STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, Aug 8: A number of districts, mostly those in lower Assam, are facing a drought-like situation even as flood waters in some areas of the State are yet to recede completely.

The State Agriculture department has sought a report from the districts regarding the prevailing situation.

According to the report received from Baksa, around officer today told The Assam Tribune that a drought report has been received from Baksa, while district officers in the State, particularly those in Mangaldoi, Nalbari, Kamrup, Chirang, etc., which have been reportedly hit due to scanty rainfall and high temperatures, have been asked to conduct surveys and report to the government on the situation.

Sources said the government has directed the engineering wing of the Agriculture Department to install tube wells and other irrigation fa-

14,673.76 hectares of cropland in 302 villages have been affected by the drought-like situation. The number of farmer families affected stands at 4,820 till August 2.

Salti paddy and vegetable cultivation have been hit by the drought-like situation.

Sources said the government has directed the engineering wing of the Agriculture Department to install tube wells and other irrigation facilities in the affected areas immediately.

Situation: On the contrary, in the flood-hit districts, around 6,250 hectares of cropland have been affected by heavy siltation.

In most cases it is due to the breaches in the embankments. The silt and mud carried by the flood waters have settled on the croplands as the flood waters are receding.

Sources revealed that the visits of Indian delegations to China and vice versa are also going on. Talks between India and China are going on at various levels and only recently, the National Security Adviser had tail-end talked with the Chinese President. "We can't divulge the details of the talks at this moment, but it is a fact that discussions are going on at various levels and all possible channels of communication are kept open. The Government of India firmly believes that the issue can be resolved through talks," sources added and said that sources said that the trade between India and China has also not been affected because of the stand-off and India is not considering suspension of such ties at this moment. In fact, China would lose more if the trade ties are suspended at this moment because China's exports to India are four times higher than India's exports to China, sources said.

The Government of India is also of the view that the stand-off is the result of the petition which also sought a direction to declare the Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir as 'void', 'illegal' and 'unlawful' of the Constitution of India. The bench asked the government to reply within four weeks.

In her petition, Kumari Vijayalakshmi Jha claimed that the high court had dismissed her plea by "wrongly following and misreading" the earlier judgement of the apex court. She had contended that Article 370 was a temporary provision that had lapsed with the dissolution of the state's Constituent Assembly in 1957. — PTI

HPC revival package under consideration

SPL CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI, Aug 8: A proposal for revival of the Hindustan Paper Corporation (HPC) has been received and is under consideration of the Department of Heavy Industry. The proposal also includes budgetary support for payment of salaries of the employees of its units — Cachar Paper Mill and Nagaon Paper Mill.

Due to shortage of working capital, the production in Cachar Paper Mill at Panchgram and Nagaon Paper Mill at Jagiroad has been suspended since October 2015 and March 2017 respectively. Minister of State for Heavy Industries Balbir Singh today told the Rajya Sabha that salaries have not been paid for the last eight months at Nagaon Paper Mill and ten months at Cachar Paper Mill. However, there is no confirmation regarding suicide by employees due to non-payment of salaries, the minister said, adding, the HPC has demanded a revival package for its units — Nagaon Paper Mill and Cachar Paper Mill.

Meanwhile, the Joint Action Committee of Recognised Unions of Cachar and Nagaon Paper Mills has called for revival of the mills. A delegation of the committee, which is camping here, urged the Centre for immediate revival of the two mills and payment of salaries and statutory dues.

National problem tag for floods unlikely

SPL CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI, Aug 8: The Centre has stopped short of declaring floods as a national problem stating that it can best be described as "calamity of severe nature".

The government has adjudged flood as a calamity of 'severe nature' in terms of operational guidelines of 2015-16 for constitution and administration of the National Disaster Response Fund (NDRF).

HC gives Govt month's time to evict Amchang settlers

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, Aug 8: The State government has been granted a month's time by the Gauhati High Court to evict encroachers from the Amchang Wildlife Sanctuary.

The government had sought the time through an additional affidavit filed on July 18 last.

In the hearing held on August 2, a bench of Chief Justice Ajit Singh and Justice Manjiri Bhuyan granted the time to evict the encroachers.

"We hope and trust that within this period the encroachers will be removed by the authorities concerned," the court said, listing the case for next hearing on September 4.

A survey conducted in the sanctuary by the Forest Department has detected some 1,000 families who had settled in the protected area illegally. It is learnt that in some portions, the encroachers do not allow the surveyors to enter. Thus, it is assumed, that the number of encroachers could be much more.

The Gauhati High Court had in 2013 taken up a suo moto PIL over the encroachments inside the sanctuary.

The sanctuary, spread over an area 78.64 sq km, is located on the eastern fringe of Guwahati city.

Amitting large-scale encroachment in the sanctuary, Forest Minister Pramila Rani Barhma had, a few days back, indicated that a 'force' was out to thwart the measures taken to preserve the protected area.

She had said that the encroachers had even prevented the Forest Department from undertaking a plantation drive in the sanctuary.

The Forest Department has sought help from the Power Department to disconnect the lines providing electricity to the settlers inside the forest area before the eviction can be carried out. It has also sought adequate police protection for the operation.

The eviction has been delayed due to the rains, a Forest official said.

'Young brigade carrying forward Assamese poetry'

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, Aug 8: "Poems can express certain things and tell certain tales that even stories and novels cannot express. In poetry, the length does not matter, but the content and the message greatly do. During an analysis of the contemporary Assamese poetry, it can be safely asserted that our poets have always strived to maintain a healthy flow and have been able to find a direction to maintain that flow in future as well."

Critic and educationist Dr Bibhash Choudhury made this positive analysis of the trend of contemporary Assamese poetry while delivering the Chandra Prasad Saikia Memorial Lecture at the Kamalabari Barua Auditorium of the Assam State Museum today.

The lecture is organised annually on issues of literary importance in memory of literary stalwart CP Saikia, who was the founder editor of monthly literary magazine Garyoshi.

Speaking on modern Assamese poetry, specifically in the context of the 21st century, Dr Choudhury said that, inspired by poems like Nilamani Phukan and Hiren Bhattacharya, the young brigade of Assamese poets has continued a healthy trend in Assamese poetry.

poetry in Assam," he said.

Outlining the incorporation of modernism in Assamese poetry, he said along with memories and discourses, an intellectual and modern outlook has also found space in Assamese poems. "We speak of modern characteristics of Kunal Dutta's poems rich with visual imagery or we can look at the works of Bijoy Shankar Barman and Sameer Tanu who make the strange look familiar through their poems," he said, further lauding Assamese poetry for not giving emphasis on propagandist style, which finds much space in the West and even in Indian poetry to some extent.

Eminent litterateur and editor of Garyoshi Lakshmi Nandan Bora in his presidential remarks also praised Assamese poetry for setting examples of high standards even in the national arena.

Reminiscing about CP Saikia, Dr Bora said that as a successful editor of Garyoshi, he inspired and sometimes also compelled the writers to produce quality work. "Garyoshi was like an obsession of his life and he made every attempt to maintain its standard, a legacy, which we are honour-bound to carry forward," he said.

The programme started with a soulful rendition of Dr Bhupen Hazarika's song Monhe Manohor Bade by Kamal Kataki and Asha Kataki. Floral tributes were paid to CP Saikia by his fans and admirers including his two daughters and other family members, director of The Assam Tribune Group of Publications Baita Rajkhowa, senior journalist JP Saikia and several other prominent persons from the cultural and literary fields.

The welcome speech was delivered by journalist Ankur Deka. An interactive session was also organised at the end of the session.

USHAKANTI DAS

In modern India, most of the metropolitan cities and the towns face the problem of traffic jam. The problem is aggravating due to rise in number of vehicles throughout the country. Every day, thousands of vehicles are being added to the city streets, which is not only contributing to the traffic jam problem, but also polluting the environment to a great extent.

In a fast growing city like Guwahati, which is also the gateway to the North East, the problem of traffic jam has become a serious issue and the situation is going from bad to worse with every passing day. Despite being well aware of the problem, the State Government has so far failed to put in place any scientific mechanism to deal with the problem. Some of the facilities available in the city to facilitate smooth movement of traffic are not at all sufficient to handle the situation.

The traffic jam problem has become very acute in the city also because of rampant encroachment of footpath by hawkers, unauthorised parking and reckless driving, especially by the city bus drivers. And all these are happening right under the nose of the authorities concerned. Jumping red lights, overtaking and other forms of violation of traffic rules have become very common in the city. It seems the people of Guwahati have no respect for traffic rules. All these lead to traffic congestion and accidents, and the problem gets worsened due to lack of coordinated and scientific management in place.

There are about 3,600 roads in the city, including by-lanes, and more than one lakh vehicles ply on these roads on a daly basis. The city traffic police are left with no other options, but to deal with this enormous traffic with its limited manpower and resources.

Moreover, majority of drivers of city buses, trekkers and trucks are unskilled and they do not know the 'ABC' of traffic signals and other traffic rules and regulations. The city roads are replete with speed-breakers and road dividers without any fluorescent marking, turning these into deathtraps during the night.

It can also be seen that most of the city bus drivers indulge in competition on roads to pick up passengers. Such unwanted competition among bus drivers, over taking each other to reach bus stops earlier and recklessly driving have added to the woes of common people while travelling on the city roads. Halting of six/seven buses in the same spot in the same time other factor contributing to slow movement of traffic in many areas.

To avoid traffic congestion

(1) Funds for different mega projects should be mobilised and for the proper implementation of the same, the GMDA, the GMC, the traffic police, the district administration, the planners and the developers should put their heads together.

(2) The Department of Transport, the traffic police and the PWD should jointly look after different aspects of road safety in the city.

(3) Whoever drives a motor vehicle or a city bus at a speed exceeding a prescribed limit should be punished with fine.

Topsy drivers should also be brought to book with exemplary punishment.

(4) There should be strict restriction on haphazard parking of heavy vehicles, city buses and private cars on busy roads of the city.

(5) Unskilled drivers should not be allowed to drive on

MESSAGE FOR TODAY

I don't dream at night, I dream all day; I dream for a living.

The Assam Tribune

Disturbing trend

Placing party bosses even when it means going out of one's way comes naturally to Indian politicians. The country's post-independence history is replete with myriad manifestations of this sycophantic trend, especially during the long rule of the Congress. Normally, politicians take recourse to flattery to be in the good book of their superiors and to rise in party hierarchy. But things acquire far more sinister implications when the flattering involves matters of vital public interest. The utterances by Assam Education Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma who recently announced that four new colleges in the State would be set up in the name of BJP ideologue Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya needs to be assessed in this light. Not only does the minister's statement smack of a brazen bid to please his masters at Delhi and Nagpur (the second and unconstitutional power centre that headquarters the RSS), it rides complete roughshod over the long-term interests of the State and its populace concerning their history, heritage and identity. We certainly have no dearth of luminaries who have placed Assamese language, literature and culture on a robust pedestal through their seminal contributions. Ignoring these sons of the soil just to placate one's political masters is preposterous and unpardonable. Some would argue that just as we have institutions named after members of the Nehru-Gandhi family, there should be no harm in having institutions after BJP-RSS doyens. This is flawed logic, as Jawaharlal Nehru, Indira Gandhi and Rajiv Gandhi were former Prime Ministers and among popular leaders of the country. This, though, is not to distract from the fact that we have far more number of institutions in their names than is necessary. In contrast, Upadhyaya was an RSS ideologue and no national figure, and having institutions in his name in Assam makes no sense.

But even more than the sycophany of an individual who has been acting as more loyal than the king himself after switching over to the saffron brigade, the developments lay bare once again the BJP-RSS' single-minded pursuit of their one-dimensional cultural agenda across the nation. This is dangerous for a plural entity like India where followers of myriad faiths have been living in peaceful coexistence for centuries. Such ideological invasion to establish the dominance of what the ruling regime regards as Indian culture and nationalism is bound to be catastrophic for the nation's peace and stability. There has already been a lot of rewriting of history and textbooks at the behest of the ruling dispensation. It also needs to be recalled that the BJP came to power in Assam by pledging to protect the identity and cultures of the indigenous people. But disturbingly, what the Government is doing is just the opposite. Recent government announcements like grants for RSS-run high schools, imposition of Sanskrit in schools, a university in the name of controversial god-man Krishna Guru, etc., besides an overdose of government-sponsored religious fests are a definite pointer to this uncalled-for trend. Assam has its fair share of pressing concerns including developmental constraints, and the Government has an abiding responsibility to direct its energy and resources to addressing those.

Handloom sector

Handloom has been an integral part of the country's culture since time immemorial. Rural households in the North-east are just incomplete with a handloom. But this important sector has not been accorded the importance which it so rightly deserves. Over 14 lakh people of Assam are associated with the handloom sector while the State itself has a textile market of Rs 5000 crore. With intricate designs, colours and motifs, the handloom products of the State have carved a special niche for itself. However, what has of late emerged as a matter of serious concern is that the indigenous handloom products of the State are facing threats from the products rolled out from the power loom industries of other States. Copying the traditional designs and colours, the outside mills are flooding the State with their products and worse selling it at cheaper rates. For the local weavers, it has become quite impossible to compete with the outside mills. If this trend were allowed to be carried on, it would become almost impossible for the local weavers to carry on with the age-old practice.

The handloom sector plays an important role in Assam's economy. It is high time the Government came forward with a series of comprehensive measures to ensure the survival of the handloom sector. Steps should be initiated to get the textile designs which are unique to the State patented. Apart from taking a series of protective steps, the Government should also initiate measures to modernize and revitalize this important sector, which for long was running on its own steam. High quality yarn at affordable price needs to be supplied to the weavers as the quality of yarns has always been a problem. Proper training facilities to weavers are a must as it would not only help in enhancing their skills but also help them to be aware about the latest advancements taking place in the textile sector. It would in turn help in making the traditional handloom products trendy and attractive. In this context the proposal to set up a National Institute of Fashion Technology in Guwahati will be a step in the right direction. The Government agencies should also come forward and assist the weavers in establishing proper market linkages so that they need not depend on the long chain of intermediaries to sell their produce. It is hoped that the new handloom and textile policy which is being formulated will go a long way in promoting this important sector of the State. It would be very sad if the Government fails to protect and promote the handloom sector of the State, which are something much more than a mere economic activity.

Gender bias in traditional self-governance

■ Chitrakha Baruah

Panchayati Raj was Mahatma Gandhi's dream of decentralized power for facilitating democracy in the true sense through the empowerment of grassroots leadership. Presently, the Panchayati Raj as a three-tier mechanism of local self-governance is much acclaimed and is often associated with remarks like "it is the retention of the old traditional judiciary of the country". But, the idea that the new Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRI) are a replica of the traditional panchayats is not correct. There has been gossip over the effective participation of the elected women members in the governance. It is commendable that civil society organizations as well as the Government have taken care to empower the elected women members of the panchayats, e.g., the kshetra panchayats that were prevalent in many parts of north India, more particularly in Haryana. Those were mostly governed by the powerful male members from the dominant group or caste where women and the so-called lower castes did not have any say. On the other hand the new Panchayati Act of 1993 formulated as a follow-up to the 73rd amendment of 1992 of the Indian Constitution has offered a formal recognition to women's direct participation in the Indian polity in addition to the reservations for the backward communities. Elections to the panchayats every five years have become mandatory. Now no candidate can be directly selected to the panchayat, which was a measure to keep aside the supremacy of the so-called upper castes, which has been a dominating force most of the time in anything related to power.

The Constitution has directed to have not less than 33% reservation of seats in the PRIs for women while the reservations for the scheduled communities are to be in proportion to the percentage of their population in a given constituency. However, Assam (in 2012) and many other States have already sanctioned 50% reservation for women in all seats of the PRIs. There have been much review and reconstruction of the old system to reach this level. This is another example of diplomatically restricting women from one public activity, i.e., decision making, which involves power and, on the other hand, encouraging them to act equally with men in another public activity, i.e., to execute the men's order even if the act is criminal in nature.

Each and every tribal community in the North-east has its own local judiciary. In the community meetings conducted by most of such bodies in Assam, women are allowed to sit as spectators, but are hardly allowed to speak. The kangaroo court is very common here too, particularly among communities where witchcraft beliefs prevail. Usually, the woman accused as a witch is prosecuted, asked to hold a flaming wick of lamp in hand, sit on a spiked stool, swallow a full betel nut and if she still remains normal and stable, she would be declared as innocent, which is a rarest of the rare case. All these are operated in the all-male kangaroo courts, held in the 12th hour of night where no woman, other than the victim, is allowed to be even a bystander. Paradoxically, after the prosecution, the women are considered equal to men as perpetrators in the act of mob violence against the victim, e.g., beating, lynching, stripping, forcibly feeding human excreta, etc., which may eventually lead to her death. This is another example of diplomatically restricting women from one public activity, i.e., decision making, which involves power and, on the other hand, encouraging them to act equally with men in another public activity, i.e., to execute the men's order even if the act is criminal in nature.

In Assam while most areas are covered by panchayats, many hills and plains tribal areas of the State are governed by autonomous councils. There are three autonomous district councils set up under the Sixth Schedule of the Constitution and six statutory autonomous councils created as per the Assam State Act. The purpose of autonomy to these areas is having a special administrative set-up in which tribal people can maintain their tribal identity without any coercion or exploitation. These areas have complete freedom to allow village-level bodies to run according to customary laws. Because, it was observed by various committees of the Government prior to the birth of the Sixth Schedule that among the tribes of the North-east, there were traditional self-governing institutions that functioned democratically and settled issues according to their lifestyle. But there is nearly non-representation or very few representations of women in these traditional bodies as well as in the autonomous councils since there are no compulsory reservations in them. If democracy is decentralization of power, there should be sufficient representation of women in the traditional local governance as well, because women constitute roughly the half of any population anywhere. Some of the communities would say that they also have women bodies at the grassroots level separately. But this again exemplifies women's exclusion from the mainstream mechanism of self-governance.

Terrorism and the Chinese angle

■ Dr Sriparna Pathak

The scourge of terrorism has emerged as an international problem, severely impacting global politics. Long gone are the days when security could be viewed in traditional state centric terms. Global networks of terror operating through mediums encompassing communication tools which were intended to further usher the forces of globalization as the ugly reality of the 21st century. A report released by the US State Department in July this year reveals that India has displaced Pakistan on a list of countries facing terror attacks in 2016, with higher fatalities and injuries than its 'hostile' neighbour. As stated by the report, out of the 11,072 terror attacks in 2016 carried out by India, bore the brunt of 927, 16% more than 2015, the number of which stood at 798. More than half of the terror attacks in the country in 2016 took place in four States – J&K, Chhattisgarh, Manipur and Jharkhand. The geographical areas show left-wing extremism led by Maoists also contributed to terror incidents in parts of east India.

While relatively extensive coverage and analysis of terrorism in J&K is to be found in primary as well as secondary sources, given the constant threat and aid to terrorism from neighbouring Pakistan, terrorism in Northeast India receives relatively lower attention, despite the fact that support from groups operating across international boundaries is a fact. Since the report mentions Manipur, a closer look at the international actors aiding terrorism in not just Manipur, but the north-eastern region of India in general becomes essential.

In June 2017 itself, two discrete events took place, which have a common linkage in terms of ammunition and training. One was the police and the Special Forces (SF)-10 encounter with the Gorkha National Liberation Army (GNLA) in West Khasi Hills, leaving two causalities dead and where a Chinese rifle and one SFMBL gun were recovered. The second was the bust of an illegal gun manufacturing unit in Langol Game Village in Manipur. From the unit, along with the guns, 97 demand letters of the 'Terrorist Revolutionary Army', and a few more intriguing articles were recovered. In 2015, days after a terrorist attack in Manipur in which 18 Indian soldiers were martyred, the Indian intelligence agencies stated that they suspected a Chinese angle. As per news reports citing a senior government official, NSCN-Khaplang abrogated its ceasefire pact with the Centre following instructions from the Chinese People's Liberation Army. It is already common knowledge that Khaplang when he was alive and Parash Baruah of ULFA often shuttled between Taga in Myanmar and Ruiu in China – and are in regular touch with Chinese officials. It was reported in 2015 that the Chinese intelligence played "an active role" in assisting nine North-east Indian insurgent groups to form a united front. The illicit flow of Chinese arms to India, including to Maoists, was confirmed by Home Secretary G.K. Pillai in 2010.

The question that arises here is what exactly does China gain by aiding these groups? The fact that India and China do not share amicable relations does not need elaboration. The further souring resulting in the current Doklam stand-off just adds to the long list of conflicts simmering between the two, ranging from China blocking India's entry to the Nuclear Suppliers Group, the bid for a permanent seat at the United Nations Security Council and blocking Indian attempts at listing Masood Azhar as an international terrorist. Aiding terrorism helps China as well as Pakistan in waging proxy wars in India. While Pakistan has already been aiding it for ages at the cost of its own Uighurs have joined the Islamic front, the Chinese support in the north-eastern region ensures a two-front theatre of proxy wars for India. Due to the insurgency situation, North-east India continues to be on the boil, resulting in a large amount of forces being engaged in counter-insurgency operations – thus diverting the Indian army from their conventional role of securing the borders. The interesting part in the usage of terrorism as a tool by China as well as by Pakistan is that it is a 21st century adaptation of Kautilya's Mandalika theory – the 'ari' (enemy) is clearly a 'mitra' (friend) for China, and China has been using policies of vigraha (war), yana (preparation) and dvoidhibhava (double dealing) in the context of India – using a new tool – i.e., of terrorism.

This however does not imply that China does not have its own woes emanating from what China sees as terrorism. Between 2013 and 2014, Beijing, Kunming and Urumqi were the targets of major and extremely violent terrorist attacks. In less than eight months, 72 people died and 356 were injured in separate attacks using suicide car bombs, bladed weapons, and/or explosives. Additionally, the Chinese officials have said in recent months that at least 300 ethnic Uighurs have joined the Islamic State in Iraq and Syria. According to the Chinese officials, several militants returning from the ISIS war zone were arrested in Xinjiang in March 2015. At the same time, the Xinjiang party chief officially stated that China had become an ISIS target after several appeals from the ISIS leaders for Chinese Muslims to pledge allegiance to the organization. The region from where the threat for China emerges is bordering Pakistan, as a result of which Pakistan is the only 'friend' that it needs to counter the ever challenging threat of terrorism. However, using the same threat to weaken India which definitely is not a friend is also a preferred option.

In the course of further deterioration of the Sino-Indian relations as already visible from the Doklam stand-off, this tool will only be further used by China, so that India is kept occupied on all fronts and lacks further preparedness for a conventional war. It is therefore essential that while India increases its preparedness for conventional war, as revealed by the various statements from the Indian military in the backdrop of the Doklam stand-off, India also needs to increase its attention to the unconventional proxy wars that will further unfold in the north-eastern region.

Pensioners' plight and State Govt role payment of pension to the State Government employees considering the bitter experience faced by State Government employees in getting pension after retirement.

We should thank Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal and Himanta Biswa Sarma (who is presently holding the Ministry of Pension) for initiating many measures for early settlement of pension. But a lot many works are yet to be done in this respect. It is learnt that there is shortage of staff and arrangements are being made by deputing extra personnel to clear the pending works. I strongly urge the State Government to keep up the good work so that the remaining reform works of the pension department can be completed. It is very much painful when employees are run from pillar to post to get their pension after retirement. Yours etc., SUMAN DEY, Rubber Bagan, Tezpur.

Cotton University

Sir – With reference to the news item 'No need to visit bank to start pension' (AT, August 7), I would like to write a few lines. In September, 2014, the Central Government notified new pension rules to check delays and harassment of pensioners in granting pension. As per the new rules, a head of office is responsible for any failure to ascertain non-qualifying service period and will have to undertake preparation of paper work one year before an employee is due to retire. And as per the recent report, that Central Government employees need not visit bank to start pension and accordingly, all ministries/departments were directed to strictly follow the procedure and hand over the copy of Pension Payment Order (PPO) and other relevant dues at the time of retirement. These are very welcome move by the Central Government.

After coming to power in Assam, the BJP Government has taken many steps regarding early repeat/betterment result of the Cotton University UG 6th semester. The University has not declared the result till date, for which the students have been deprived of occupying their deserving seats in various universities for higher studies. Moreover, Cotton University itself has declared its date of admission for PG courses, i.e., August 10, 2017.

Now the most important question is who will take the responsibility of those students of the university who had appeared for arrear/repeat/betterment examination in the final semester? Who is to be blamed for such an irresponsible action? Are the students responsible? Is it the outcome of transforming a heritage college into a university? Yours etc., RUMI SHARMA, Dergaon.

Organ donation

Sir – I sincerely appreciate your efforts for trying to popularize organ donation after death by writing two editorials in your esteemed newspaper in recent times. Without the cooperation and support of both print and electronic media, this movement cannot be taken forward. I hope that the Government of Assam will also initiate suitable measures through Regional Organ and Tissue Transplant Organization (ROTO) and State Organ and Tissue Transplant Organization (SOTTO), an initiative by the Central Government, to start the deceased donor organ transplantation programme in the region at the earliest so that precious human lives can be saved. Yours etc., DR SARBESWAR SAHARIAH, Juhili Hills, Hyderabad.

Woes of poor students

Sir – Through your daily, I want to draw the attention of the Government of Assam, especially the Education Minister, to the fact that the private BEd colleges have opened shops for admission into the two-year BEd course. There is no limit to the admission fee. If the admission fee in some colleges is Rs 90,000, in some other colleges, it is Rs 1.5 lakh. Earlier it was a one-year course and the cost is not more than Rs 50,000. Now BEd is mandatory for teaching and for a student coming from a poor family, how is it possible for him to achieve the degree if he has to cough up this amount of money only as admission fee? Why has the Government not interfered in this matter? I feel the Government should increase the seat capacity in the Government-run Bed colleges? Yours etc., GIRISH KR DEKA, Mangaldoi Chapai.

Paper mill closure

Sir – The report of closure of the Cachar and Jagrerdia paper mills and subsequent financial hardships faced by their employees is really heart breaking. However, the bitter fact is that the employees of such business entities have to transform their thoughts from that of being merely a salaried employee to that of a business leader. In order to secure a constant earning, they not only have to sustain production, but have to expand their business. Nurturing the age-old mindset of a salaried employee would not help in sustenance in today's competitive world. The Government, however, needs to sort out the emergent situation on humanitarian ground. Yours etc., MRITYUNJOY KHOUND, Numaligarh.

Jorhat BJP slams Forest Dept over illegal sand mining

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

JORHAT, Aug 8: The Bharatiya Janata Party's district unit on Monday slammed the Forest Department for reportedly allowing a sand-mining racket to operate on the Bhogdoi river bed under Mariani range of the department within Jorhat district near the famous Hollongapara Gibbon Wildlife Sanctuary.

The sanctuary, which is named after the Gibbon ape, has several endangered species of primates, apart from a wide range of birds, elephants, deer, leopards, snakes and insects.

The BJP also came down heavily on the department for not closing down the forest check gate at New Sonowal area along the Assam-Nagaland border in Mariani after the State Government ordered closure of all kinds of check gates across the August 1.

The BJP's Jorhat unit president Santanu Pujari, while addressing newsmen here on Monday, targeted the Forest Department for turning a blind eye to complaints lodged by local people about illegal sand mining on the Bhogdoi river bed near the wildlife sanctuary.

Pujari said, while suspecting a strong well-oiled nexus between a section of forest staff and officials with the racket, said carrying out such illegal activity was not only a crime, but was a big environmental threat to one and all. He said as per a court directive, the Government has prohibited sand mining on the Bhogdoi river bed where the racket was operating.

The ruling party leader alleged that as per information received by the party unit from the area, the illegal mining was taking place at Katambari area.

"Due to such kind of performance (read non-performance) by a section of Forest Department staff bringing bad name to the Government.... as our party-led Government, which is committed to transparent and corruption-free governance, the image will be tarnished if punitive action is not taken to stop the crime," Pujari said.

He said that the Jorhat unit of BJP has submitted a memorandum to Jorhat Deputy Commissioner Virendra Mittal mentioning about the illegal sand mining activity and also functioning of the forest check gate at New Sonowal where the mining was illegally carried out by the department from vehicles coming to Assam from Nagaland and vice versa despite the Government closing down all kinds of check gates from August 1.

Pujari, while urging the DC to take suitable action to stop the illegal activities, said action should also be initiated against any staff or official, if found involved in such activities.

He said the party unit will apprise the State leadership and also the higher authorities of the Government in this regard.

Pujari informed that another memorandum had also been submitted to the DC seeking a probe by a group of experts into the dredging work carried out in Muojan stream of Teok river under Teok Assembly constituency with funds worth Rs 4.33 crores under the 2011-12 State Budget as there were a lot of complaints against the quality of work executed. Additionally, the dredging had absolutely no impact on mitigation of floods.

On resignation of Jorhat Municipal Board chairperson Aruna Dutta, Pujari said by the end of this week the party will select a new chairperson.

The 19 ward members comprising JMB is run by the BJP having a strength of 11, and with the rest by the Congress.

On the other hand, JMB vice-chairman Anup Ghosh Dasdastidar is officiating as JMB chairman till a new chairperson is elected.

Puffed rice laced with urea in Dhubri dist

CORRESPONDENT

GAURIPUR, Aug 8: Almost all members of the poor and lower income group families are in the habit of eating puffed rice (muri) daily in almost all towns and villages of Dhubri district. Specifically during the time of fasting during Ramadan, the members of the Muslim community take puffed rice to break the fast in the evenings, not knowing that unscrupulous traders adulterate it, making it a health hazard.

To increase the size of the puffed rice and to make it more white, those who make the muri, adulterate it with urea purchased from fertiliser shops. They put the rice in a big pot of water and urea. Within a very short span of time, the rice becomes soft and big in size. Medical experts are of the opinion that consumption of such adulterated puffed rice may cause kidney and liver problems besides affecting blood circulation. Food Inspectors are said to be reluctant to look into the dangerous phenomenon in places like Sagratgram, Bhalisapura etc., where large-scale production of puffed rice is reported.

'Online travel agents liable to deduct 1% TCS'

NEW DELHI, Aug 8: Travel agents providing online ticketing and other services will be liable to deduct 1 per cent tax at source under the GST regime as they have been classified as e-commerce operators, the CBEC said today.

Under the goods and services tax (GST) regime, an e-commerce operator is required to collect 1 per cent of the net value of taxable supplies made through it. The amount so collected is called tax collected at source (TCS) but this provision has been kept in abeyance for the time being. Online travel agents have been classified as e-commerce operators (ECO) and so they have to deduct TCS. The Central Board of Excise and Customs (CBEC), in a fresh set of frequently asked questions (FAQs), said the TCS requirement would not apply to someone selling own products through a website. Only applicable GST for the goods would be levied in that case. - PTI

Aiming for all-electric car fleet by 2030: Goyal

NEW DELHI, Aug 8: Union Power Minister Piyush Goyal today said the world is moving towards electric vehicles and the government is working on a roadmap to ensure all-electric car fleet in the country.

The minister further said that although hybrid cars have cut down the fuel consumption a little bit, India will promote electric vehicles because it is the future.

However, he admitted that it may take a little longer to replace existing petrol and diesel vehicles in the country. "Only electric car by 2030...

is not the future, the future is all-electric cars."

Talking about lobbying for hybrid cars he said, "It is a campaign being run by those companies who don't have electric vehicles. These companies have come to me also to convince not to oppose hybrid cars.

Ideas move comes after the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) and exchanges have their conditional nod to the proposed $23-billion merger deal that would create the country's largest telecom operator.

On certain coal mines being shut down, he said, "I have informed the House (Parliament) that it is not advisable for an intermediate technology which reduces the fuel consumption by a little bit but oth-

Action video games may affect memory and increase Alzheimer's risk, say researchers

Beware of action video games!

Is your teenaged son addicted to playing action video games? Beware, it can reduce episodic memory and spatial navigation, and increase the risk of developing brain disorders such as depression, schizophrenia, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease, researchers have warned.

The findings showed that habitual players of action video games had reduction in grey matter in the hippocampus – a key brain area for memory.

This challenged the previously held notion that it may boost power, reduce stress and aid in improving symptoms of depression, the researchers said.

"Video games have been shown to benefit certain cognitive systems in the brain, mainly related to visual attention and short-term memory," said lead author Greg West, associate professor at University of Montreal (UdeM) in Canada.

Further, the study showed that instead of the hippocampus, 85 per cent of players tend to increasingly make use of another part of the brain called the striatum to navigate their way through a game.

Striatum has an area known as the caudate nucleus that acts as a kind of "autopilot" and "reward system" and also helps us form habits and remember how to do things like ride a bicycle.

However, the more the players use the caudate nucleus, the less they use the hippocampus, and as a result the hippocampus loses cells and atrophies, the researchers rued, in the paper detailed in the journal Molecular Psychiatry.

"If action video games lead to decreases in grey matter in the hippocampus (of young adults), caution should be exerted when encouraging their use... (by) children, young adults and older adults to promote cognitive skills such as visual short-term memory and visual attention," West suggested.

According to the study, patients with Parkinson's disease combined with dementia, as well as those with Alzheimer's disease, schizophrenia, depression or PTSD – all of whom have less grey matter in their hippocampus – should not be advised to (follow) action video game treatments. – IANS

Know your DAY

By JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Aug. 9, 2017:

This year you will make a difference, no matter what project is on your mind. The unexpected takes a bigger role and often adds some confusion to your year. If you are single, you could meet someone enchanting. This person could appear at any time, and you will know when you see him or her. If you are attached, your significant other is a cheetahish in your identity. Think of you are likely to strengthen your bond as a result. PISCES can be spiritual yet win when tricked by you.

The Stars Show: This kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Aries (March 21-April 19) You might wake up with the best of intentions, but confusion somehow permeates the day if you maintain a sense of humor, others could see you smile your way through any obstacle that emerges. Don't lose focus of your objective. Tonight: Say little, and be a better listener.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You are on the right path to long-term objectives. Though you might have difficulty verbalizing what you want, you won't lose focus of your long-term goals. A hand could help you achieve much more of what you want, as long as you are willing to share more. Tonight: Wish for the fun. The fun is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) You would like to take another look at your long-term goals. You could feel it is difficult to fulfill your objectives with so much vagueness involved. A misunderstanding is likely to throw you off your game. Try to ask pertinent questions. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) You are having trouble getting too caught up in the moment and what is happening. Confusion surrounds a personal matter or a discussion. You could feel as if one is really listening to you. You could have difficulty focusing. Tonight: Reach out to a dear friend at a distance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could create a haze around him or herself. Know that the person is not being intentionally evasive or vague; he or she might be dealing with a situation that is causing her or him to be emotionally unavailable. Pull back for now. Tonight: Connect with a dear friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You could be more connected to others than you have been in a while. As a result, despite an inspring sense of confusion, you find the right path to achieve your goals. Let a resounding dividne and become less important. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Your creativity emerges when dealing with a new friend. You might feel as if you have the ability to work through almost any problem. You could feel torn between a loving one and visiting with a friend. Tonight: Be the one and let the other decide. Tonight: Happiest at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You might have decided to veer in a new direction, but sometimes you keep getting tripped up over last-minute details. You will be happiest in the long run once you finally connect with a child or loved one. Listen to news about your family. Tonight: Happiness is the theme.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have the ability to soothe others' moods and make them feel better. You might decide to cocoon at home if you feel as if you don't want to share as much with others. In any case, no matter how you get there, the results will be excellent. Tonight: Live it up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be aware of your budget. You easily could go overboard and create more stress for yourself. You know what you want, and could become very attached to a person who is important to you. Recognize that you are not the most possessive. Tonight: Treat a friend to dinner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You are personality plus. Listen to your sixth sense when following through on a key matter. You might see a big difference in what goes on if you don't allow yourself to be distracted. Remain an observer rather than try to be a player. Tonight: Dance the night away!

Thought for the day:
I've been drunk for about a week now, and I thought it might sober me up to sit in a library.

NEW INDIA MOVEMENT (2017-2022)

NEW INDIA PLEDGE

Let us together pledge for a New India.

In 1942, our freedom fighters had taken a pledge of ‘Quit India’ and in 1947, India achieved independence.

Come, let us together pledge for building a New India by 2022.

Let us together pledge towards a Clean India.

Let us together pledge towards a Poverty-free India.

Let us together pledge towards a Corruption-free India.

Let us together pledge towards a Terrorism-free India.

Let us together pledge towards a Communalism-free India.

Let us together pledge towards a Casteism-free India.

Let us all strive in spirit and soul to accomplish this pledge for building a New India.

“ Quit India was a landmark movement in our history. Inspired by Mahatma Gandhi’s clarion call of ‘Do or Die’, people across India actively pledged to devote themselves for India’s freedom.

Today, on the 75th anniversary of the Quit India Movement, we salute all those who took part in it.

Let us pledge to work shoulder to shoulder and dedicate ourselves towards creating a ‘New India’ that would make our freedom fighters proud. **”

Jamaica overcome the hurdles, finally snatch gold

LONDON, Aug 8: The tune blaring across the stadium sound system was unmistakable "Jammin'" by Bob Marley. The flag the winner paraded around the track was familiar, too. The black, green and gold cross of Jamaica.

The 110-metre hurdler Omar McLeod was at the centre of this celebration on Monday, all that big a surprise. That McLeod was the first from the island to do the honours at this year's world championships still feels like something of a shock.

The 23-year-old from Kingston did what Usain Bolt and Elaine Thompson could not the previous nights in the 100 metres – namely, powered toward the finish line and left the field behind to bring a gold medal home to a country that has come to expect nothing less.

"It took upon myself to route that and bring that spark back," said McLeod, who adds this gold medal to his Olympic title from last year. "I'm happy I did that."

McLeod won in 13.04 seconds, while the world-record holder, American Aries Merritt, finished fifth. It marked the first disappointment of the meet for the US. On a straightaway where Justin Gatlin and Tori Bowie won the 100 and Christian Coleman finished second to Gatlin and one spot ahead of Bolt.

The US got shut out of the medals in the 110 hurdles for the first time since the world championships were first contested in 1983. That, plus the unlikely notion of McLeod, not Bolt, breaking the ice at the top of the podium for Jamaica were Exhibits 1 and 1a of why they run the races.

"Everyone in the hurdling game is hurdling well," said Merritt, who was competing in his first major competition since a kidney transplant after the 2015 worlds. "The event is much deeper than it has been in a long time."

Sergey Shubenkov of Russia finished .1 seconds behind McLeod for the silver medal, though that prize will go in nobody's column.

Shubenkov came in as the defending world champion, but was not able to compete at the Olympics last year because of the doping scandal that has engulfed his country. He is one of 19 Russians cleared to compete in London this year as his anti-doping regimen was judged to be robust enough to return to competition.

But with Russia's track federation still suspended, all 19 of the Russians competing as neutrals.

The IAAF is looking to reinstate an overturned ban on Semenya, claiming her higher-than-normal testosterone levels give her an unfair advantage over the other women. It's an issue playing out in hearing rooms, and it could be resolved by next year.

Pressed, as she often is in these circumstances, about a case that has been in the headlines for nearly a decade, she said she was unconcerned.

"It's their business, not mine," she said. "As a human, you get to a point where you just focus on you... Such situations are a waste of time for me. I can't really put my mind on them."

Semenya was wrapping up her race at about the same time news started circulating about a stomach bug that hit several athletes competing in London.

Among those affected was Isaac Makwala of Botswana, who pulled out of the 200-metre heats earlier in the day and could be compromised for the 400-metre final on Tuesday, where he was expected to challenge defending champion Wayde van Niekerk of South Africa.

Asked about the illness, the hurdlers knew nothing of it.

"This is my first time hearing about it," McLeod said. But how's this for breaking news: McLeod, who has previously cracked the 10-second barrier in the 100 metres, said he would be available later this week to run on the Jamaican 4x100 relay team, where Bolt will return to make his final bid for gold.

They may take him up on that. Then again, he's done a lot already. – AP

Food poisoning takes Makwala out of 200-metres

LONDON, Aug 8: Several athletes have come down with a stomach bug at the world championships, including medal favourite Israc Makwala of Botswana.

Makwala pulled out of his 200-metres heat on Monday and later said he had food poisoning.

"There have been a number of cases of gastritis reported by team members residing within one of the official team hotels," the local organising committee said in a statement, putting a dampener on the 10-day event. "Those affected have been supported by both team and LOC medical staff."

Makwala wrote on his Facebook page that other athletes were also hit by the bug.

Makwala was expected to be the main challenger to Wayde van Niekerk in both the 200 and the 400.

"Let's hope they will allow me to run my final," Makwala wrote.

Van Niekerk certainly wasn't affected by the bug. He easily qualified for the semifinals of the 200 and is the favourite for gold in Usain Bolt's absence.

Although Van Niekerk has a strong chance for double gold, South African teammate Semenya missed out on one yesterday, finishing with bronze in the 1,500 metres.

Semenya had the speed, but it too failed to challenge for the title. She was in 10th place in the 12-woman final going into the last lap and fought back to medal behind Faith Kipyegon of Kenya and Jenny Simpson of the United States.

"A lot cannot go wrong if a final, so to come out with a bronze is amazing," Semenya said. – AP

LONDON, Aug 8: As always, Castren Semenya is focused on racing, not regulations.

And she has some big goals, too. The South African plans to be around for a while, and maybe dominate the 1,500 metres the way she has the 800.

Nirmala finishes among bottom heap with below-par performance

LONDON, Aug 8: Nirmala Sheoran produced a forgettable performance in the women's 400m semifinals to finish among the bottom trio as India's disappointing show in the World Athletics Championships continued on the fourth day today.

The 22-year-old Nirmala clocked 53.07 seconds, well below her season's as well as personal best of 51.28, as she finished seventh in semifinals heat number two and 22nd overall out of total 24 competitors at the Olympic Stadium here.

Top two from each of the three semifinals and two fastest finishers from the remaining runners qualify for the final.

Bahrain's Salwa Eid Naser led the field going in the final with a 50.08 seconds effort while defending champion and Rio Olympics silver medallist Allyson Felix clocked the second fastest in 50.12.

The Haryana girl Nirmala, who ran at lane number 3, had an outside chance to reach the finals but the least she could have attempted was to do better than her personal best but she was out of sorts as soon as she came off the blocks. She could not even come near her heats performance of 52.01 seconds – the same timing she had clocked while winning the Asian Championships in Bhubaneswar last month.

"It was not a good race today. Yesterday, I had a good race. I could not recover properly after yesterday's race. I have problems with the food here and I don't have a personal coach," she told PTI after her race.

"My target here was to do better than my personal best. But I could not do that without a personal coach. For an athlete in such a big event, a personal coach is very important. It is difficult without a personal coach," she added. – PTI Nirmala had yesterday finished fourth in her heat to qualify for the semifinals. She had taken the last spot among the six best finishers outside the automatic qualifiers.

Ali bowls England to South Africa series win

MANCHESTER, Aug 8: Moeen Ali finished a brilliant campaign with a five-wicket haul as England beat South Africa by 177 runs in the fourth Test at Old Trafford yesterday to seal a 3-1 series win.

Victory, achieved with more than a day to spare, also saw Joe Root triumph in his first Test series as England captain.

South Africa, set a huge 380 for victory, were bowled out for 202 shortly after tea on the fourth day when Ali took two wickets in two balls to remove Morne Morkel and Duanne Olivier.

That gave the off-spinner a return of five for 69 in 19.5 overs and 25 wickets in total in a series where he also scored 252 runs.

"This series I have felt more consistent with bat and ball, especially ball. I felt good rhythm after the first game. I contributed with the bat a couple of times," Alt told BBC Radio's Test Match Special.

"In general, I'm very pleased," the 30-year-old Worcestershire all-rounder added.

This result meant England had won their first home Test series against South Africa since 1998.

If was also just South Africa's second defeat in 20 away Test series, their overseas campaign reverse in that sequence coming against India in 2015/16.

England players celebrate after winning the fourth Test match to clinch the Test series 3-1 against South Africa at Old Trafford in Manchester, on Monday.

Jadeja pips Shakib to top spot in all-rounders' list

DUBAI, Aug 8: India's Ravindra Jadeja today edged out Bangladesh's Shakib Al Hasan to claim the top-ranked among all-rounders apart from maintaining pole position in the bowlers' chart in the latest ICC rankings.

Jadeja currently has 438 points among the all-rounders while Shakib has 431 points.

Cheteshwar Pujara (888 points) gained a place to be third among batsmen while Virat Kohli (813 points) maintained his fifth position.

Steve Smith and Joe Root are still No. 1 and 2 respectively in the list of batsmen.

The significant gainer is

"I'm very pleased, a fantastic effort," said an elated Root.

"We knew the target was a lot of runs and we set off brilliantly with the new ball."

South Africa, 43 for three at lunch, saw Hashim

Amla (83) and captain Faf du Plessis (61) put on 123 for the fourth wicket after James Anderson, bowing from the newly-named James Anderson End of his Lancashire home ground, and Stuart Broad had made early inroads.

All then took three wickets for five runs in 11 balls – including the prize scalp of Amla as the Proteas collapsed from 163 for three to 173 for six.

It's either Jayant or Axar as Kuldeep's cover for 3rd Test

NEW DELHI, Aug 8: Left-arm spinner Axar Patel or off-spinner Jayant Yadav could be summoned as the 15th member of the Indian team due to Ravindra Jadeja's suspension from the third Test against Sri Lanka, starting August 12.

While Kuldeep is a certainty in the playing XI for the final Test match, the team management wants to keep a cover for the young chinaman bowler.

Chairman of selectors MSK Prasad is currently in Pakistan for the third Test and is expected to take a call after discussions with coach Ravi Shastri and captain Virat Kohli.

Axar is currently in South Africa, where he is playing the tri-national one day series of the A teams.

"If one looks at how the selectors have gone about their job, the four premier Test matches during the tour have been between Axar, Kuldeep, Jayant and Kuldeep. While Kuldeep is ahead in picking order, if selectors follow the pattern, then Jayant can also be summoned," the official said.

Jadeja," a BCCI official, who can't be officially quoted, told PTI today.

However Jayant can't be ruled out altogether as he was the part of the Test squad when India last played a Test series against Australia, earlier this year.

Jayant was selected for the South Africa A tour but currently is in India as he recently lost his father.

Gibson coach talk encourages du Plessis

MANCHESTER, Aug 8: South Africa captain Faf du Plessis has liked what he's heard about potential new Proteas head coach Ottis Gibson.

The current England bowling coach Gibson has been tipped to succeed Russell Domingo, whose contract with Cricket South Africa expired after the end of a tour that finished with a 3-1 series defeat following England's 177-run win in the fourth Test at Old Trafford on Monday.

"I have asked the England team for their thoughts on Ottis, and they've given me positive feedback," du Plessis told reporters after a reverse that completed a tough tour for South Africa, who also suffered one-day and Twenty20 series losses to England, as well as a disappointing first-round exit in the Champions Trophy.

"I only found out from you guys (the press) – that's the first we'd heard of it," said Bayliss of British media reports linking Gibson with the South Africa post. "There's nothing been finalised yet."

The Australian added: "I'm not at the moment whether it's a go-ahead – we haven't heard for sure.

"By all accounts, it sounds like it."

Meanwhile du Plessis said he had held talks with CSA chiefs about the future identity of the South Africa coach.

"There were conversations – he said."

"The first was 'we're happy with Russell?,' and the guys said yes."

"Then it was the panel's decision to try and see if there was someone they could see who would possibly take the team forward staff."

He added: "I just gave my input, where I said I think Russell is doing a good job at the moment... But if there is someone who can challenge the team more, by all means go and look who's out there."

"That decision will only be made, as far as I know, when it gets to the board."

This was a difficult tour for Domingo, who had to fly home after his mother was involved in a car accident and return again when she died of her injuries.

But du Plessis said the upheaval and general uncertainty over Domingo's future could not account for a poor run of results.

"I can't use that as an excuse. The coaching staff have been brilliant and they haven't been sidetracked by what was going on."

"If it ended for Russell like this then it's a disappointing way to send him off with the players not performing." – AFP
