Govt objects to statement on India becoming 'totalitarian' in SC hearing

NEW DELHI, July 7: The Government today took strong exception in the Supreme Court when the parties challenging the Aadhaar scheme said the country was creeping towards becoming a "concentration camp" and a "totalitarian state."

The high-voltage hearing before a bench headed by Justice J Chelameswar saw Attorney General KK Venugopal strongly objecting to the use of these phrases by senior counsel Shyam Divan who appeared for those having reservations over the policy relating to the unique identification scheme.

Divan contended that the policy to make Aadhaar mandatory for availing benefits of all welfare schemes "invades upon the right to privacy of a citizen since birth" as even minors are compelled to part with their bi-ometrics. "We are creeping into a situation where the entire country will become a concentration camp," Divan argued before the bench which also comprised Justices AM Khanwilkar and Ranjan Sinha.

He said the Centre cannot compel anyone to give his or her biometrics as this will enable the Government to have a "complete control over citizens, right from birth...which means it will be a totalitarian state."

"It will be a totalitarian state as each and every movement is tracked since your birth and the entire country becomes a concentration camp," he said.

The Attorney General intervened at this stage and said Divan was ignorant about the Aadhaar scheme as the people below the poverty line were going to be the beneficiaries of welfare measures.

Venugopal, whose view was sought regarding the issue before finally decided by the apex court's Constitution bench, said he had objections to Divan's submission as the media would tomorrow come out with reports that India is becoming a concentration camp.

The Attorney General said the significance of Aadhaar was to ensure that the state-run schemes reach the grassroots and are not swallowed en route.

"Please do not term it as a concentration camp," he said.

However, Divan stuck to his stand and said: "It is not hyperbole. It is an understatement."

After this exchange, the bench deliberated on the issue of referring the matter to a Constitution bench and asked the parties to urge the Chief Justice to set up a larger bench to decide on the issues relating to Aadhaar. - PTI

Opp leaders barred from visiting violence-hit Basirhat

KOLKATA, July 7: Leaders from various parties today slammed the TMC Government for preventing them from visiting riot-hit Basirhat with the BJP politics saying they would meet the Governor tomorrow to demand President's Rule in West Bengal.

"We wanted to go and meet the people there to restore peace, but the TMC Government did not allow our leaders. The State Government does not want the cooperation of Opposition parties," State BJP president Dilip Ghosh said. He said the BJP would organise a rally here tomorrow to condemn the role of the State Government.

"We will also meet Governor KN Tripathi and demand in writing the imposition of President's Rule in the State," he said. He added that the State Government should take the lead of the Centre to restore law and order in Basirhat and alleged that jhadhi elements were fomenting trouble there.

The State BJP chief claimed one person was killed in the riot and demanded that the State Government give a compensation of Rs 10 lakh and a job to the family of the victim. TMC leader and minister Jyoti Prakash Mullick said that the State administration was trying to restore peace and all should cooperate when the Chief Minister has appealed for it.

"Why are the Opposition parties in a hurry? They can go there later," he said. State Congress president Adhir Chowdhury, who was also stopped from visiting Basirhat, said: "The main intention of our visit was to tell the people there to live together in peace." - PTI

Cong leaders observe fast for Bedi's ouster

PUDUCHERRY, July 7: Ruling Congress ministers and other leaders today observed a daylong fast here to demand the ouster of Puducherry Lt Governor Kiran Bedi. Bedi has come under attack for swearing in three members nominated to the Assembly.

Puducherry PCC president and PWD minister A Namashivayam, Welfare minister M Kandasamy and Industries Minister MOHFA Shekhar were among those on the dawn-to-dusk fast. Namashivayam said since Bedi assumed office, she had been "showing her true colours." He said the recent nomination of the three BJP persons to the Assembly by the Union Home Ministry and their induction as members at the Raj Niwas by the Lt Governor "betray the intention of the BJP and Bedi to embarrass the democratically elected Congress Government." - PTI

India 'not entitled' to make claims on Bhutan's behalf section into Chinese territory and obstructed routine road construction in the Doklam area of China's Tibet Autonomous Region," said the Xinhua commentary, the second in the last few days.

It said that by creating disputes in Doklam, India seeks to obstruct border negotiations between China and Bhutan, and follow its own "ulterior motives" in the area.

"The claim cannot hold water. Doklam has long been under the effective jurisdiction of China. Both Bhutan and China have a basic consensus on the functional conditions and demarcation of their border region," the commentary said.

"Moreover, India has no right to interfere in China-Bhutan boundary issues, nor is it entitled to make territorial claims on behalf of Bhutan," it said.

India's current actions have not only "encroached on China's territorial sovereignty, but also impaired the independence of 'Bhutan', one of the world's smallest countries, which is closely allied with India, it said.

"Chinese construction is being conducted within its own territory. It is India that has broken the status quo by trespassing onto Chinese soil. It is not acceptable to any sovereign country that India has crossed a demarcated border into another country on the grounds of 'security concerns,'" it said.

Indian troops should immediately withdraw to the Indian side of the border as a precondition for any meaningful dialogue between the two countries, it said. -PTI which have been completed at a cost of Rs 164 crore, were not fit for running of specialised vehicles and equipment such as Smerch and Pinaka rocket launchers, and Bofors field artillery due to various limitations like steep radiant, less width, inadequate turning radius and defective alignment, among others.

The annual works plans (AWPs) are neither prepared timely nor by the physical targets achieved. The plans at various levels had not been framed realistically and there were critical gaps in implementing what had been planned. There were numerous instances of defective construction of roads on account of unsuitable design, steep gradient, defective alignment, turning radius problems, improper contract management, poor riding conditions, inadequate drainage facilities, non-connectivity of roads and abandonment of executed works.

This had not only resulted in delay in completion of strategic roads but also caused an infrequent expenditure of Rs 63.20 crore on account of realignment of roads. In certain cases expenditure was incurred in excess of the sanctioned amount without approval.

Moreover, deployment of General Reserve Engineering Force personnel was done in remote and hazardous working locations without adequate facilities. Users also expressed their dissatisfaction as the road works executed by the BRO did not adequately meet the requirement. Users' feedback indicated that there were issues like improper gradient, undulating surface, improper turning radius, minimum passing places, unsatisfactory riding comfort, etc., with 17 of the 24 roads selected for audit.

The CAG report recommended that reconnaissance, survey and soil classification should be carried out to facilitate the completion of roads in time. The department concerned should expeditiously implement the plan for adoption of newer technologies like Light Detection and Ranging (LiDAR) and high resolution surface technology for road construction works, the CAG noted, suggesting that the Ministry of Defence should take up the issue of fund availability with the Ministry of Finance.

the international response to terrorism was weak and said more cooperation was needed to fight the menace.

The Indian Prime Minister presented an 11-point 'Action Agenda' which included suggestions for exchange of lists of terrorists among G-20 nations, easing and expediting of legal processes like extradition and concrete steps to choke funds and weapon supply to the terrorists.

"Some nations are using terrorism for achieving political goals," Modi said in a clear reference to Pakistan.

He said LeT, JeM and the Haqqani network terror group were active in South Asia like ISIS and Al-Qaeda were in the Middle East and Boko Haram in Nigeria.

While LeT and JeM have been targeting India, the Haqqani network has been repeatedly carrying out attacks in Afghanistan, including on Indian assets there.

CERN discovers 'doubly-charmed' particle

GENEVA, July 7: A new

'doubly-charmed' particle containing an unusual combination of quarks—a fundamental constituent of matter—has been discovered by scientists working at the world's largest and most powerful atom smasher.

The new particle, called Xi cc+, contains two charm quarks and one up quark. The discovery will help probe into the strong interaction, one of the four fundamental forces of nature.

The existence of this particle from the baryon family was expected by current theories, but physicists have been looking for such baryons with two heavy quarks for many years.

The mass of the newly identified particle is about 3.621 Mega electron-Volt (MeV), which is almost four times heavier than the most familiar baryon, the proton, a property that arises from its doubly charmed quark content.

The discovery was announced at the EPS Conference on High Energy Physics in Venice. It is the first time that such a particle has been unambiguously detected, according to scientists working with CERN's Large Hadron Collider, the world's largest and most powerful particle collider.

Nearly all the matter that we see around us is made of baryons, which are common particles composed of three quarks, the best-known being protons and neutrons.

However, there are six types of existing quarks, and theoretically many different potential combinations could form other kinds of baryons. Baryons so far observed are all made of, at most, one heavy quark.

"Finding a doubly heavy quark baryon is of great interest as it will provide a unique tool to further probe quantum chromodynamics, the theory that describes the interaction, one of the four fundamental forces," said Giovanni Passaleva, spokesperson of the LHCb.

The observation of the Xi cc+ in LHCb raises the expectations to detect other representatives of the family of doubly-heavy baryons. They will now be searched for at the LHC. -PTI collaboration.

"Such particles will thus help us improve the predictive power of our theories," said Passaleva.

"In contrast to other baryons, in which the three quarks perform an elaborate dance around each other, a doubly heavy baryon is expected to act like a planetary system, where the two heavy quarks play the role of heavy stars orbiting one around the other, with the lighter quark orbiting around this binary system," said Guy Wilkinson, former spokesperson of the collaboration.

Measuring the properties of the Xi cc+ will help to establish how a system of two heavy quarks and a light quark behaves. Important insights can be obtained by precisely measuring production and decay mechanisms, and the lifetime of this new particle.

The observation of this new baryon proved to be challenging and has been made possible owing to the high production rate of heavy quarks at the LHC and the unique capabilities of the LHCb experiment, which can identify the decay products with excellent efficiency.

The Xi cc+ baryon was identified via its decay into a Xi + baryon and three lighter mesons K-, p+ and p-.

The observation of the Xi cc+ in LHCb raises the expectations to detect other representatives of the family of doubly-heavy baryons. They will now be searched for at the LHC. -PTI

Governor launches Greater Green Guwahati initiative

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, July 7: As part of the 68th Vana Mahotsav, Governor Banwarilal Purohit today inaugurated the Greater Green Guwahati programme by planting saplings and distributing them among school students at a function on MG Road, Khariguli.

The Mahotsav entails plantation of saplings along the city roads, on the premises of educational institutions, government and non-government offices and reserve forests to increase the green cover of the city.

Speaking at the function, Governor Purohit appealed to everybody to take a pledge to increase the green cover of the city by planting more saplings as only trees can sustain lives of future generations.

"Trees are the precondition of existence of human beings," he said, hailing the initiative of the environment and forest department along with other line departments, NGOs and other stakeholders for undertaking the Green Guwahati Project.

Lauding the endeavour of the forest department which also conceived a project namely Avenue Plantation Programme from Kalabor Tri-junction to Numaligarh which was inaugurated by Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal on July 1, Purohit said that these saplings would augur well in making the future of the next generation secure.

He also asked the environment and forest department to ensure corresponding actions for sustenance of the saplings.

Referring to a sloka from the Puranas, Governor Purohit said that one tree is equivalent to 10 sons' and urged the people to plant saplings and contribute to increase the green cover of the environment and facilitate with Nature. He also requested the media fraternity to play a pivotal role in spreading awareness for tree plantation.

Environment and Forest Minister Pramila Ranjana Brahma also underlined the importance of tree plantation drives and said that since Guwahati is the gateway to the North East, major plantation drives are being taken to enhance the glitz and grandeur of the city.

Man held for using fake vehicle fitness certificate

STAFF REPORTER

GUWAHATI, July 7: In what may take the lid off a thriving racket, the District Transport Officer here detected a man who procured a fitness certificate of a vehicle by using a fake registration number.

The registration number used by the frauds belongs to a DI vehicle which had met with an accident in February last. The vehicle was badly damaged in the mishap and is still at the workshop. The owner of the vehicle Akon Deka was also injured and is still not fit.

DTO Prasenjit Ghosh said one Babu Ali brought another DI vehicle with the registration plate of the vehicle which had met with the accident.

Motor vehicle inspectors had issued the fitness certificate against the registration number on June 8 last.

An internal inquiry conducted by the DTO unearthed the fraud. "We have lodged an FIR with Garchuk Police Station on the basis of which one person identified as Montu Ali of Hajo has been detained," Ghosh said.

Hunt is on to trace Babu Ali.

eagerness to bring about a change in the age-old deprivation meted out to the people of the North-east region, the statement added.

The Union Minister of State for the Railways is elected from Assam and he should work for the greater interest of the indigenous people of this region, it said. AKDSU also threatened to intensify its agitation against the Railways in case their demands are not met at the earliest.

Cong demand: Meanwhile, the State Congress today demanded resignation of Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal and Union Minister of State for Railways Rajen Gohain for their failure to ensure absorption of a single candidate from Assam by the NF Railway into the posts of workshop technicians. The NF Railway has absorbed 125 candidates from Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and Jharkhand into same posts.

The APCC alleged that for the above-mentioned posts, a candidate is required to pass out from an ITI. But none of ITI-passed candidates of the State was recruited, it added.

Proper urbanisation need of the hour

Although being one of the fastest growing urban areas, Guwahati has blotted itself in terms of urban planning, a result of which is if it wants to progress in future.

Broken promises

The BIP government recently celebrated its completion of one year in office. Before that they had a copycat celebration of Ganga festival in the River Brahmaputra. The government was formed on the basis of great promises. But how many of those promises are actually fulfilled is the question. Flash floods triggered by rainwater have become a permanent problem. Recently the government went on renaming major roads of the city. The old Bolu Borah Road was named after Late Dr Bhupen Hazarika. But the irony is, the paly needs to address these issues of urbanisation which are initially faced by almost all developing cities if it wants to progress in future.

The two tragic incidents that occurred recently in which three persons were electrocuted, including a minor, exposed the government's apathy towards the basic problems of the city. Though in the last elections the government used a term "Paribartan" to mobilise the crowd, there is nothing the government has done in real sense. The authorities concerned should replace the high voltage electric wire into rubber-concealed ones. For the Sarbananda Sonowal-led State government, it's high time to come out and execute the necessary steps to tackle such problems.

Congestion on road

Market days of Beltola Bazar (Thursday and Sunday) create havoc on the road mostly in the form of traffic jams, triggering a chaotic situation between Beltooli Tiniali and Jayamagar Chariali (Pari Ajan Fakir Path) and the adjacent bylanes due to parking of vehicles in the roadsides. Traffic congestion causes tremendous harassment to the public and local residents of the area till late night. In case of fire or medical emergencies, the suffering will be of the worst kind. Immediate steps should be taken by the GMC and traffic police department to eradicate the menace.

The Assam TribuneGuwahati Declaration

The 'Guwahati Declaration' adopted during the recent 8th India-Bangladesh Friendship Dialogue is positive in the sense that if implemented properly, it can bring the north-eastern region of India and Bangladesh closer and help in boosting trade, commerce and connectivity which will be beneficial for both the sides. The Declaration, which was adopted on the concluding day of the Dialogue held in Guwahati, has called for ensuring greater people-to-people and business-to-business contacts between the north-eastern region of India and Bangladesh and termed it as crucial for ensuring sustainable political good will and trust, economic growth and shared prosperity of both New Delhi and Dhaka. It has also called for preparing a vision document and research report on and organizing an India-Bangladesh business summit in the North-east. Its call for close economic integration between India and Bangladesh, and particularly between the North-east and our next door neighbour, is extremely relevant. The North-east is landlocked and is connected to 'mainland India' through a very narrow corridor. Transit through Bangladesh, not only of goods from other parts of India but also the rest of the world, would not only reduce cost but also allow better and faster access of various products to consumers of the North-east. Similarly, commodities from this region can also get better access to the world market if they are shipped via Bangladesh instead of being routed through the existing longer routes. Even the Bangladeshi manufacturing sector will get a boost if it can access the market here. There are a lot of areas where the north-eastern States and Bangladesh can cooperate, including health care, education and tourism. For Bangladesh also, it will be easier to access the Chinese market if connectivity can be fostered through the North-east.

However, a number of irritants exist which prevent the relationship between North-East India and Bangladesh from reaching a higher level of cooperation. The issue of illegal immigration from Bangladesh is a very serious one. Senior Assam Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma said during the Dialogue that Dispur will reach out to Dhaka through New Delhi, for a lasting solution to the problem once the draft NRC is out by the end of this year. However, Md Shahriar Alam, State Minister for Foreign Affairs of Bangladesh, commented that India has never raised the issue of illegal immigrants with Bangladesh at a bilateral level. If the Bangladeshi minister's statement is true, then it is a matter of grave concern. Dialogues and declaration are all right. Trade and commerce and closer cooperation between India and Bangladesh, and between the north-eastern region and Bangladesh, are essential. But it is also imperative to address the problem of infiltration. New Delhi must immediately take up the matter with Dhaka and put pressure for a bilateral deal under which Bangladesh will agree to repatriation of all verified illegal immigrants from this region.

Made in heaven

Having been the beneficiary of a diplomatic coup, it is hardly surprising that the Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu called the new chapter in his nation's relations with India as "a marriage made in heaven". As late as 2015 India's President Pranab Mukherjee had made a trip to the region, taking care to visit Ramallah and Jordan after his visit to Israel. But Narendra Modi, the first Indian Prime Minister to have embarked on an official visit to Israel, made absolutely no reference to the protracted Israel-Palestine conflict, let alone visit Ramallah. Even American President Donald Trump during his visit to Israel had spoken about the need to peacefully resolve this conflict, but the bear-hugging Indian Prime Minister chose to break with tradition by keeping mum. Clearly, pragmatism has prevailed over policy and self-interest rather than principles has been allowed to be the guide. From Modi's point of view, Palestine is the underdog with nothing tangible to offer to India, while Israel is a highly advanced modern nation having a great deal to offer to a country which is ostensibly marching towards becoming a global superpower. Thus a honeymoon with Israel is to be more sought after than a date with Palestine – as for offending the Arab world by openly announcing the engagement, it is no secret that many Arab States have trade and technological relations with Israel!

It is also no secret that Israel has been attempting to lure nations into unambiguously accepting her existence; in the past she has wooed India by coming to her assistance by supplying arms, transferring technology and providing terrorism-related information. Thus this marriage made in heaven is sure to yield greater gifts; during Modi's stay in that country itself, a number of deals beneficial to India ranging from better resource management to agriculture were signed and an agreement to set up a 40 million-dollar joint research fund inked. Given India's determination to double her agricultural yield in the matter of a decade, the advances Israel has made in the field of farming would be of special interest to her. Having literally built herself up from scratch in a barren land surrounded by hostile elements, Israeli technology is designed to make the most of scarce resources, something India is keen to learn. Moreover, the efficiency of Israel's intelligence agency, the Mossad, is legion and, by declaring Israel as a "strategic partner", India is sure to get more significant intelligence inputs. Without mentioning Pakistan or Palestine, but by condemning terrorism in "all forms and manifestations" and vowing to take strong measures against "those who encourage, support and finance terrorism", both nations have made their point. It is a win-win situation for the partners in this heavenly marriage, though surely Palestinians and their supporters would be wishing for their divorce!

An evening to cherishPLAIN-SPEAK

had first met Saurabh Kumar Chalhia in 1995, although I had met his after-self, Surendranath Medhi, even when a child since he was related to me from my mother's side. I remember I was washing my car one morning outside my residence at Foo-Nareng Road when a tall and gangly figure stood upon me and called out my name, something startling me.

And there was Saurabh Kumar Chalhia in person, a twinkle of humour in his eyes, apologizing for having come to meet me without first calling up. "But then you have chosen not to have a phone," he had pointed out in his defence!

Over a cup of tea in our sitting room I explained the reason for my unexpected visit. He had just been awarded the Assam Valley Literary Award. The sponsors, Major Education Trust, had invited the chairman of the Sahitya Akademi, UR Anantamurthy, to present the award. Anantamurthy had written to him, asking for a sample of his stories so that he could talk about his writing style while making his award presentation address!

But that was the hub of the matter. Till then none of his stories had been translated into English! So, could I please translate one of his stories into English so that it could be sent to Anantamurthy?

I was, to say the least, absolutely stunned. I had read his short stories and it did not seem like Assamese critic or the other to enlighten me that these were of international standards, comparable to modern European or Latin-American authors. Demanding as they did a cerebral rather than an emotive response, his narratives were true path-breakers which ushered modernism in Assamese literature. If today a whole new generation of brilliant and modernistic short story writers have emerged in Assam, much of the credit goes to the genius that was Saurabh Kumar Chalhia.

Yet here was an individual, who trod like a colossus across the realm of Assamese literature, informing me that none of his short stories had been translated into English till then! This was a telling comment on the Assamese intelligentsia and, frankly, I was ashamed.

Then here was an individual, who trod like a colossus across the realm of Assamese literature, informing me that none of his short stories had been translated into English till then! This was a telling comment on the Assamese intelligentsia and, frankly, I was ashamed.

media, in particular the electronic one, waxes eloquent on lesser personalities, there have hardly been much writing or discussion on this literary giant. No doubt, led by filmmaker late Atal Mazid, a Saurabh Kumar Chalhia fan club had been formed, which set up a website for the author and brought out English translations of his short stories. Yet, after Mazid's death this attempt appears to have languished. Neither the Assam Sahitya Sabha nor those who not thank the duo enough for their laudable initiative.

It was an evening that I will cherish. I was delighted to observe that the small auditorium was packed to capacity with genuine lovers of literature, and true votaries of Saurabh Kumar Chalhia. The function began with a story recital by two renowned personalities, eminent filmmaker Dr Santora Bordoloi and noted thespian Dipan Deka. The story by Saurabh Kumar Chalhia, titled 'Siloleu Pahaar Boga', is a tragicomic one having personification-ambiguity and symbolism which can be subjected to varying interpretations. The manner in which Dr Bordoloi and Deka enunciated the nuances of the dialogue was superb indeed. One interesting aspect of this story reading was that these two had recited the same story together in another function held in 1995!

The next speaker, eminent poet Harekrishna Deka, delivered a critical analysis of Chalhia's short stories, bringing out the complex facets of their structure, their cerebral nature, and allusions which are often not identifiable or comprehensible at a first reading. Deka's critique gave the audience, particularly me, a new perspective of Chalhia's brilliance. This was followed by a release of a small booklet titled 'Saurabh Kumar Chalhia - Bismot Aar Samudaya', penned by Ankur and Anurupa. While releasing the book, eminent author Lakshminandan Bora, regretted the fact that Chalhia's fame has remained merely within the confines of Assam when he should have attained a national status.

The booklet, clearly, was a labour periodically hold so-called 'book fairs' have made much attempt to perpetuate the memory of the greatest among contemporary Assamese writers. It was almost as if the self-effacing persona of Saurabh Kumar Chalhia had disappeared from the broad Assamese psyche!

This is why Saurabh Kumar Chalhia fans, the husband and wife duo of Ankur Deka and Anurupa Choudhury, must be eulogized for organizing a function to commemorate the sixth death anniversary of Saurabh Kumar Chalhia. In my recollection, apart from a memorial meeting after his death organized by his fan club, there has been no comparable memorial meet on him to the one organized by Ankur and Anurupa. Literary connoisseurs can of love! It epitomized the reality that something small need not necessarily be of less value. Apart from the two intimate pieces of writing by Ankur and Anurupa, the booklet contains a fascinating and deeply moving diary-type account of the last days of the author. A brief compilation on the significant phases of Chalhia's life makes for a handy reference guide and enhances the value of the booklet.

Another enlightening speech was from the next speaker, prominent short-story writer Kula Saha, who spoke movingly yet humorously of his personal empathy with the icon and the kind of inspiration he had derived from Chalhia while pursuing his own writing career. The final speaker of the evening was young author and mathematician Dr Minal Chandra Kalita, who perspicuously pointed out to the seemingly spontaneous yet deliberately crafted meandering nature of Chalhia's stories.

It is well known that Saurabh Kumar Chalhia was an aficionado of classical music, thus it was apt that the evening ended with a sard-recital by Tarun Kalita. Having spent an enlightening evening listening to the speakers dwell on the many facets of Saurabh Kumar Chalhia's stories and personality, I could not help but wonder why it took two individuals to put in their personal efforts and resources to organize it.

We have a host of literary organizations whose only activity appears to be to indulge in squabbling and non-literary matters. Given the lack of interest towards this author amongst these organizations, apparently a central appreciation of a genius like Saurabh Kumar Chalhia is beyond the capabilities of the luminaries who officiate in them. I hope individuals like Ankur Deka and Anurupa Choudhury would fill the lacuna by holding more such evenings to be cherished.

SDGs and rural livelihood through fisheries

■ Dr R Ch Barman

P rime Minister Narendra Modi in his address on September 25, 2015 at the UN Sustainable Development Goals Summit stated, "I speak about Blue Revolution, which includes the prosperity and sustainable use of marine wealth and blue spaces." The dialogue when fisheries and aquaculture is concerned indicates that people's prosperity could be bloomed through effective utilization of vast and varied fisheries and aquaculture resources of our country in a significant way. Today, the Government of India is one of the signatories to the UN Assembly for the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The Government of Assam also recognizes those 17 SDGs for their beneficial impact and to make effort to achieve these goals on health, happiness, prosperity of each and every citizen of the State.

The State of Assam is endowed with vast fishery resources in the form of rivers (4,820 km), bed/over-bow lake (1,00,815 hectares), derelict/flowing area (1,16,444 hectares), reservoirs (2,553 hectares), ponds and tanks (61,431 hectares) covering a total water-spread area of over 2,86 lakh hectares excluding the riverine fisheries. More than 95% of the total population of the State consumes fish. The State is

WHO-recommended level of 11 kg/person/year to 15 kg/person/year. The average fish fry production in the State is 4,500 million numbers whereas the production of fingerlings is 135 million numbers against the requirement of 350 million numbers. Similarly, the present average production of feed is 3,000 MT against the requirement of 90,000 MT. To minimize the gap of production, to make the State self-sufficient in fish seed, feed and table fish production thereby contributing towards minimizing the poverty with reduced hunger, the Department of Fisheries has already proposed some initiatives under a three-year action plan and seven-year strategic action plan under the SDGs.

Sustainable development of the fishery sector in Assam is likely to play an important role in the socio-economic development of the State by way of enhancement of income, livelihood and nutritional security of its population besides creating additional employment avenues and preventing draining out of huge fund flow to the other States. Of course, we have a number of issues and challenges like lack of required authentic data base, poor utilization of pond and tank resources, non-utilization of bed fishery resources, inadequate supply of seed, feed and other inputs, inadequate extension machinery, rare application of diversified aquaculture, etc. To overcome these issues and challenges, we have to emphasize towards (a) horizontal expansion of aquaculture resources, (b) culture-based fisheries in beds and effective utilization of bed marginal area, (c) semi-intensive fish farming in ponds and tanks, (d) intensive fish culture in ponds and tanks of progressive fish farmers, (e) stock enhancement in bed and other natural water resources, (f) large-scale adoption of integrated fish farming in potential areas (e.g., paddy-cum-fish culture in low-lying areas and pig-cum-fish culture in pig rearing belts, etc).

The new State Government has taken the issue of making the State self-sufficient in fish production by 2019-20 as a big challenge and has given due importance on the overall development of the sector. In this regard, we may identify some of the activities like:

• Establishment of at least 50 small seed hatcheries with 10 million fry production capacity under different government schemes for production of quality fish seed to minimize the gap of fingerling production and requirement under the strict enforcement of the Assam Fish Seed Act, 2005;

• Establishment of more small feed mills at least one feed mill per district initially to make the growing habit of farmers for application of formulated fish feed in pond aquaculture system;

• About 11,000 ha of ponds and tanks may be brought under semi-intensive aquaculture thereby producing 33,000 tons at a moderate yield rate of 3,000 kg/ha which will create direct livelihood to approximately 70,000 fish farmers' family through fish culture;

• About 5,000 ha of ponds may be brought under intensive aquaculture in existing private tanks of progressive fish farmers by 2020, thereby producing 25,000 tons @ 5 tons/ha/year by assisting with all necessary technical and material inputs which will directly benefit more than 3,000 families;

• New pond construction in 10,000 ha area with proposing average production of 3,000 kg/ha/year. This will give total production of 30,000 ton fish annually with generation of livelihood to more than 60,000 fisher families;

• Large-scale adoption of integrated fish farming in marginal areas as such as paddy-cum-fish culture in low-lying areas and pig-cum-fish culture in pig-rearing belts in existing tanks on cluster basis;

• Reorganization of the ornamental fishery sector in the State.

Besides, arousing awareness among the stakeholders on fisheries and aquaculture through effective resource utilization, ensuring community participation in bed and riverine fisheries development and conservation approach are urgently needed to achieve the mentioned SDGs.

Letters to the EDITOR

Sir. — I sat for the CC (Preliminary) Exam, 2016 held on July 2, 2017 with Indian History as my optional subject. The syllabus for Indian History consists of Assistant Professor, Delhi Sultanate period, Mughal Empire and Modern India. This time the question setters disregarded the Vedic history unlike earlier times and instead included as many as 14 odd questions on Assam History which is not a part of the syllabus prescribed by the APSC in respect of Indian History paper. The framing of questions which were out of syllabus has put the candidates in a disadvantageous position as we were totally unprepared for this random change. Can the Commission give a proper explanation as to why it deviated from the prescribed syllabus without prior intimation?

In the Indian History optional paper, there is a question about the year of establishment of the French East India Company (Q/ No. 39) with four options: (A) 1763 AD, (B) 1764 AD, (C) 1765 AD, (D) 1766 AD. The correct answer is actually 1664 AD. Again, Q/No. 60 asked about the total number of kings in the Ahom period. Options given were (A) 30, (B) 40, (C) 50 and (D) 60. The proper answer is 39 kings. Sadiqningba had two coronations, first in 1811 AD and again in 1819 AD. This is the same as two separate kings.

The General Studies paper is also not shorn of errors. One question is about the first census. It was Lord Mayo who conducted the first census in 1872 while the regular census started from 1881 during the time of Lord Ripon. But both names are not there in the given options. Hopefully, the Commission will look into the matter. Yours etc., A CANDIDATE, Silsagar.

Govt insensitivity

Sir. — The insensitivity of the government of the past. The Sonowal Government should take little time off from the issues of GST and the presidential poll and show some solidarity and sympathy towards the hapless flood-affected population by concrete action. Yours etc., BHASKAR PHUKAN, Baruimati, Guwahati.

College appointments

Sir. — This is regarding the rule for appointment of assistant professor in colleges, passed by the Higher Education Department, Government of Assam in 2012. I request the authorities concerned to reconsider this decision. As per the guidelines, only the candidates who are having more marks in the master's degree are benefited. It is very difficult to score more marks in the master's level in some good universities like Delhi University. So the guidelines are encouraging quantity and not the quality of education. In Assam, it is seen the candidates from any UGC-recognized university are getting jobs in most of the colleges because of the high score in their master's. There is also no provision for giving weightage to NET as compared to SET/SLET.

Anybody having any research articles without having any impact factor of the journal and without any citations of the papers is getting full score as per the guidelines which is totally absurd. Quality check should be done everywhere from the academic careers to research publications while recruiting college teachers. Yours etc., DR TRAILOKYA SAUD, New Delhi.

Tara Prasad Barua: a tribute

In the early hours of June 28, Tara Prasad Barua, my uncle, passed away.... just as gracefully as he had lived his life over nine decades. Born in Sylhet to Late Guru Prasad Barua, an adventurous IPS officer, and Padmarcha Barua, he was the younger brother of Natyaprabhakar Satya Prasad Barua and nephew of Singapurish Radha Govinda Barua.

Tara Prasad spent his early years moving frequently from one place to another with the family, wherever his father's posting took them. He would often tell us that it was these exciting years with exposure to a multitude of experiences in places like Sylhet, Karimganj, Dhubri and Nagaon, among others, that had shaped his personality and made him the person that he was. After his father retired from service, they moved to their ancestral home at Uzambazar in Guwahati.

Indrajit Barua

Indrajit Barua who passed away on June 27, 2017 had a remarkable life breaking a number of conventions. In spite of having a brilliant academic career he did not take the beaten track of one of the first IIT graduates from Assam by leaving for foreign shores or settling in greener pastures elsewhere in the country, but chose to come right back and serve mother Assam. Not content with being a top notch professional and mentoring many others, he jumped into the Assam Movement in 1979, being one of its guiding forces, leading the legal challenge to the Armed Forces Special Powers Act, Disturbed Areas Act, holding of general elections with foreigners enrolled as voters etc., and carried the challenge up to the Supreme Court. He was also an AGP founder.

Public service was ingrained in his genes. His father Sarat Barua in 1946, Rs 5,000 to Gopinath Bardoloi, to travel to Delhi and oppose the inclusion of Assam in the Bengal province as proposed under the Cabinet Mission plan. Unlike a large number of his contemporaries, who gave heart and soul to the Assam Movement and subsequently became disillusioned by the lack of results, he never lost his positivity and continued his efforts. In 2003, he published a seminal statistical study demonstrating the basis of demographic changes and projecting that by 2047, the indigenous people will become a minority in Assam.

Thereafter in 2015 when I was appointed as a Commissioner by the Supreme Court on the Indo-Bangla border, he gave a representation showing disproportionate growth in population in certain polling stations of Boko and Kalibor constituents, between 200 to 2000% in 25 years. Any mention of Indrajit Barua will be incomplete without acknowledging the continuing contribution of Pradip Bhuyan, close friend and colleague, who right from the Assam Movement has continued his relentless fight for the Assamese people, the driving force behind the Supreme Court NRC case and the big dam case in the Green Tribunal.

Indrajit Barua's legacy is priceless, an inspiration to professionals that contribution is greater in your own place and life is more meaningful if lived selflessly for one's people and retreat into the shadows.

Tilottama Barooah

Like a bolt from the blue, we got the sad news that Bulu baiden is no more. An ever-smiling, amiable personality, who was like a beacon of light in our lives at many a social gathering on various occasions, Bulu baidens' (Tilottama Barooah) advice was an inspiration for us.

She was an educationist first and foremost, and had many a feather in her cap over the years, with a distinguished career to boot. Yet, she led a humble existence with her siblings in a modest home.

Demand for talks on creation of Bodo Kochari Autonomous Council

ANN Service

JONAI, July 7: Reiterating its demand for creation of Bodo Kochari Autonomous Council out of the BTAD, United Bodo Peoples' Organisation (UBPO) has demanded the State government to hold talks with the UBPO leaders on the issue.

Members of various ethnic Bodo organisations under the banner of UBPO staged a sit-in-demonstration in front of the Jona SDO's office recently and submitted a memorandum to the Chief Minister through the SDO (C), demanding talks with the UBPO leaders on the autonomy issue.

According to UBPO, there was a Cabinet decision during the Tarun Gogoi-led Congress rule on creation of 'Bodo Kochari Autonomous Council' out of the existing Bodo Territorial Area Districts (BTAD). But the process was left incomplete due to the Assembly election in the State and change of State government.

Talking to mediapersons, Dhemaji district UBPO president and secretary, Suren Basumatary and Manoranjan Basumatary respectively, said that they earlier placed their nine-point charter of demands before national BJP leaders, who assured them to solve their problem if they came to power. But, the BJP leaders did not keep their promise and are resorting to delay tactics in creation of the Bodo Kochari Autonomous Council, they alleged.

"We have been demanding that the Sarbananda Sonowal-led State government expedite the process for granting the Bodo Kochari Autonomous Council with satellite area provision. The government assured us to hold talks with the delegates of UBPO and Bodoland Peoples' Front (BPF), but it has shown utter negligence on this important issue now," the UBPO leaders alleged.

The memorandum submitted by UBPO also includes demands to formulate a policy to protect land rights of indigenous Bodo Kocharis, creation of a separate Directorate for Bodo medium education, creation of Bodo Regiment (in the line of Naga Regiment) in the Indian Army and proper rehabilitation of the surrendered BLT and NDFB ultras.

According to UBPO, nearly 10 lakh Bodo Kocharis are residing outside the jurisdiction of BTAD spread across 20 districts of Assam including Kamrup, Sonitpur, Lakhimpur and Dhemaji districts. Dhemaji district in north-Assam has around 70,000 Bodo Kochari population.

STATE Water level of rivers in Dhubri district rising

CORRESPONDENT

DHUBRI, July 7: As the water level in all the major rivers of the district continues to rise, the flood situation in Dhubri district is turning grim.

As per reports of the Dhubri Division of the State Water Resource Department, the mighty Brahmaputra was flowing above the danger level of 28.62 metres.

The level of water till Friday was 29.01 metres. Meanwhile, the water level of Chamapati was 25.89 metres, Gaursa 32.55 metres, Tipkai 31.67 metres and Gangadar at 29.20 metres. Flood waters have already affected paddy fields in many villages of the district, particularly along the banks of Brahmaputra. However, the District Disaster Management Authority (DDMA) informed that they are prepared for the flood. Since June 7, till Friday the DDMA has organised two-day mock drills in all the six revenue circles of the district to sensitise the people of the flood-prone areas about the ensuing flood and the ways to tackle it for minimal loss.

"We are sure that this year the loss will be much less in the district, compared to previous years, as these mock drills were conducted with grassroots level people who are most affected by floods," said Muzaffar Sarkar, DPO of DDM. He also said, "Moreover, during the drills many local NGO's, individuals and senior citizens of the flood-prone areas have come up to take preventive measures in their villages during the floods, so that the effects of the disaster is less on the people".

ANR Service adds from Hatisinghpur: Due to incessant rains for last few days, the water level of the Brahmaputra and its tributary Jinjiram have risen alarmingly and submerged large areas of South-salmara and Manakachar revenue circles under Southsalmara Manakachar district.

India, Bangladesh discuss bilateral issues

CORRESPONDENT

AIZAWL, July 7: Bilateral meeting of India and Bangladesh officials at Tlangtung town in Mizoram discussed ways to speed up the proposed bridge between the two countries across Khatlangtupui (Karnaphuli) and bilateral issues.

The meeting was held at the Indo-Bangla border trade facilitation centre at Tlangtung and was chaired by Mizoram Commerce and Industries department director J Hmingthamawia. He said that the meeting was a significant event and hoped that it would help speed up the much-awaited India-Bangladesh border trade. He stressed the need for keeping up the good relations between the two countries.

Bangladesh official Rowshan Ara Khanam said that the bridge would be an important connection between India and Bangladesh. He said that the Bangladesh Government has taken a number of steps to make the proposed bridge a reality.

Railways advisor Dibhanjan Roy also said the bridge would not only provide road connectivity but also strengthen the ties between the countries.

The meeting was informed that once the location for the bridge is identified, the Bangladeshi Government would immediately begin road construction to connect the bridge and the Bangladeshi Prime Minister had given approval in this regard.

It has been proposed that the location of the bridge be made as closer as possible to the nearest land custom station in the Bangladeshi side.

After the meeting, both teams from the two countries inspected possible locations to construct the bridge.

DIMAPUR, July 7: The United Naga Council (UNC) is optimistic and expecting "remarkable" outcome of the Framework Agreement signed between the NSCN-IM and the Government of India on August 3, 2015.

Immediately after a marathon meeting with the Government of India's interlocutor for Nagas RN Ravi at Chumukmedu Police Complex here today, UNC president Gaikai Kamei told The Assam Tribune that the Government of India is "almost determined" to find a solution to the protracted Naga issue and added that the interlocutor's visit to Nagaland is a clear indication in favour of UNC.

Kamei said almost two years have passed since the Framework Agreement was signed and it is the right time to find a permanent solution. He also claimed that Ravi's this round of consultation with Nagaland civil society organisations is to prepare a "safe landing ground" for a final agreement.

Ravi is on a three-day visit to Nagaland since yesterday and holding extensive consultations with different Nagaland civil organisations. On Thursday, he met various civil society organisations and student bodies in Kohima.

During their meeting with Ravi, several vital issues were discussed.

They said Ravi informed them that the Government of India is exploring all possibilities to include all Naga factions in the talks before finding a final solution.

Ravi said in Kohima on Thursday that the solution to the protracted Naga political issue is close-by. "We are close towards a solution and bringing the framework agreement to a conclusion," he stated.

Both ballads and research talk about the first organised anti-British armed revolution of the Santhal community that had happened in June, 1855. Running an indigenous administration they compelled the British to flee from a vast area from today's Birbhum to Bhagalpur. The supreme sacrifice of those people, led by Santhal heroes like Sidou, Kanhi, Chandi and Bhairab, fighting against the British soldiers and protesting against the anti-people policies of the British Government, proved to be an inspiration for the mainstream anti-British movement of India in the following decades. The contribution of the Santals and other indigenous communities of the country for the freedom of the motherland is an unforgettable legacy. But even after so many decades of Independence and despite efforts in different forms, these communities are yet to become part of mainstream Indian society. They are isolated socially, emotionally and culturally.

Considering this, the initiative of the present West Bengal Government to celebrate the Hud (revolution) festival in all districts of the State on June 30 and July 1, commemorating the anti-British Santhal Movement, which happened on June 30, 1855, through a ceremonial presentation of the indigenous Santhal culture, and providing folk artistes of the community an elevated platform is a commendable effort. So long, this festival has been organised in the Santhal-dominated areas of Bengal. But this year, the whole of West Bengal celebrated the festival with a larger vision of recognising their patriotism and the grand saga of Santhal culture. Along with the other districts of West Bengal, the Cooch Behar district, bordering Assam, also celebrated the festival with pomp, splendour and fervour.

The festival, organised by the Information and Culture Department, was held at the premises of the Bocharam High School, Tufanganj-II Development Block, bordering the furthest western corner of Assam. Significantly, the demographic profile of this area is most unique, as one finds a perfect assimilation of different tribal cultures, being inhabited by the Rabha, Khoria, Minze and the Rabongshi ethnic communities, along with Bengalis living in tri-state spirit.

June 30 began with hectic activities, as Santhal folk artistes began to come into the school premises wearing traditional attire. Apart from the organisers, the teachers and students of the school were busy attending to the artists who had come from various parts of Cooch Behar. Both Santhal and folk artistes of other indigenous communities assembled from all the sub-divisions and development Blocks of Cooch Behar district at the school premises.

Naturally, the atmosphere was electrifying, with the sounds of the traditional musical instruments and the rhythmic beats of the Santhal and other dance forms, as it was soon time for the ceremonial opening of the grand festival. The artistes began to play their instruments and sing in chorus, standing in rows in the school field, to give a warm welcome to the invited guests. Later on, the stage was opened ceremonially.

Top officials of the district, subdivision and the block administration, local MLA, representatives of the Panchayats, social activists and educationists took part in the opening session of the programme and shed light on various aspects of the great Hud Movement, the saga of indigenous folk art, relevance and future plans and prospects of uplifting indigenous art and community development. This initial session was followed by the stage performance of Santhal and other folk art that kept the audience spellbound. Similarly, the exhibition projected different aspects of the Santhal revolutionary zeal, Santhal life and the hoary cultural heritage of the community that helped people venture into this otherwise neglected arena.

In this two-day celebration, people and particularly, the youth of the entire locality got a unique opportunity to get introduced to the great treasure of folk art and its versatility. The performance of the Adivasi dance, folk dance of Rabha community, dance of the Munda community, Chandi-dance and Kamdev dance of Rabongshi community transformed the stage into a platform of community celebration.

The celebrations ended, leaving behind fond memories. But the underlying appeal of the entire celebration was that one could know and learn to respect tradition. So also, society has a responsibility to protect, preserve and help in propagating and elevating the indigenous culture. Even though the programme was held in West Bengal, its appeal is all-pervasive and relevant for all parts of the country. Assam, the virtual paradise of folk art, may try this in some form or another. Here, it is important to understand our socio-cultural responsibilities. The indigenous folk culture is our identity and any means of patronising this is always commendable.

Finding his place

The people of Assam have always been fascinated by the Hindi film industry, popularly known as Bollywood. Though we think that it is very difficult to find space in India's biggest film industry, yet, there are quite a number of Assamese people who are working in Bollywood, ranging from actors to technicians. And one such actor who has gained momentum at a very young age is Prem Khan.

Born in 1996, in Dhubri, and brought up in the Bilasipara town of Assam, Prem always had a penchant for acting and cinema. He was mostly inspired by artistes from his native place, like the great Pramathesh Barua, the man who revolutionised cinema by presenting the hit Dendas in 1935, Saifuddin Ahmed, Vijay Saxena, Ashraf Ali Haque, Khandaker Nurul Alam and popular actor of present times, Adil Hussain. Determined to pursue his career in acting, he landed in Mumbai, in 2014.

Anurag Barman

Within a short span of time, he found his feet in the highly competitive world. He appeared in the 2015 Salman Khan-starrer Prem Ratan Dhan Payo in the role of Masuri Ji, the photographer. He will appear in another upcoming Salman Khan-starrer action thriller Tiger Zinda Hai, a sequel to 2012's Ek Tha Tiger in the role of Veer, the son of Tiger (Salman Khan). Besides Bollywood, he has also acted and produced the first ever Goalpara movie titled Goalpara Hero.

A highly spirited actor, Prem has a handful of upcoming movies in his hands. He will be seen in the lead role in Poranam 2, a Bangladeshi film. He has also been cast in Bahimmon-fame director Biswajeet Bora's Bollywood film Boomba Ride and Assamese film Phujhalji. He has also signed a three-film contract with Bipul Shah Motion Pictures. The first one is titled Mahira, followed by a social thriller Maggie, and thirdly, a psychological thriller – Annie Loves Her Daddy. He will also be a part of Remo D Souza's untitled project, which will be releasing in 2018.

From political role to film role

Inspiring soul

A short film titled Bathou Dorza Khul by upcoming filmmaker Anubhab Mahanta was screened recently at the Guwahati Press Club in the presence of a distinguished gathering. The film deals with the consequences that take place because of the excessive pressure exerted upon young pupils by their parents to excel in academics and thereby, achieve a bright career ahead. But the parents and guardians, in doing so, are not at least concerned about the technological complications for the child, which, quite often, brings down to the entire family. The film, though short, touches the right chords to generate awareness on this highly sensitive issue – fast emerging as a social threat to all.

It will be pertinent to mention here that Anubhab Mahanta has earlier produced several such short films which were highly acclaimed. His debut film – Bond (2011), received the Best Film and Best Director awards at the 3rd Cine-asa International Film Festival. This film too depicted the bond that should exist within the family for creating a healthy atmosphere. His second production – Hope (2012), was screened at several film festivals in Assam and, Struggling Gurukul – his third venture (2016), was selected as the fourth best in the EduDock International Film Festival amongst 2,300 entries from across the globe. Says the budding director: "It was never in my mind to make films, even though I got enrolled in a video editing course. But one fine evening, one of my well-wishers put the thought in my mind during a film festival at Guwahati. The rest is history."

Anubhab Mahanta has also made his mark as a writer in a volume titled Moi Anubhab, which got published in 2015. The book, which is a sort of an autobiography, narrates the twists and turns of the author's life after he meets with a tragic train accident which eventually paralyses his right hand. The volume, in fact, is a thanksgiving exercise to all those who have showered their love and affection during those trouble-torn days when the author was bedridden for months. A must read, not for its literary acumen as such, but to realise the depth of the sincere gratitude on the part of the writer, who, indeed, has overcome acute suffering and mental trauma to reach the present state as a filmmaker.

Ankita Lokhande to debut with Kangana

Speculations are ripe that Ankita Lokhande is all set to debut in Bollywood in Kangana Ranaut's upcoming film Manikarnika: The Queen of Jhansi and before people brushed it off as 'just another rumour', Ankita herself confirmed that she'll indeed be debuting in B-town. "I'd never heard of her before, not many have, but Jhalkaribai was one of the greatest heroes of our proud history. I'm honoured that I'll be telling her story to the world, fighting alongside Kangana's Rani Lakshmi Bai." Ankita Lokhande has already started learning the art of sword fighting. She is learning horse riding as well for the movie as her role demands it.

Anushka and Varun to team up for the first time

Make way for a new on-screen jodi in town! It's none other than Varun Dhawan and Anushka Sharma, who are all set to work together for the first time. Titled Sui Dhaaga, this film is Dum Laga Ke Haisha director Sharat Kataria's second directorial venture. Talking about the film, Varun Dhawan said,

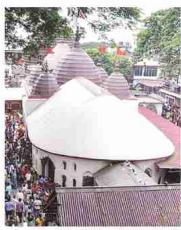

"From Gandhiji to Modi, our country's leaders have always endorsed the mantra of 'Made in India'. With Sui Dhaaga, I am proud to take their message to millions of movie lovers in a manner that is entertaining and relevant." Sui Dhaaga is Varun's first film under the Yash Raj films banner. He further added, "I really liked the script. Sharat has written and I am happy that I am teaming up with YRF on this movie. Anushka and me are teaming up for the first time so I am sure there will be fireworks." Anushka Sharma said, "I always get excited with unique ideas that have human interest stories. Sui Dhaaga is a story of self-reliance that I believe will connect to the grassroots level with every Indian." Sui Dhaaga will hit the shooting floors in January 2018 and is slated to release on Gandhi Jayanti, 2018.

A master's legacy

Late Ananda Mohan Bhagawati was a legend of Sattriya dance form and Ankiha Bhaoana. He was not only a senior guru, but also a performer of Sattriya dance, expert in khol playing and a famous director of Ankiha Bhaoana. The Uttar Kamalabari Satra honoured him with the title of Sangeet Suramoni Guru.

He first learnt Sattriya at his birthplace, in Chupahi Satra. Later, he took guidance from Sangeet Natak Akademi awardee Pradeep Chaliha and learned under another Sangeet Natak Akademi awardee late Paramananda Barbanian. Ananda Mohan Bhagawati's first performance on stage was at the age of seven in the role of Krishna.

Ananda Bhagawati's artistic presentation of Sattriya dance was the first as a performing artiste. He presented Sattriya pure dance (Sudha Nach) on a decorated stage. Like other Indian classical dances, Bhagawati composed Nityabhaktiyantra based on sloka, Borgat and songs of Ankiha Bhaoana. His Nityabhaktiyantra are popular in the field of Sattriya dance, and may be called milestones of Sattriya dance form and its progress as a performing art. These are – Ritrat, Kamala Dida Nayana, Narakasur Bodhi, Hara Mohana, Guru Vandana, Krishna Vandana, Namghosa Prasanga, Birahine Nyayha, Abhinaya Geeton Nach of Nadu Bhangi, Niranjanam Pataka Bhajanya, Guru-Shishya Chaddhawani, Sita horana, Rasila, etc. These compositions were composed texts of the Srimad Bhagwata Purana, Kiritana, Namghosa, Dashastra, Bhakti Ratnakar, Nimirna Sidha Sambada, Ankiha Bhaoana's sloka and songs and other poems of Nava Vaishnavism.

Ananda Mohan Bhagawati also wrote modern drama. He has written ten several modern Assamese plays, which presented traditional theatre and folk dance. His play Jitugura first applied the Sattriya style in it. He is not only a scriptwriter of modern drama, but also a scriptwriter of feature films, tele-films and tele-serials. He composed and directed the dances for Dr Bhupen Hazarika's film Pratidhwani. He was producer of the film Sriman Mainam, directed by Brajen Barua, and was also the music composer of this feature film. He also acted in the film Sriman Mainam, tel-ebayanar Khul, tele-serial Kalakruthi, etc. Ananda Bhagawati also acted in several plays by legendary drama director Dulal Roy. Ananda Bhagawati wrote his first article about Sattriya dance and Ankiha Bhaoana, in 1964. He also designed a new pattern for Sattriya costumes. He even wrote a book on Sattriya dance, which was titled Sattriya Nrityat

Sattriya Samai

He gave lecture demonstrations on Sattriya dance before eminent scholars like Dr Kamala Devi Chatterjee, Dr Kapila Vatsyayan and others at the India International Cultural Centre, New Delhi, in 1980. In 1976, he toured Indonesia as the chief choreographer-cum-participant of Sattriya dance and Ankiha Bhaoana.

Ananda Mohan Bhagawati officiated as visiting professor at the Bharathkande College of Hindustani music for six years from 1984 to 1990, and served as a member of the General Council of the Sangeet Natak Akademi for two terms, and also served as a member of the General Council of Resource and Training for one term. He was appointed president of the Cultural Conference of the Assam Sahitya Sabha for its Kampus session. Bhagawati performed Sattriya dance at the age of 70 and 71, the Rabindra Bhawan, Guwahati, on June 3, 2001 and June 23, 2002. He toured Japan with his group as the chief choreographer-cum-participant of Sattriya dance and other folk dances of Assam.

He taught many Sattriya students who now perform this Indian classical dance form all over the world. These students are Arati Baruah, Deepali Das Bhuyan, Ranjirshna Talukdar, Dalmira Talukdar, Boby Rani Talukdar, Dali Thakur, Dharitree Kalita, etc.

Ananda Bhagawati was a member of the North East Zonal Cultural Centre, Dimapur, before his death. He was also a recipient of the Senior Fellowship from the Ministry of Tourism and Culture, Government of India.

His student Dharitree Kalita, Ram Krishna Talukdar, Dali Thakur, Boby Rani Talukdar and Dali Ram Talukdar perform his aesthetic and beautiful compositions even now. Ram Krishna Talukdar pays rich tributes to Sangeet Suramoni Guru Ananda Mohan Bhagawati at his institution of Narjan Kala Niketan every year.

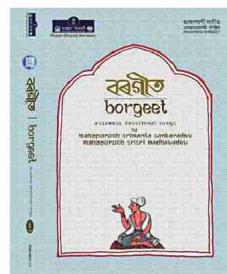

His disciples and audiences still miss him amongst them, but his students have continued to take his creative legacy ahead.

Vibrant heritage

The culture that flourished during the Vaishnavite Movement has not yet achieved global recognition. Questions arise as to the reasons why songs, plays, essays of this period have not been recognised worldwide. The encyclopaedic heritage vibrant in this culture has not been spread across the globe. The translation of its epoch-making literature into foreign languages has not been accomplished. And the songs of this great time have not been sung in any foreign country.

With the lapse of time, we people can barely reach out to these numbers. Present-day channels, with so much commercially viability hardly plan to make programmes on this heritage. The present generation of young artistes have not perfected the art of singing these numbers. They neither feel responsible enough to practise these noble numbers, nor are they inclined towards this tradition. But All India Radio, in this respect, deserves special praise for broadcasting all the cultural elements of this period. People can start their morning duties switching on this wireless device with this rich fare. And the great artistes in their soulful voices create beautiful mornings.

The Prasar Bharati Archives have recently produced a collection of these songs, prestigiously known as Borgat, in two volumes, sung by venerable artistes like Bhupen Hazarika, Amiya Mahanta, Girikanta Mahanta, Dayal Chandra Sutradhar,

Hilol Kumar Pathak

Kabitab Talukdar, Dhrishti Devi, Birendra Nath Dutta, Ananta Oza, Kanjika Das, Niralata Baruah, Bijuli Das, Khagen Mahanta, Maniram Gayan Muktar, Pravart Sarma, Rupjyoti Oza, Olhu Bayan Sil, Anjali Mahanta Roy Choudhury, Mandira Lahiri, Durgamoyee Boru, Gumiunda Naz Oza, Jagannomi Das, Rudra Baruah, Archana Mahanta, Jiten Basumatary and Reena Roy Khatiar. This has become possible only because there is a well-preserved archive at Prasar Bharati.

Srimanta Sankardeva, the exponent of Vaishnavism in Assam, was essentially a social reformer. Upset by the socio-cultural disparity and depravity that had been crippling the society in the name of religion, he upheld Vaishnavism as a better choice before the people. However, religion was not his chief agenda. He aimed at reforming the society through a comprehensive cultural revolution by boosting the art and music of Assam and ensuring in the process the refinement of the taste of the people. Hence, he even gave this religion an artistic form by asserting the superiority of Swavana (listening to) and Kirtana (singing) among the nine types of Bhakti (devotion).

Instead of adapting the folk forms of art and music that were in vogue for propagating his religious preaching, which might have made his task easier and perhaps more effective, he shouldered the strenuous task of popularising classical music and art even among the illiterate masses and surprisingly enough, was successful to a great extent in his mission. All his artistic creations – dance, drama, music, art and sculpture, especially the Borgat disciple, also played an important role in achieving the goal. Grasping fully his preceptor's vision and acquiring the expertise in the field of art, Madhabdev appeared to be instrumental in making Borgat immortal.

These two volumes by AIR incorporate most of these noble numbers. Thus, all the great literature of the period needs to be archived in a modern way. Documentation is the only effective way to showcase this art in other parts of the globe.

Untold tales

Joykanta Sarma

It is often said that Nature, with its rich flora and fauna, beckons almost everywhere in Assam or the Northeast region. But most places of attraction are far from the attention even of the elite, not to speak of the common folk. The idyllic surroundings in the Meghalaya-South Kamrup border, in particular, are still unexplored, in spite of their picturesque settings and salubrious climate.

In is this backdrop that Dinamani Das's Kalahir Pare Pare and his earlier work Ukiamon Uki are very helpful for readers to know about these places. The books, however, deal with other subjects, too, such as eminent personalities like Bishnu Prasad Rabha, Congress leader late Harendra Nath Talukdar, lyricist-singer Nalini Chowdhury of Chayagaon, Govindo Ata of the Garos and natural spots like Paglatek, Mirza town at the foothills of Mitalia hills, Tukreswari Devalaya in Goalpara, etc.

While essays like Kalahir Pare Pare, Chandubi Hahiche, Anupam Deepor Beel, Nadir Naum Pagtada, Aha Keteki Sombad, etc., are Nature-related and thought-provoking, essays like Lukit Ebumukhi, Raja Baha Sil, Nagarberar Malcha Satra, Malibari, Samaria Satra, Atithasik Raja Rajyat Ebumukhi, Jayalpar Paragarbera, etc., evoke interest for the heritage sites which are being neglected and relegated to oblivion.

One can find from the book that the now dilapidated Kulis forest inspection bungalow on a mound on the bank of the river Kalahi was built way back in 1872 by the then British administration and at that time itself Assistant Forest Ranger A Percy Alymer planted teak trees at Kulis, the first ever teak plantation in the NE, by bringing its seeds from distant Burma. The essays are research-oriented. As for instance, how many among us know that Mirza town has got its name from the Mughal General Mirza Nathan, who resided at 'Dakhin Kol', i.e., Mirza for 12 long years? While narrating the genesis of the Puglada river, the author has also discussed its economic potential along with its rich folklore and history.

Nature in jeopardy

Dr Tapati Baruah Kashyap

Rapid destruction of our environment has posed a serious threat not just to human beings but to life on Earth itself. Realising the need of the hour, people around the globe have been engaged in finding solutions to this threat. There are a few people, scholars and educationists who have been trying to generate awareness among the masses by writing popular features on this issue in newspapers and magazines.

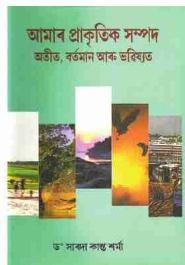

One such person is Dr Sarada Kanta Sarma, a retired Professor of Botany, Gauhati University, who has immensely contributed to this campaign for generating awareness in Assam in the past couple of decades. Written with a view to influence the common people, Dr Sarma uses simple language and narratives to drive home his point.

As he has mentioned in his preface, Dr Sarma's interest in popular writing grew particularly when he had spent three long years for a doctoral research at the Hungarian Academy of Science in Budapest in the 1970s. "I was particularly struck by how a lively river like the Danube has so powerfully impacted upon the socio-economic lives of people. This also made me wonder why our Brahmaputra has been more a source of sorrow and suffering, and why we haven't been able to harness our river like the Hungarians have done with the Danube," he said.

The first essay of this book is about the Brahmaputra, with Dr Sarma discussing the hitherto unexplored possibilities of the mighty river. He unfolds his aspirations to project the river as a river of hope. Focusing on the socio-economic aspects of the river, Dr Sarma calls for drawing lessons from the 'Miracle on the Han' in South Korea and the 'Miracle of the Rhine' in Germany.

Though published earlier in different newspapers, this collection of 31 essays reflects his urge to save Mother Nature as well as to make people aware that this Earth is not just for them. In one of his essays, Dr Sarma discusses the growing menace of artificial floods in Guwahati and blames the senseless destruction of the city's God-gifted hills and wetlands.

Other issues that Dr Sarma has touched in these essays include – conservation of bio-diversity, population explosion, indiscriminate killing of birds, ill-effects of big dams, popularising saachi plantation, apart from making valuable suggestions for protection of our national parks, wildlife sanctuaries, reserved forests and wetlands from encroachers.

Tennessee Williams was an American playwright and Pulitzer Prize-winner, whose works are set largely in the American South. Williams was born in Columbus, Mississippi, on March 26, 1911, as Thomas Lanier Williams. He spent most of his youth in St Louis, Missouri. He worked at a variety of odd jobs until 1945, when he first appeared on the Broadway scene as the author of The Glass Menagerie. This evocative "memory play" won the New York Drama Critics' Circle award as the best of the season. It was filmed in 1950 and has been performed on the stage throughout the world.

The Prasar Bharati Archives have recently produced a collection of these songs, prestigiously known as Borgat, in two volumes, sung by venerable artistes like Bhupen Hazarika, Amiya Mahanta, Girikanta Mahanta, Dayal Chandra Sutradhar, Williams continued to write for the theatre, he was unable to repeat the success of most of his early works. One of his last plays was Clothes for a Summer Hotel (1960), based on the American writer Ernest Hemingway's short story "Hemingway's Summer". Williams died in New York on February 25, 1983. In his provocative Memories (1975), Williams described his own dramatic problems with drugs and alcohol and his latterly avowed homosexuality.

'UK doctors using WhatsApp, Snapchat to share patient data'

LONDON, July 7: Doctors in the UK are increasingly using Facebook, WhatsApp and Snapchat to discuss information about their patients, despite a ban on the internet-based messaging apps, experts say.

Due to the lack of digital sharing systems, UK's National Health Service (NHS) doctor use groups on Facebook and WhatsApp to share details about patients, according to Alasdair Macnair, an NHS doctor based at Cambridge.

"Use of internet-based messaging apps to send patient information is banned by the NHS.

"I have also seen chat on Facebook groups that sails pretty close to the wind in terms of discussing medical information," Macnair told the BBC. "I've definitely seen stuff which is one step away from being patient identifying," Macnair said.

"I am empathetic with doctors because there is a need and desire among healthcare professionals to share this information and the fact that nothing exists for them to do so is a huge problem," said Kate McCarthy, healthcare analyst at UK-based Forrester Research. "The reality is that doctors are responding to the inadequacy of what the NHS is providing," McCarthy said.

The way UK's health service looks after data has come under spotlight after an Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) investigation found that 1.6 million patient records were shared with Google's DeepMind. The artificial intelligence company said it was developing an app to alert doctors and nurses about patients at risk of kidney injury. The ICO found that the NHS had breached data laws by allowing DeepMind to access the records. A subsequent report from an independent panel set up by DeepMind to assess its work suggested that the NHS's use of technology was in a dire state. - PTI

Post demonetisation, growth dipped 5%: Yashwant Sinha

NEW DELHI, July 7: Former Finance Minister and BJP leader Yashwant Sinha says the Indian economy is actually growing at five per cent as against the over 7 per cent recorded by the Central Statistics Office (CSO).

The Government has said the economy is growing at over 7 per cent, but that is according to the new formula "and if the growth is calculated according to the old formula, then the growth is at 5 per cent," Sinha said in an interview.

"Clearly 250 bps difference in growth is there between the old and the new formula. We are at around 7 per cent according to the new formula. My take is that according to the old formula, we are at around 5 per cent," he said.

The Government in 2015 had changed the GDP calculation method, which apart from changing the base year to 2011-

12, started measuring growth using gross value added (GVA) at market price and not factor cost. GDP thus now takes into account the market prices paid by consumers and not factor cost of products which the producers received.

Talking about demonetisation, Sinha said he would not acknowledge it as an economic reform and questioned the delay in disclosing the total deposits received during the period.

"Demonetisation was an administrative step. I would not regard it as an economic reform. The purpose was to capture black money, but since even after eight months we don't have the basic figure of how many notes in circulation came back, you are not in a position to pass any judgement," he said.

"We can't pronounce judgement on the effect of demonetisation in any holistic manner because of bank non-performing assets (NPAs). It appears to me that again the sequence between investment and consumption has got disturbed somewhere. So we may have some consumer demand, but hardly any investment demand because investment is not taking place," he said.

giving the figures earlier? Every week they were declaring that so much currency has come back. It's only when they started reaching that level that was in circulation, that they stopped talking. So they (Government) might have said, find some reason for not giving the final figure," he added.

RBI Governor Urjit Patel had earlier appeared before the standing committee of Parliament and disclosed that demonetisation was done because the Government wanted it done.

Sinha said that if the entire Rs 15.44 lakh crore worth of high denomination currency that was in circulation prior to demonetisation has come back as deposits, the Government will have some explaining to do. "Suppose Rs 11 lakh crore came back and Rs 4 lakh crore has not come back, we would have easily concluded that Rs

4 lakh crore was black money which did not come back to the system. But if Rs 15-16 lakh crore has come back, then we need to explain," he said.

"You are watching the scene as much as I am, and nobody can say that we have achieved the objectives—that counterfeit currency is not back... as corruption continues," he added.

Sinha asserted that the state of the economy has remained unchanged in the last three years.

"There is a question of employment generation. Is the economy generating enough employment? The answer from Government statistics is no. Is private sector investment taking place? The answer is no. If you ask me about reform measures and state of economy, I say not much change has taken place in the last three years," Sinha told this news agency.

of economic growth," he said. Sinha said the festering problem of non-performing assets (NPAs) that was inherited by the Modi Government in 2014 despite various reform measures has worsened in the last three years.

"The most important issue that the economy was faced with when this Government came to power in 2014, was the twin problem of stalled projects and bank NPAs. Bank NPAs happened because projects were stalled and some other factors combined to slow down the economy," Sinha said. - IANS

Govt wants to revive small savings, says Sitharaman

KHARAGPUR (West Bengal), July 7: The Government wants to revive small savings as it is currently not robust as it should be, Minister of State for Commerce & Industry Nirmala Sitharaman said here today.

"Small savings is the backbone of the economy. Small savings is not robust as it was always. We want to revive it," Sitharaman said.

She, however, did not elaborate on how the Government was planning to revive the small savings scenario when interest rates are slipping gradually.

LIC MF eyes over 30% growth in business

MUMBAI, July 7: LIC Mutual Fund is looking at increasing its participation into the non-traditional markets to grow its assets under management (AUM) to around Rs 32,000 crore by March from Rs 25,000 crore last March, despite a tepid show in the first quarter.

To achieve this high level of growth of around 32 percent, the fund house is banking on growing its business from beyond top-15 cities or B-15 cities.

The fund house saw only a 12 percent growth in its total annual average AUM in the first quarter of the current fiscal as against 30,000 crore.

The 17th-largest fund house company which has a market share of just 1.17 percent, had achieved quarterly average AUM of Rs 21,450 crore in FY17. Its quarterly average

Negative global cues pull equity markets down

MUMBAI, July 7: Negative global cues and selling pressure in IT, banking and consumer durables stocks pulled the Indian equity markets down today.

The Sensex touched a high of 31,426.29 points and a low of 31,286.62 points during the intra-day trade.

However, the BSE market breadth was bullish – with 1,396 advances and 1,280 declines.

"Markets ended marginally lower today as they traded in a range. Today's losses came after two sessions of gains. Weak global cues weighed on sentiment," Deepak Jasra, Head of Retail Research, HDFC Securities, told this news agency.

"In the current fiscal year, the industry is expected to grow 20-25 percent. But we are looking at growing the AUM by at least 32 percent, and take the total AUM to Rs 32,000 crore by the fiscal end," he said.

The fund house comes from Maharashtra, Gujarat and Goa. 5.7 percent comes from individual basis from NCR and Bengal.

Mechanism to block services on stolen/lost mobiles soon

NEW DELHI, July 7: The Government is putting in place a new system that will block all services on stolen or lost mobile phones on any network even if the SIM card is removed or IMEI number of the handset is changed, the document said.

IMEI number – a unique 15-digit serial number of mobile devices – is allocated by global industry body GSMA and bodies authorised by it. When a mobile phone is lost, the victim is required to mention the IMEI number of the handset for tracking.

"The theft of mobile phones is not just a financial loss, but also a threat to personal life of the citizens as well as national security," the document said.

The CEIR will be regularly updated with IMEI of lost, stolen or counterfeit handsets.

The DoT has barred telecom operators from providing service to any mobile phone with fake IMEI number, but the operators face problem in identifying handsets with duplicate IMEI number.

The CEIR will also help operators in identifying handsets with fake IMEI numbers as it will have details of handset model to whom the IMEI has been originally allocated.

The DoT is also set to notify rules that will make tampering of IMEI number a punishable offence with up to three years of imprisonment. - PTI

PUNE, July 7: The issue of a high Goods and Services Tax on bio-diesel and other clean energy products would be taken up with the GST Council in order to effect a reduction in the tax rate, the Government said today.

"The Petroleum and Natural Gas Ministry and the Ministry of Power would together intervene with the (GST) Council to ensure that the GST rates on biodiesel and other green energy products are reduced," Petroleum Minister Dharmendra Pradhan said as the Petroleum Ministry-organised 'Bioenergy Utsav' event here on bio-fuels.

While petroleum as a category is still outside the ambit of GST – the unified pan-India indirect tax regime that came into effect from July 1, biodiesel, ethanol and similar mixing agents have been put in the 18 per cent tax bracket. The other three GST slabs are 5, 12 and 28 per cent.

While crude oil, natural gas, aviation kerosene, diesel and petrol are not included in GST, the issue of their inclusion is pending before the GST Council. - PTI

SC restrains IIT admissions through JEE-17

NEW DELHI, July 7: The Supreme Court today restrained the Indian Institutes of Technology (IITs) across the country from conducting further counselling and admitting students on the basis of the results of the IIT-JEE (Advanced) 2017 results, till further orders.

A bench of Justices Dipak Misra and AM Khanwilkar also restrained the High Courts across the country from entertaining any fresh petition relating to the counsellings and admissions to the IITs from today onwards.

It directed the registries of the High Courts to inform it about the number of petitions challenging IIT-Joint Entrance Examination (JEE) 2017 rank list and awarding of additional marks to all candidates who had appeared in the test.

The bench directed that copies of the order be sent to the Registrars General of all the High Courts and posted the matter for further hearing on July 10. During the hearing, Attorney General KK Venugopal urged the court to suggest an equitable solution as there were a huge number of students who had taken the examination.

Senior advocate Vikas Singh, appearing for some of the candidates, said the action of the IITs in awarding "bonus marks" to candidates for the defective questions given in the JEE (Advanced) 2017 examination was "utterly wrong" and violated the rights of all the students.

The bench suggested that the solution was that those who had attempted such questions should be awarded bonus marks. It said the court would go by its earlier judgement of 2005 and added that bonus marks cannot be given to those who have not attempted the questions.

Venugopal pointed out that there was negative marking for every unsuccessful question and there may be some students who had opted not to answer "the said vague questions fearing negative marking." Therefore, across-the-board bonus marks were given to the candidates, otherwise the IITs would have to strike down the marks, he said.

The AG appearing for IITs said it was difficult to re-evaluate the answer sheets of over two lakh students who took the examination and awarding of bonus marks across board was the most practical solution. He said till now, over 33,000 students have taken admission in various streams of courses in premier engineering institutes of the country.

The bench said it would try to find a solution to the problem which needs to be solved at the earliest, but as an interim measure, the IITs should not conduct further counselling and take admissions on the basis of the JEE-2017. It said the admission to the IITs can only be allowed after deciding the validity of awarding bonus marks for wrong questions to all students. - PTI

Modi bhakts will lead to his fall: Shiv Sena

MUMBAI, July 7: Incensed by the pro-Narendra Modi slogans at a party-controlled BMC function on Wednesday, the Shiv Sena today said Modi bhakts (supporters) would lead to his fall just like those of late PM Indira Gandhi led to hers.

The Sena's latest outburst was triggered by pro-Modi slogans of the BJP corporators rendering a drama during a cheque-handing ceremony at the Brihamnagar Municipal Corporation headquarters on Wednesday.

In the function, Maharashtra Finance Minister Sudhir Mungantiwar had handed over a cheque of the first tranche of the GST (Goods and Services Taxes) compensation to the civic body.

"Today, those who are unnecessarily shouting pro-Modi slogans, are actually maligning his image. There was a time when the slogans in the name of Indira Gandhi were chanted too. Her bhakts had insulted the nation by shouting slogans like 'India is India' and that instead triggered a spark of revolution which culminated in her defeat," the Sena said in an editorial in the party mouthpiece, Saamana.

The Sena said one should understand the difference between being proud of Narendra Modi and being frenzied about it. - PTI

Bhandarkar declines to screen Indu Sarkar for Cong

MUMBAI, July 7: Filmmaker Madhur Bhandarkar has turned down Congress leader Sanjay Nirupam's demand to screen his upcoming film, Indu Sarkar, before it is screened for the censor board.

Indu Sarkar is based on the Emergency and in a letter addressed to the Central Board of Film Certification (CBFC) chief Pahlaj Nihalani, Nirupam had shared his concern over the portrayal of party veterans like Indira Gandhi, Sanjay Gandhi and other senior leaders of the Indian National Congress in the film.

The filmmaker said his movie, slated to release on July 28, does not talk about any individual and uses the showing of the film to the Congress or any political party till the time the censor has passed the film. It is my prerogative whom I should show or not show my film. Nobody can force me to show them the film.

"I would tell the Congress people to come and watch the film in theatres before making such comments on a film which has not even released, or has been cleared by the censor board," Bhandarkar told PTI.

The filmmaker said his movie, slated to release on July 28, does not talk about any individual and uses the Emergency just as the backdrop.

"Some people send me legal notices... Jagdish Tytler wrote a letter that he wants his portrayal in good faith. Mr Nirupam also wrote that he wants to see the film," Bhandarkar said.

Bhandarkar said political pressure does affect him and his family is worried about the whole matter. "Art has no boundaries but these kind of things put pressure on a filmmaker. It is just bullying tactics. My wife and daughter are worried about this whole thing," he claimed. - PTI

New AI system can quickly detect irregular heartbeats

Stanford scientists, including one of Indian origin, have developed a new artificial intelligence system that can detect life-threatening irregular heartbeats by quickly sifting through hours of heart rhythm data.

The algorithm performs better than trained cardiologists, and has the added benefit of being able to sort through data from remote locations where people do not have routine access to cardiologists.

The algorithm could bring quick, accurate diagnoses of heart arrhythmias to people without ready access to cardiologists, researchers said.

"One of the big deals about this work, in my opinion, is not just that we do abnormality detection but that we do it with high accuracy across a large number of different types of abnormalities," said Avni Hannun, a graduate student at Stanford University in the US.

People suspected to have an arrhythmia will often get an electrocardiogram (ECG) in a doctor's office. However, if an in-office ECG does not reveal the problem, the doctor may prescribe the patient a wearable ECG that monitors the heart continuously for two weeks.

The resulting hundreds of hours of data would then need to be inspected second by second for any indications of problematic arrhythmias, some of which are extremely difficult to differentiate from harmless heartbeat irregularities.

Researchers, led by Andrew Ng from Stanford, set out to develop a deep learning algorithm to detect 13 types of arrhythmia from ECG signals.

In seven months, it was able to diagnose these arrhythmias as accurately as cardiologists and outperform them in most cases.

The researchers believe that this algorithm could someday help make cardiologist-level arrhythmia diagnosis and treatment more accessible to people who are unable to see a cardiologist in person.

The group trained their algorithm on data collected from a wearable ECG monitor. Patients wear a small chest patch for two weeks and carry out their normal day-to-day activities while the device records each heartbeat for analysis.

The group took approximately 30,000, 30-second clips from various patients that represented a variety of arrhythmias.

"The differences in the heartbeat signal can be very subtle but have massive impact in how you choose to tackle these detections," said Pranav Rajpurkar, a graduate student at Stanford.

To test accuracy of the algorithm, researchers gave a group of three expert cardiologists 300 undiagnosed clips and asked them to reach a consensus about any arrhythmias present in the recordings.

The algorithm could then predict what those cardiologists would label every second of other ECGs with which it was presented, in essence, giving a diagnosis.

The algorithm could be a step toward expert-level arrhythmia diagnosis for people who do not have access to a cardiologist, as in many parts of the developing world and in other rural areas, researchers said.

More immediately, the algorithm could be part of a wearable device that at-risk people keep on at all times that would alert emergency services to potentially deadly heartbeat irregularities as they are happening. — PTI

Protest chaos mars G20 summit ahead of Trump-Putin power meet

HAMBURG, July 7: Far-left protesters wrought chaos in Hamburg today ahead of US President Donald Trump's first face-to-face talks with Russian leader Vladimir Putin at a G20 summit fixing divisions among western nations and tensions over North Korea.

US First Lady Melania Trump was blocked at her residence as demonstrators torched cars, smashed shop windows, fired flares at police helicopters and even slashed tyres or vehicles belonging to the Canadian delegation.

The violence forced Hamburg police to call in reinforcements from other German states, and G20 organisers to drastically curtail an official programme for spouses of visiting dignitaries.

"The Hamburg police could not give us clearance to leave," said the first lady's spokeswoman, Stephanie Grisham, explaining why she had been forced to miss a cruise tour.

Tension and uncertainties were also running high within the heavily-guarded conference hall, where the leaders of the world's biggest economies struggled with a rift between Trump's US and its European allies over climate change and trade.

Trump and Putin, meeting for the first time, shook hands on arrival a couple of hours ahead of keenly-awaited bilateral talks freighted with planetary consequences.

"I look forward to all meetings with world leaders, including my meeting with Vladimir Putin. Much to discuss," Trump wrote on Twitter.

Asked if Putin felt the same about the talks, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said: "Affirmative".

Their meeting, say analysts, could sway issues ranging from the North Korean crisis and conflicts in Syria and Ukraine to US-Russian disarmament treaties, world trade and global warming.

Public images of the interaction between the brash property tycoon and ice-cool ex-KGB agent are likely to be dissected frame by frame for any sign of rapprochement or estrangement.

How the "contrasting styles of machismo interact... Will likely be the defining feature of their relationship," noted David Chollet from think-tank German Marshall Fund.

Normally a ripple-free event in the diplomatic calendar, this year's G20 summit promises to be one of the stormiest in the forum's history.

Trump's "America First" approach on trade and his climate-scene tactics are straining relations with longstanding allies, especially in Europe.

And his tough response to North Korea's missile programme – an issue where Russia and China are urging calm – throws a further volatile ingredient into the mix.

On the presidential election campaign trail last year, Trump said he hoped relations with Putin could be rebuilt after Russia's acrimonious ties with his predecessor Barack Obama.

But Moscow faces mounting accusations that it interfered in the election to help propel Trump into the White House. As a result, Trump faces pressure at home and from US allies to take a combative tone.

In a key speech in Warsaw on Thursday, Trump fired a rare salvo of criticism at Russia, but did not name Putin specifically. – AFP

Egyptian police detain Chinese Uighurs in wide sweep

BEIJING, July 7: Chinese students from the Uighur ethnic minority have been detained in Egypt in a broad police sweep that has shaken the country's sizeable Uighur student and expatriate community, activists have said.

Egyptian police have detained several Uighur students, including 20 from Cairo's Al-Azhar University who were stopped in the city of Alexandria on their way out of the country late Wednesday and told they would be deported to China, said Abdewell Ayub, a Uighur activist in Turkey.

Ayub said he had heard directly from some of the detainees and their relatives.

The detentions come amid reports that authorities in the Uighur homeland of Xinjiang in western China are seeking the immediate return of Uighurs studying abroad.

Authorities in Xinjiang have significantly tightened security measures in the past year, as well as controls on religious expression, in what officials characterize as an "unveiling" campaign against Islamic extremism brewing in the region.

Overseas Uighurs and human rights groups say the measures have turned Xinjiang into a police state with widespread arbitrary detentions and invasive surveillance.

The detentions in Egypt, a popular destination for religious study among China's Muslims, were seen by activists as a possible sign that China's security crackdown in Xinjiang is extending its reach overseas.

A Chinese foreign ministry spokesman appeared to acknowledge yesterday that Chinese citizens had been detained in Egypt, saying at a regular briefing that consular officials would visit them. He gave no further details.

Another activist, who spoke on condition of anonymity for fear of reprisals, said overseas groups had managed to move 60 Uighur students out of Egypt to safety in Turkey this week, but 20 were held while trying to fly to Dubai.

► India celebrate their series win against the West Indies after the 5th ODI at Kingston, on Thursday.

Kohli leads India to 3-1 series win over West Indies

KINGSTON (Jamaica), July 7: Skipper Virat Kohli led from the front with a fluent century as India wrapped up the five-match series 3-1 with a convincing eight wicket win over West Indies, here on Thursday.

Asked to bowl, comeback man Mohammed Shami bagged four wickets as an under-fire India produced a disciplined bowling effort to restrict West Indies to a modest 205 for nine.

Playing only his second ODI after a long injury lay-off, Shami picked up four wickets giving 48 runs in his 10 overs to pull West Indies back.

Besides Shami, Umesh Yadav gave him ample support from the other end and returned with impressive figures of three for 53.

For West Indies, Shai Hope topped with a patient 51 off 98 balls during which he hit just five boundaries, while his brother Kyle made 46 off 50 deliveries with nine fours to his credit.

Later chasing the total, India hardly faced any trouble as Kohli (111 not out) and ever-consistent Ajinkya Rahane (39 off 51) shared 79 runs for the second wicket in 17.5 overs to set the platform for the comfortable win.

The match was a test of character for Kohli and his men after the unexpected 11-run loss against the hosts in the low-scoring fourth ODI in Antigua.

Sakshi, Vinesh book berths for World Wrestling Championship

LUCKNOW, July 7: Ace women wrestlers Sakshi Malik and Vinesh Phogat today made the cut in the Indian squad for the World Wrestling Championship, to be held in Paris next month.

The squad for the tournament was announced after the Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) conducted selection trials across weight categories at the STC Lucknow here.

Rio Olympics bronze-medallist in 58kg, Sakshi, who bagged a silver medal at the Asian Championship in May after climbing up a division to 60kg category, has qualified in the same category for the upcoming championship.

Vinesh, another silver medalist at Asian Championship, earned a place in the women's 48kg.

Although Vinesh had won the Asian Championship silver in 55kg as she was making a comeback from an injury, she today fought in her preferred 48kg category and comfortably qualified for the mega-event. Among others who made the cut for the World Championship were Sheetal (53kg), Lalita (55kg), Pooja Dhandha (58kg), Shipra (65kg), Navjot Kaur (69kg) and Pooja (75kg). — PTI but in search of too many he persisted, picking out Dhawan as a wicket while trying to attempt for an ambitious pull.

Umesh then had Roston Chase LBW for a duck with a full ball and straight delivery in the next ball. The batsmen went for the review but to no avail with West Indies slumping to 76 for three by the end of the 16th over.

Shai and Jason Mohammed (16) then stitched 39 for the fourth wicket before Kedar Jadhav (1/13) struck with his golden arm, dismissing both with a straight forward return catch. Young Shai had one end up and played with caution to notch up his second-century of the series in the 38th over. Together with skipper Jasprit Bumrah, Shai added 42 runs for the fifth wicket to keep West Indies' innings afloat.

While Shai played with caution, Holder was aggressive from the onset and piled up his 36 runs off just 34 balls with the help of four boundaries and one six.

But an irresponsible shot led to Holder's dismissal as he was holed out to Dhawan at long-on to hand Shami his first wicket.

An over later Shami struck again when he dismissed Shai with the set batsman attempting an ambitious shot and Ajinkya Rahane did the rest by latching on to an outstanding running catch at midwicket. — PTI

But Kohli played a chanceless knock and dictated the terms. He showed his class and brought up his 28th ODI century, a record 18th while chasing, with a boundary of Keswick Williams.

Together with Dinesh Karthik (50 not off 52 balls), Kohli stitched an unbeaten 122 runs for the third wicket to take India home with 79 balls to spare.

Earlier opting to bat, West Indies made a decent start before the hosts lost their first wicket in the ninth over when Lewis (9) was caught by skipper Kohli off Hardik Pandya's (1/27) second delivery of the innings.

Hope brothers, Kyle and Shai then shared 37 runs off 45 balls for the second wicket before Umesh struck twin blows in consecutive balls.

Kyle, who was looking good, struck Umesh in the 16th over but Kohli meant business as he anchored India's chase with his 115 balls and was studded with 12 fours and two sixes.

Besides the early dismissal of Shikhar Dhawan, the Indians were in complete control of the chase.

In pursuit of the target, India lost Dhawan in the last delivery of the opening over, caught by Evin Lewis off Alzar Joseph.

But thereafter, it was Kohli and Rahane's show as the duo dominated the proceedings with consummate ease. While ever-consistent Rahane played a record 18th while chasing, with a boundary of Keswick Williams.

Elgar holds firm against England after Amla blow

LONDON, July 7: South Africa captain Dean Elgar showed he too could lead from the front as he dug in to make an unbeaten fifty on the second day of the first Test against England at Lord's, on Friday.

But the Proteas lost star batsman Hashim Amla for 29 and at tea were 96 for two in reply to England's first innings of 45 - a deficit of 362 runs.

Elgar was 54 not out and JP Duminy eight not out.

Both Elgar and England skipper Joe Root, who made a commanding 190 earlier on Friday, were leading their respective countries in a Test for the first time.

But Elgar's appointment appears to be temporary given regular Proteas captain Faf du Plessis is expected to be back for next week's second Test of this four-Test series in Nottingham, after missing the opener to be with his wife following the birth of their first child.

Stuart Broad, who'd earlier frustrated South Africa with an unbeaten 57, had Test debutant Heino Kuhn out for one when the 33-year-old opener edged to former captain Alastair Cook at first slip.

Elgar, however, displayed his customary resilience and it was somewhat typical that he went to a 90-ball fifty with a controlled edge down to third man of all-rounder Ben Stokes - his eighth four. Amla, so often a thorn in England's side, helped Elgar add 72. - AFP
