 Lucie-Baroni.

There were four breaks of serve in the opening six games, but Lucic-Baroni was good value for her lead when she served to take the first set.

Maria Sharapova celebrates her victory over Mirjana Lucic-Baroni at the Madrid Open, on Sunday.

IOC heads to LA as 2024 race heats up

LOS ANGELES, May 8: The race for the right to stage the 2024 Olympics heads into the home straight this week as a team of International Olympic Committee delegates arrives in Los Angeles to inspect the city's bid for the Games.

Paris co-chairman Tony Estanguet said in March it was "now or never" for 2024 and that the French capital would "not come back for 2028."

Los Angeles counterpart Casey Wasserman stopped short of issuing an ultimatum, but maintained that the city remain focused only on 2024.

"No one's a candidate for 2028. I think that's a hypothetical and it's not worth discussing," Wasserman told AFP in a recent interview.

The refusal of Los Angeles and Paris to blink first over 2028 raises the stakes for the visits of the IOC Evaluation Commission to both cities.

Publicly, however, neither Los Angeles nor Paris bid officials have been willing to entertain the possibility of accepting 2028 hosting rights as a consolation prize for missing out on 2024.

The refusal of Los Angeles and Paris to blink first over 2028 raises the stakes for the visits of the IOC Evaluation Commission to both cities.

Los Angeles 2024 officials will spend this week aiming to demonstrate to visiting IOC delegates, who arrive on Tuesday, why the gleaming Californian metropolis is the right city at the right time.

The historic Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum – the centrepiece of the 1932 and 1984 Olympics – will once again feature prominently, revived by a multi-million-dollar makeover that is already underway.

The Coliseum will feature an innovative opening ceremony shared with the glittering $2.4 billion stadium being built on Hollywood Park as the home of the National Football League's Los Angeles Rams, due to open in 2019.

The Olympic athletes village – once a big-ticket construction project in the past – will be based on recently renovated facilities on the leafy campus of UCLA, which is presently home to some 14,000 students.

Front and centre of the city's bid is the fact that a 2024 Games in Los Angeles would require no new venue construction, with events held in an array of existing arenas or stadiums that are already under construction.

recent round-table briefing, in which he spoke of a "very clear line in the sand" between Los Angeles and Paris.

"Los Angeles is a bid that can uniquely connect the Olympic Games with the future," he said. "And the reason we can say that and the reason we can absolutely do that is because we've got universal public support and we've got all of our facilities that exist today."

"And if you take those two things, as risks, off the table, what you can actually do is focus on serving the Olympic movement for seven years. No other city can say that."

One potential hurdle for LA 2024 officials to overcome this week as they seek to impress IOC officials is the age-old problem of traffic congestion, a perennial complaint amongst often-gridlocked Angelenos.

Wasserman is adamant, however, that there will be no rigging of traffic lights to ease the passage of the IOC delegation as it traverses the city this week. — AFP

NEW DELHI, May 8: Defending champions India today opted for the tried and tested in their Champions Trophy squad with the fit-again Rohit Sharma and Mohammed Shami returning to the side.

Karnataka batsman Manish Pandey pipped young chinaman Kuldeep Yadav as the 15th member of the touring side.

Rohit, who has recovered from a thigh injury, made a comeback as selectors gave due weightage to his round the year performance. Shami is making a comeback to the 50-over squad having last played an ODI during 2015 World Cup semifinal.

Overall, the selection panel, headed by MSK Prasad, kept faith in the squad which defeated England in a home series earlier this year.

India will play their opening match of the Champions Trophy, to be held in England, against arch-rivals Pakistan on June 4. The event itself will get underway on June 1.

SQUAD

Virat Kohli (captain), Shikhar Dhawan, Rohit Sharma, Ajinkya Rahane, Yuvraj Singh, Mahendra Singh Dhoni (wk), Kedar Jadhav, Manish Pandey, Hardik Pandya, Ravichandran Ashwin, Ravindra Jadeja, Jasprit Bumrah, Umesh Yadav, Mohammad Shami, Bhuvneshwar Kumar. Stand-by: Kuldeep Yadav, Rishabh Pant, Dinesh Karthik, Shardul Thakur, Suresh Raina. Administrative manager: Kapil Malhotra (Cricket Club of India).

Pandey has made it as an extra batsman in the squad to be led by Virat Kohli. Prasad said the selectors seriously considered Kuldeep Yadav too before he was put on the standby list.

"We definitely considered the name of Kuldeep. He would have been a surprise package but whether we would have played with two spinners is a question. Since

Yuvraj (Singh) and Kedar (Jadhav) can bowl spin, he narrowly missed out," Prasad explained after the selection committee meeting here.

Some of the other names that were discussed seriously were keeper-batsman Rishabh Pant, Dinesh Karthik, Shardul Thakur and Suresh Raina. Along with Kuldeep, these four are also on the standby list.

Prasad made it clear that even though IPL is a premier domestic tournament, the performance of players in the event can't be the sole criteria for selecting a squad for a 50-over tournament. - PTI
